Youth slays 4, himself

LANCASTER — A teen-ager fatally shot his former girlfriend, her new suitor, her mother and her stepfather and then himself Friday, witnesses said.

Four, including the gun-wielding youth died at the home of the stepfather, who died on the way to the hospital, authorities said.

A 14-year-old girl escaped by diving through a window, neighbors told newsmen, and was later taken to the hospital with cuts on her arms.

Sheriff's deputies investigating the shootings declined to disclose any information, but neighbors who were the first on the scene agreed on this account:

Gary Logan, 18, raced up to the Welch home in east Lancaster on his motorcycle, jumped off and ran inside the house with a pistol.

Inside, he shot his former girlfriend, Lori Roskam, 15, and her companion, Rockey Holcomb, 17. He also shot Doris Welch, the mother, and her husband, Jack Welch. Then he shot himself.

Witnesses said 14-year-old Susan Roskam, Lori's sister, jumped through a closed window.

Welch was a laboratory supervisor at Antelope Valley Hospital where he was dead on arrival with gunshot wounds in the chest at 4:52 p.m., hospital officials said.

"I heard shots, then screaming and glass flying," said Forrest Sadler, 38, a neighbor who was working in his garage at the time. "I was afraid to move at first."

Janet Howard, 18, who was babysitting for neighbors across the street, said:

"One girl leaped through the front window of the house and she was shouting, 'He's dead, He's dead.' The babysitter referred to Susan Roskam."

Fog, rain and holiday traffic on the freeways teamed up to push the state's highway fatalities to at least 26 for the Thanksgiving weekend.

Motorists headed for weekend vacation spots on rain-slick roads in the north and on fog-shrouded freeways in the south.

In spite of foul weather and four separate collisions which killed 13 people on Thursday and Friday, the death toll was running well below last year's record of 88 on the 4½-day holiday weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Nationally, 271 persons had died in traffic accidents since the start of the holiday period at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 620 and 720 persons would be killed on the nation's highways during the 102-hour holiday period ending at midnight Sunday.

The dense fog which has persisted in sections of Long Beach and along the Southern California coast this week contributed to the death of five persons Friday, authorities said.

Four people lost their lives in a head-on collision on Highway 65, 50 miles north of Bakersfield. Highway patrolmen identified them as Hubert Lindsey, 59, of Oakland; Thomas E. McDowell, 16, Downey; Randy Even- sen, 16, South Gate, and Darrell Smith, 17, of Brea.

The fifth victim was identified as Albert Brittain, 21, of 1328 Cypress Ave., Santa Ana. The victim was stationed at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station. His small foreign car overturned on the fog-covered Santa Ana freeway near Los Angeles.

An 18-year-old Woodland Hills girl was killed Friday night when her car collided head-on with a truck on Las Virgenes Canyon Road two miles south of the Ventura Freeway.

The victim was identified as Ann Deltman of 24130 Mariano St.

The driver of the truck, Charles Augustan, 24, of 2712 W. 182nd St., Redondo Beach, was reported in serious condition. He was booked on suspicion of felony drunken driving.

Long Beach police reported no fatalities, but three persons were injured in accidents Thursday.

More fog and low clouds were forecast for Long Beach, but U.S. Weather Bureau officials predicted "some improvement" in late night-early morning weather by Sunday.

Dockers ordered to work

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal judges, responding to President Nixon's use of the Taft-Hartley Act, ordered striking longshoremen back to work in scattered seaport cities Friday, halting a strike which has tied up Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports for 57 days.

Temporary restraining orders were signed in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Mobile.

The Justice Department filed suits in 12 cities after President Nixon invoked the Taft-Hartley Act

Thursday providing for an 80-day "cooling off" period allowing longshoremen to return to work while negotiations continued.

A union official said some longshoremen are expected to return to work today but a New York Record foreign trade deficit blamed on dock strike. Page A-5.

Shipping association spokesman said New York dockworkers are not expected back on the job until Monday.

On Wednesday, U.S. District Judge Jack M. Gordon in New Orleans signed an injunction ordering dockworkers to return to work but stayed his ruling pending notice of appeal by the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA).

Union attorneys said Friday they would appeal the judge's decision but it would "serve no useful purpose" to request another stay since Nixon invoked the Taft-Hartley Act.

Meanwhile, the dockworkers in New Orleans were filtering back to the docks for assignments.

In New York, where 69 ships are tied up as the result of the walkout by 24,000 longshoremen, District Judge Dudley F. Borsal ordered the men to return to work at the same pay and fringe benefits they received when the contract expired on Oct. 1.

In Baltimore, U.S. District Judge Herbert F. Murray issued a similar order, sending that city's 5,000 longshoremen back to work today. U.S. District Judge Charles

Weiner also ordered Philadelphia's 5,000 workers to return to work today.

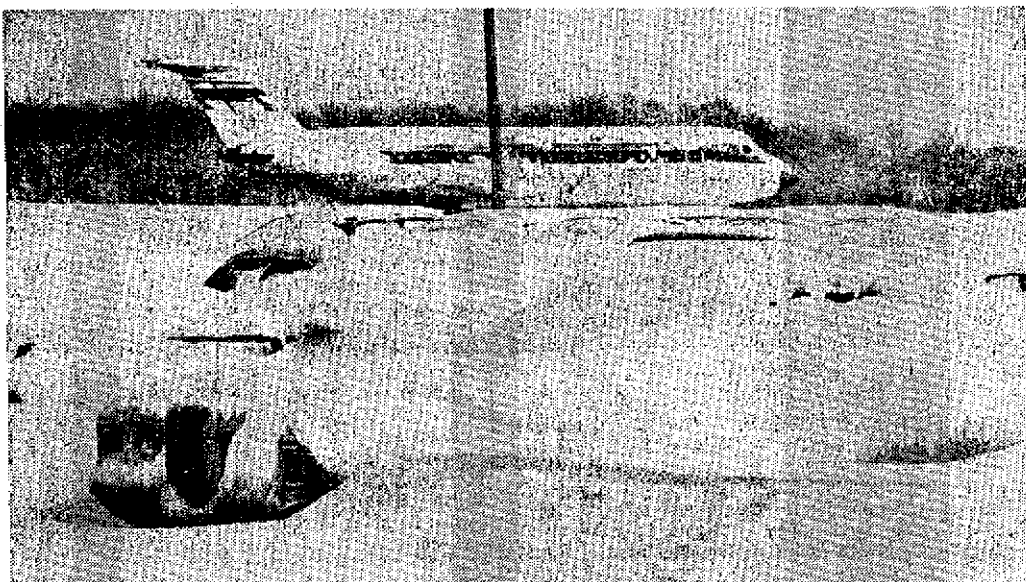

Hearings will be held Dec. 2 and Dec. 3 to determine if the temporary return-to-work orders should be made permanent.

The suits, which were prepared and coordinated by the Justice Department, claimed the United States would "suffer immediate and irreparable injury" unless the courts handed down temporary restraining orders halting the strike for 80 days.

Chief target of the suits was the International Longshoremen's Association.

Backing up the request of the Justice Department was a raft of affidavits submitted by federal departments attesting to the dangers facing the country if the ports do not reopen soon.

Paul W. McCracken, outgoing chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, summarized the affidavits with (Turn to Back Page, Col. 1)

Biggest request (23.9%) of Phase 2 Mail rate increase asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service, seeking to make up for a rate increase sidetracked during the freeze, told the Price Commission Friday it wanted to raise third class mail rates by 23.9 per cent.

It was by far the largest price increase requested by any firm since Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic stabilization program began two weeks ago.

The request, which must be reviewed by the seven-member commission before it can go into effect, would cover advertising circulars and other "occupant" type mail. First class and air mail rates would not be raised.

The Postal Service's request is nearly ten times larger than the 2.5 per cent economy-wide yardstick laid down by the commission for post-freeze price increases.

At the same time, the Commerce Department's composite index of leading economic indicators moved up 1.2 per cent in October, a sharp rise over the 0.2 per cent increase in September.

The index is considered a good barometer of future business trends and Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold Passer said the latest figures showed "a decisive up trend ... consistent with private forecasts of a vigorous expansion of the economy in 1972."

In its first denial of a request for a price increase, the Price Commission turned down a 1.8-per cent boost sought by the Bassett Furniture Co., Bassett, Va. The commission said the company had not supplied information on productivity with its application. The company said such figures were impossible to compute for the furniture industry.

The request by the Postal Service was one of 36 received Friday by the commission, including 13 from coal companies and four from steel firms. So far, 143 companies have asked to boost prices since the freeze ended Nov. 14.

The Postal Service filed its request under a rule which allows companies to seek increases that were announced before the freeze was imposed Aug. 15.

The present bulk rate for third class mail is $42 per 1,000 pieces. The Postal Service wants to raise this to $50 per 1,000.

John Daly, a spokesman for the Direct Mail Advertising Association, said the higher rates would force many small businessmen to stop using the mail to (Turn to Back Page, Col. 1)

SST revival seen for U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administrator John H. Shaffer Friday predicted that the United States will resurrect its supersonic transport program and have "a production model by 1982."

Shaffer said the nation is beginning to realize that it made a mistake when it allowed the $1.4-billion SST program to die earlier this year for lack of congressional appropriations.

In an interview, Shaffer said he felt that the growth of foreign aviation is scaling down the size of the American share of the market, and damaging this nation's economy through rising unemployment and falling sales in the aerospace market.

"A lot of people are beginning to realize that we didn't do the right thing" when Congress voted to scrap the 1,800-mile-an-hour American SST, Shaffer said.

The move left the market to the British-French Concorde and the Soviet TU 144 supersonic transports. Shaffer, who returned this week from a tour of the FAA's worldwide installations, said the French expected to sell three Concorde's, a smaller, and slower version of the defunct American version, to the Chinese Communists. Shaffer also said the Romanian delegation would arrive in the United States shortly in an attempt to work out an agreement for the purchase of several used American jetliners.

Romania needs planes for use on internal air routes as well as for air links to Communist China.

Shaffer said he was concerned by the surge of foreign manufacturers to capture a large share of the world market from American aerospace firms, who, in the case of the SST, do not have a product to keep them in competition.

Easy way out rejected by Angela

Angela Davis found Cuba inspiring, but she didn't seriously consider staying there.

"I feel we have to achieve in this country what the Cubans achieved in Cuba. I had to come back and work towards that and not take the easy way out."

Miss Davis makes those statements in an exclusive interview with prize-winning reporter Mary Neiswender. The interview will be published Sunday in your Independent, Press-Telegram.

High school survey

Alcohol, sex, Demos preferred

CHICAGO (UPI) — A survey of 23,000 high school student leaders showed they prefer alcohol to marijuana, Democrats and independent politics to Republicans and, while half of them thought sex before marriage was okay, 35 per cent thought it was not.

The survey was conducted by Merit Publishing Co. last summer and drew 23,000 responses from student leaders in 18,000 of the nation's public private and parochial high schools. The questions were complied by nine high school leaders at an April seminar in the Chicago area.

The survey showed that "drinking is a heck of a lot more prevalent than the use of drugs," according to Merit President Paul Krouse. Thirty-nine per cent of the respondents said they did not use hard liquor, but 78 per cent said they had never smoked pot and 90 per cent said they never used hard drugs.

Of the 24 per cent who said they tried marijuana, only six per cent said they used it more than once or twice. Sixty per cent opposed use of pot and 30 per cent approved it. Only 34 per cent said they never drank beer.

On politics, 34 per cent said they identified "most closely" with the Democrats and 34 per cent said they were independents. Only 20 per cent put themselves in the Republican column.

In a choice of presidential candidates, President Nixon lost to Sen. Edmund Muskie D-Me., 57 per cent to 28 per cent. In sample ballots listing Democratic Senators Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; George McGovern, D-S.D.; Muskie and Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., only Humphrey lost to the President.

On parents, 51 per cent said their parents understand them about half the time and 31 per cent said all the time. And 80 per cent thought their parents were "about right" on discipline.

The students said the things that made them most proud of the nation were the moon landing, the 18-year-old vote and the attack on pollution. They listed as top national priorities an end to the war in Southeast Asia, pollution control and the war on poverty.

Krouse said 80 per cent of the students surveyed were seniors and 20 per cent juniors. He said 96 per cent are college bound and 90 per cent have a B average or better.

Merit, located in Northfield, Ill., features student leaders in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

Midwest pelted by new storm

CHICAGO — The nation's northern midlands were being pelted with snow Friday while the Northeast had as much as 2 feet of snow to remind it of a Thanksgiving Day storm termed by the National Weather Service in New Hampshire as the worst in 20 years. In the far West, still another storm was lashing the seaboard of Washington and Oregon with wind and rain, and pushing snow inland to the northern Rocky Mountains.

The Midwest storm, centered over Iowa, spread snow from Nebraska through the Dakotas, northern Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin to Upper Michigan, and rain to the south as far as Arkansas. Sisseton, S. D., got a foot of snow, western Minnesota only a little less, and western Wisconsin several inches. Weather Service warnings said 4 inches more may fall in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Nightfall chill was expected to turn rain to snow farther south into Illinois.

The Northeast dug out of snow cover as deep as 2 feet as the storm that left it moved out over the ocean still flinging a mixture of rain and snow at eastern Maine. The storm area extended from the mountains of the Virginias northward and eastward to central New England. It forced uncounted thousands of travelers to spend Thanksgiving Day in their stranded cars or among hospitable strangers. Probably because of relatively mild temperatures, no directly storm-related deaths were reported.

Rupe denies Kent State role

RAVENNA, Ohio—Jerry Rupe, on trial for participation in the Kent State campus disorders of May, 1970, testified Friday he did not set fire to a campus ROTC building that burned to the ground the night of May 2. He also denied striking firemen who were hampered in fighting the blaze by antiwar demonstrators who flooded the campus after President Nixon announced a day earlier he was sending troops into Cambodia. After Rupe's testimony, the defense rested its case and final arguments were presented by both sides.

SAIGON — South Vietnamese forces looking for enemy bases pursued an elusive foe in eastern Cambodia Friday amid reports of a big North Vietnamese supply buildup on the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos. Informants said sensors planted along the 3,000-mile rail network are registering 150 to 200 truck movements a day, compared to only 10 daily during the monsoon season that ended last month. Road-building squads also are at work despite daily U.S. air strikes.

It would take 90 days for these supplies to reach three North Vietnamese divisions hiding in rubber plantation country along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon, meaning they cannot be resupplied until February. This could be one of the reasons why the enemy has avoided contact so far with 25,000-man South Vietnamese force maneuvering around Krek, a Cambodian town near the border.

It is known that two of the North Vietnamese divisions headquartered in the area, the 5th and 7th, used up a lot of food and ammunition in an abortive offensive in the border region last month. Hanoi's 9th Division has used up supplies in battling Cambodian troops closer to Phnom Penh, Cambodia's capital.

Nixon-Heath talk set

Combined News Services

President Nixon will meet Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain Dec. 20-21 in the resort islands of Bermuda as part of a series of consultations with allies prior to his journeys to Peking and Moscow, the Western White House in San Clemente announced Friday.

The session with Heath was scheduled for one week after Nixon's meeting in the Azores with French President Georges Pompidou.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said both pre-Christmas meetings on sunny islands in the Atlantic will be "strictly business."

In addition, informed sources said the President was expected to arrange a meeting with Premier Eisaku Sato of Japan in the mid-Pacific in late December or early January to discuss the China trip.

The President plans to announce by Wednesday the date for his trip to Peking which will symbolically end more than 20 years of icy hostility between the U.S. and China's Communist leaders.

Nixon said earlier he would visit Peking before May 1. He is scheduled to go to Moscow to meet Soviet leaders in the last half of May.

Bermuda is a self-governing British colony about 600 miles east of the North Carolina coast. Its seven main islands comprise about 20 square miles.

A conference with Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany is likely but no date has been set.

Nixon will be accompanied both to the Azores and to Bermuda by his national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Connally's presence suggests the talks will also cover the international monetary crisis touched off Aug. 15 when Nixon unilaterally suspended the convertibility of the dollar into gold.

The announcement of the Bermuda trip came on the second full day of Nixon's working holiday at his oceanside villa. The White House has not announced when he plans to return to Washington.

Nixon is scheduled to fly by helicopter to Palm Desert today to participate in dedication ceremonies for the $7.5 million Eisenhower Memorial Hospital.

Meany was admitted to the hospital Thursday after suffering chest pains.

Rubella cases said declining

ATLANTA (UPI) — Rubella, the mild childhood disease that causes complications in pregnancies and was blamed for thousands of birth defects six years ago, appears to be declining, the Center for Disease Control reported Friday.

The CDC said earlier patterns had suggested a peak of rubella, commonly known as German measles, in the early 1970s. However, no such rise has occurred and the number of cases actually decreased during the last year, the CDC said.

THERE WERE 44,050 cases reported during the past year, 20.4 per cent less than a year earlier, and 9.6 per cent less than the average reported for three years before rubella vaccine was licensed in 1969.

The decrease, the CDC said, was the first since rubella was added to the list of notifiable diseases in January, 1968.

Voluntary reporting by some states prior to 1966 suggested a cyclical pattern of high rubella activity every 6 to 9 years, the CDC said. The last epidemic occurred in 1964-65.

Between June 1, 1969 and Aug. 31, 1971, a total of 32,413,055 doses of rubella vaccine was distributed in the United States. The CDC said about 50 per cent of the entire "target population," children aged one to 12, have been vaccinated.

The center said evidence shows rubella "has been markedly reduced in areas that conducted effective vaccination programs compared with areas where vaccine usage has been less comprehensive."

Panama called drugs center

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has charged that "apathy, ignorance and collusion" by high Panamanian government officials has turned that country into one of the world's key centers of the illegal narcotics traffic.

"Panama is one of the most significant countries for the transshipment of narcotics drugs (heroin and cocaine) to the United States," according to a Justice Department report obtained Friday by UPI.

"It is clear that the Republic of Panama has not and is not applying sufficient attention to narcotic enforcement activities to achieve noticeable results," the report added. "This may be due to high level apathy, ignorance and/or collusion."

THE SIX-PAGE report specifically mentioned "the chief of air traffic control at Tocumen Airport," Panama's main international air terminal. This official, who was not identified, "utilized his official position to facilitate shipments of narcotic drugs through Panama," the report said.

The report was prepared Nov. 5 by the Bureau of

Disney World closes; parking lot filled up

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Walt Disney World closed its Magic Kingdom Friday, turning away hundreds of holiday visitors who sat hours in bumper to bumper traffic that clogged a superhighway for 30 miles.

"It was one heck of a mess," said Florida Highway Patrol dispatcher Harvey Gunn.

"Our parking lot just couldn't hold any more cars," Truman Myers, a Disney spokesman, said at noon Friday.

Traffic was reported at a standstill, backed up from the turnstile at the $400-million amusement center into three central Florida counties along Interstate 4.

Wreckers were called to clear three accidents stalled in the congestion.

There were no reports of serious injuries. "How can someone get hurt when motorists are creeping along at one-half mile an hour?" a trooper asked.

Drivers pulled out into shoulder lanes, creating more havoc. Police sent out pleas to use alternate routes.

The congestion spread into Orlando city limits on the east; and through Osceola and into Polk County on the west.

"There's never been anything before like this that I know of," said Gunn.

Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD) for the House subcommittee on the Panama Canal, headed by John M. Murphy, D-N.Y.

The subcommittee is scheduled to begin a series of hearings on the Canal Zone next week. Witnesses include the secretaries of State and Defense and the attorney general.

A spokesman for Murphy's office confirmed the existence of the report and said the subcommittee will deal in great detail with the narcotics problem as it affects Panama and the United States.

THE BNDD report said that "unless the Republic of Panama is sincerely willing to put forth the necessary effort to combat the traffic, Panama will continue to serve as a conduit through which vast amounts of illicit drugs are funneled en route to the United States."

The report said that during the past 12 months U.S. authorities have intercepted 614 pounds of heroin, in which came from Europe via Panama. "In one case, the son of a Panamanian ambassador and his bodyguard were arrested attempting to smuggle 156 pounds of heroin into John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York," the report noted.

"As South America is the origin of all the illicit cocaine in the United States, it is believed that the transshipment of cocaine through Panama may be even more significant than heroin," the BNDD report said.

Woman has more turkeys than guests

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Mrs. Ann Sprinkle of Bellefonte, Del., had an overabundance of turkeys for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Sprinkle bought a turkey this week and it seemed adequate for the Thanksgiving gathering of 10 she had planned.

Then it started to rain.

A bird, unaddressed but bearing greetings from real estate man Leon Welner, arrived at the Sprinkle home.

Mrs. Sprinkle called Welner and learned the turkey was meant for a former occupant of the house. She then telephoned the former occupant, who wished her a happy Thanksgiving and told her to keep the turkey.

Then another turkey arrived. It was from Welner, with a note thanking Mrs. Sprinkle for her phone call and her honesty.

Asian flu winter outbreak feared

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Center for Disease Control warned Friday that outbreaks of Asian or Hong Kong flu are likely this winter in America.

Although the CDC's first telephone survey of the states showed no significant activity yet, flu epidemics or outbreaks have already been reported in Europe and the Caribbean.

The CDC said the prediction arose because few cases of influenza were reported during the winter of 1970-71 and that generally, the flu bug is more prone to strike in communities and regions which recorded few, if any, cases last winter.

The CDC said its survey showed a slight increase in influenza-like illness in a few states and laboratory evidence of flu activity in sporadic cases.

Connecticut reported one isolation of the Asian flu virus and the District of Columbia recorded laboratory evidence of infection. The CDC said Georgia, Kentucky, Hawaii, Kansas, Montana and South Carolina noted some increase in flu-like illness. But it said there had been no specific laboratory confirmation in those states.

"Although the location and extent of outbreaks are difficult to foresee, regional influenza outbreaks appear more likely than nationwide involvement," the CDC said.

The CDC reported an outbreak of respiratory illness on Saipan, a United States trust territory in the Pacific, affecting 15,000 persons and with an attack rate of 60 per cent. One strain of flu was isolated in several patients. The illness appeared to affect children more frequently than adults, the CDC said.

The CDC said the World Health Organization (WHO) had been notified of widespread influenza activity in Eastern Europe. Romania reported widespread influenza-like illness in mid-September with a marked increase noted there since mid-October. Some 24 strains of a virus similar to the Hong Kong version were isolated.

Epidemic influenza in Bulgaria was noted in early October in Sofia and 55 strains of Hong Kong flu were identified. Widespread illness was also reported in early November in Hungary where the Hong Kong strain was isolated, the CDC said.

Influenza activity was also reported in Western Europe in The Netherlands and Spain where sporadic cases of Hong Kong flu were identified.

Hong Kong flu was documented in Trinidad and Tobago, but that epidemic was reported on the decline in late October, the CDC said.

Policing ban on risky playthings

Youthful sleuths purge toys

FLINT, Mich. (UPI) — Thousands of dangerous toys were removed from store shelves here in the past week because of 60 young volunteer investigators, Genesee County Prosecutor Robert F. Leonard said Friday.

All the toys had been banned by the Bureau of Product Safety of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Leonard said.

Some toys included

sharp wires, other faulty squeakers that could come off and choke a child, he said. Others had sharp prongs, pins, and stuffed animals had eyes that could come off and be swallowed, he said.

The 60 investigators — students from the University of Michigan Flint branch, General Motors Institute and Genesee County Community College serving on a special Consumers Protection Council — entered stores throughout the county in search of dangerous toys, Leonard said.

"In every case we met with quick cooperation and in most cases amazement that such an order existed," Leonard said. "The main problem in the dangerous toy situation is the lack of communication between the federal government and the retailers."

"They ban the toys, but don't tell the people who sell them," he said. "We felt after checking the situation, that it was our duty to get to the point of sale and ask that they be removed from the shelves."

It was the second assignment for the unpaid volunteers. Leonard said they had previously checked more than 300 stores and succeeded in getting mislabeled vitamin C pills that would have been dangerous to persons with heart conditions or those on salt-free or low-salt diets removed from the shelves.

Santas gather for briefing on 'Ho! Ho!' conduct code

NEW YORK (UPI) — Forty white-bearded, red-suited Santa Clauses gathered in Times Square Friday to learn the "do's and don'ts" of the St. Nicholas code of conduct.

The Santas were briefed by Col. Walter Nash of the Volunteers of America before taking their stations in front of midtown department stores to collect donations from Christmas shoppers.

The "do's" included being patient with young children, answering all questions courteously and wishing all passersby a "Merry Christmas." Among the "don'ts" were drinking, smoking and "becoming overly familiar with children or adults."

It was the start of the 75th annual Christmas charity drive of the VOA, which runs shelters on skid rows of major American cities and operates day care centers and homes for the aged.

The Santas, some of whom were derelicts rehabilitated in VOA programs, will collect donations throughout the Christmas season.

But one member of the corps gave up on the code even before the opening ceremonies were ended. As the other Santas paraded for news photographers, ringing their bells and shouting, "Ho, Ho, Ho," he approached a reporter and, heard slightly askew, whispered:

"Got a cigarette?"

U.S. recalls lot of French cheese

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New York importer has recalled 200 cases of French-produced Camembert cheese suspected of causing stomach ailments, the Food and Drug Administration said Friday.

The FDA said Anco Cheese Imports Inc. issued the recall order after being notified by the FDA that "the cheese was implicated in three different outbreaks of gastrointestinal illness."

The FDA said it has samples of the product under bacteriological examination.

The recall applies to eight-ounce packages of Le Roitelet brand cheese. The packages are stamped on the bottom with the number 3189.

The packages had been shipped to 15 consignees in New York, seven in Connecticut, six in New Jersey, three in Massachusetts and one each in Southfield, Mich., Denver, Atlanta, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Seattle, Cheverly, Md., Wayne Pa., and Washington.

The cheese is sold primarily through specialty shops.

The labels say, "Camembert Soft Ripened Cheese Le Roitelet, Manufactured by S.A.F.R., 44 R. Louis Blanc, Paris, France. Fromage Camembert Cheese."

The FDA recommended that consumers not eat cheese from the suspect batch and said the packages should be returned to the stores where purchased.

Northwest electric power crisis feared this winter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission said Friday there is an adequate reserve of electric power for winter's peak loads, in most sections of the country, but some plants are low on fuel, and a severe winter could cause a crisis in the Pacific Northwest.

The power crisis could be worse than originally projected, the FPC said, because its report, based on statistics gathered in August, did not take into account the effects of the coal strike or a recent court ruling requiring the Atomic Energy Commission to review the environmental effects of numerous atomic plants.

The commission noted a general improvement in generating capacity in all of the six general regions of the country except the East Central, which nonetheless maintained an adequate winter reserve.

Winter weather produces the greatest demand on power companies in most of the country when heating systems are in constant operation.

The FPC measures reserves in terms of the amount of generating capacity compared with the estimated peak winter load. The Northeast region, for example, has a reserve of 29.5 per cent, meaning it could generate 29.5 per cent more electricity than its expected peak need. The extra reserve is needed to compensate for equipment breakdowns and errors in computing demand.

Reserves for other regions are: East Central 21.1 per cent, Southeast 18.6 per cent, West Central 27.8 per cent, South Central 64.8 per cent, and West 19.2 per cent. The overall figure for the country, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, was 27.2 per cent. Individual power systems within these regions may have inadequate reserves, but most systems are hooked into power grids that allow them to automatically draw current from other nearby systems.

The commission said it was not likely there would be a repeat of the 1965 power blackout in the East. The New York power pool has a reserve of 28.8 per cent, "a more than adequate reserve for the 1971-72 winter peak despite the limited interconnection facilities with adjacent systems and the company's inability to bring new base load generating capacity into service."

The picture is not so bright in the Pacific Northwest. The FPC said the Northwest "is considered a critical area" during the winter. It said the Bonneville Power Administration would not have enough capacity to meet peak loads and would have to borrow power from other systems.

The FPC said the shortage of reserves "could precipitate a serious electric power emergency if severe winter conditions should be experienced or major interconnections to the Pacific Southwest should be disrupted at a time of need."

Fueled by dock strike

Foreign trade deficit hits all-time high

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Effects of the prolonged dock strikes were a major contributing factor to the record $2.1-billion trade deficit announced Friday by the federal government. The figures do not necessarily mean a failure of U.S. efforts to counter the trade imbalance.

Some observers believe that President Nixon's move for a court-ordered halt to the longshoremen's strike on the East and Gulf coasts is due to the trade figures, which showed the grim test deficit since World War II.

Much of America's exports are bulk products — grain to Europe, for instance, and coal to Japan. Such heavy low-value exports must go by ship. With the East and Gulf coasts strike on since Oct. 1, the flow of these dollar-earning goods has been cut off.

But this is not true of imports into this country. America buys such high value goods as radios and television receivers from Japan, cameras from Japan and Germany, gloves from Italy. Such low-bulk products can be brought in by air cargo and the import figures show they were imported that way. So America can import the goods she wants, by air, but cannot export the bulk goods which must go by ship.

The shipping strike is not the only reason for the balance of trade deficit, of course. The same factors which brought about the Aug. 15 efforts to reduce imports are still effective.

Even though the dollar has been effectively devalued, making United States goods cheaper overseas, the devaluation has not been enough to turn around the balance of trade. United States authorities say they must increase their trade by $13 billion to correct the imbalance. Instead, this year, the deficit has been increasing.

ANALYSIS

The seasonally adjusted October figures were $2.71 billion in exported goods against $5.53 billion in imports.

Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said East Coast shippers exported heavily in September in anticipation of the walkout by longshoremen from Maine to Texas. This was reflected, he said, in a $265 million trade surplus in September.

On the West Coast, where dock workers have returned to their jobs after a three-month walkout, Passer said there were so many ships waiting to be unloaded that exports were dramatically limited.

Pacific ports tend to carry more U.S. import trade than exports anyway, he said.

Another factor, he said, was an increase in the importation of crude oil, natural gas and iron ore, which was not affected by the coastal tieups.

Other figures released on U.S. trade show that foreign exporters continued to believe they can sell their goods at a profit in the United States despite the surcharge.

"October collections of $112 million indicate that perhaps two-thirds of that month's dutiable imports were covered by the surcharge," Passer said in a statement.

For the first 10 months of 1971, the United States has recorded a trade deficit of $1.5 billion, compared to a $2.6 billion surplus for the comparable period in 1970.

During the same period U.S. exports have increased 3 per cent while imports have gone up 15 per cent.

The Commerce Department began compiling seasonally adjusted figures on international trade in 1948. The previous record deficit was $406 million in February 1969, during an earlier dock strike.

In addition to the resort to court action on the dock strike to get exports moving again, the government has shown its concern over trade by an attempt to get trade as well as money discussed at next week's meeting of the 10 major industrial countries, the so-called "Group of 10".

Finance ministers of these are meeting in a long-scheduled session in Rome beginning Tuesday. Unexpectedly on Friday, the United States proposed that trade and farm ministers attend as well as the finance officials.

This indicated that the United States is attempting to push a solution to the trade imbalance. It has shown no great anxiety to get talks moving on a new schedule of money values with other countries, but the effort to bring in trade next week shows worry about this situation.

The efforts, however, met a certain coolness from the European industrialized countries. Several of them said they wanted to settle the money question before they turned to trade talks.

Russians, U.S. take first step to trade accord

By STEPHENS BROENING

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans has been talking trade with the Russians as a first step toward a possible Soviet-American economic agreement that would crown President

ANALYSIS

Nixon's state visit to the Soviet Union next May.

This possibility became apparent Friday as more details of Stans' discussions with Soviet officials became available. Informed sources reported the talks were progressing to the satisfaction of both sides.

As the first secretary of commerce ever to visit Soviet Russia, Stans officially is charged with exploring the possibilities of developing trade and economic cooperation with the Russians.

And at the end of a week, one source could describe what he said was a strong feeling of "optimism and expectation on both sides."

OTHER SOURCES said the two sides were talking in terms of a tenfold increase in their trade. That would mean a billion dollar annual bilateral trade turnover by the mid-1970s pushing the United States to the head of the line as Russia's main capitalist trading partner.

It was also learned that Nixon administration officials were looking forward to even further expansion of trade so that bilateral commerce would reach a level of $5 billion by the end of the decade. The Soviet Union's entire trade with the capitalist world was $5.17 billion last year.

There were several signs that a Soviet-American economic agreement formalizing these developments was under consideration, and that the time for its unveiling would be the Nixon visit.

To start with, the Russians have shown a passion in their diplomatic dealings for putting things in writing. In the past year they have gotten the signatures of Egypt and India on treaties of friendship, and they unsuccessfully tried to obtain those of Yugoslavia and France.

Secondly, informants said the Stans mission had been accumulating the kind of data that could go into a trade agreement with the Russians.

THEY SAID the Russians had suggested that at some point they would like any final understanding to be formalized, not necessarily in a trade treaty, but in a protocol or joint declaration that would serve the same purpose.

According to one source's timetable, Stans will report to the President on the broad possibilities of expanding trade, and a new followup mission early next year will negotiate details covering credits, trade levels, terms of trade and goods to be traded. Only then will a draft agreement be possible.

The choice of the Nixon visit as the time for concluding the agreement — whatever its form — makes diplomatic sense. Both sides will want some tangible evidence that the visit — the first to Russia by an American president in office has been a success.

The area of Soviet-American relations most susceptible to progress is the long-neglected real of trade and investment, diplomats say.

Lawmen just guessing

Area combed for hijacker

WOODLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Deputies went from house to house in this western Washington area Friday trying to turn up a lead to the hijacker who commandeered an airliner and escaped by parachute with 10,000 $20 bills stuffed in a white cloth bag.

Other searchers slogged through fog and rain in the muddy foothills of the Cascade Mountains.

But there was no trace of the swarthy middle-aged man dressed in black who hijacked the jetliner Wednesday by brandishing a "bomb," collected $200,000 ransom in $20 bills and parachuted into the night somewhere between Seattle and Reno.

Law officers conducting the house-to-house investigation said they were not checking every residence, but picking them at random and asking residents if they heard anything unusual.

"IT IS A terrible routine and seems endless," said Deputy Len Holzman.

Meanwhile, crew members of the hijacked jetliner disclosed that the $200,000 ransom the hijacker secured at Seattle-Tacoma Airport Wednesday night was delivered in a white cloth bag, like a laundry bag, without a drawstring or fastener.

They said they did not know how he managed to parachute without losing the bulky bundle.

In Seattle, the Air Force revealed that as many as eight military planes were shadowing the hijacked jet at various times on its flight to Reno, but that none of the pilots saw the hijacker parachute.

FIVE MILITARY jets, including F106 fighter-interceptors trailed the plane over northern parts of the route, and three in the south, the Air Force said.

The ground and air search started near Woodland Friday but FBI officials said the site was selected on "pure conjecture" since that was the last time four crew members who remained on the commandeered Northwest Airlines 727 jet had communicated with the hijacker.

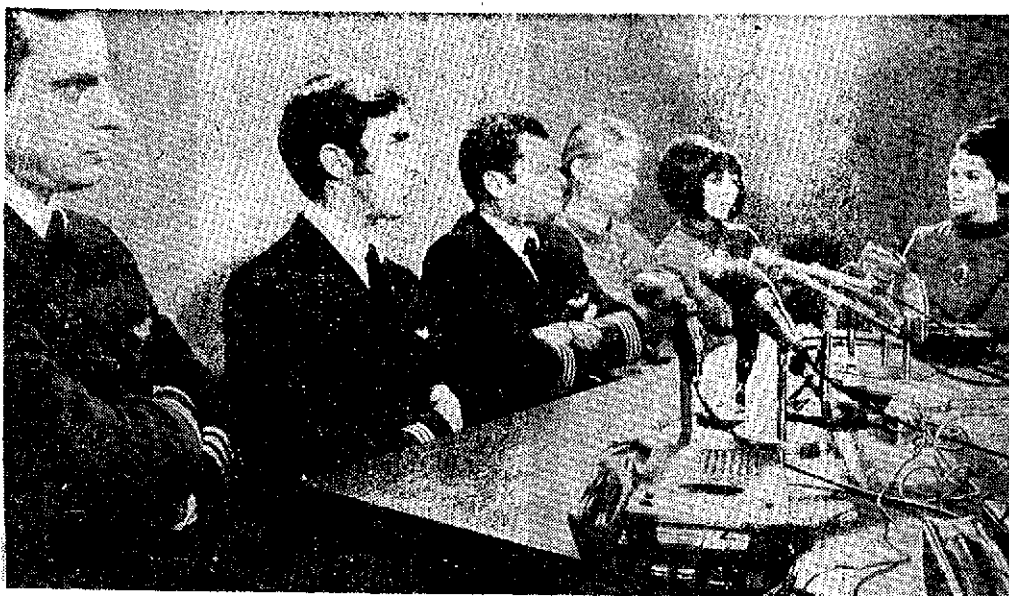

They spent the rest of the trip to Reno locked in the forward cabin.

The FBI said the hijacker could have plunged out into the night anywhere in a huge area along the plane's flight path from Woodland down Oregon's Willamette Valley to Medford, Ore., and then to Reno — a distance of 500 miles.

IT WAS not known exactly when he jumped, only that it was some time between 7:37 p.m. when the plane left Seattle, and 11 p.m., when it arrived at Reno.

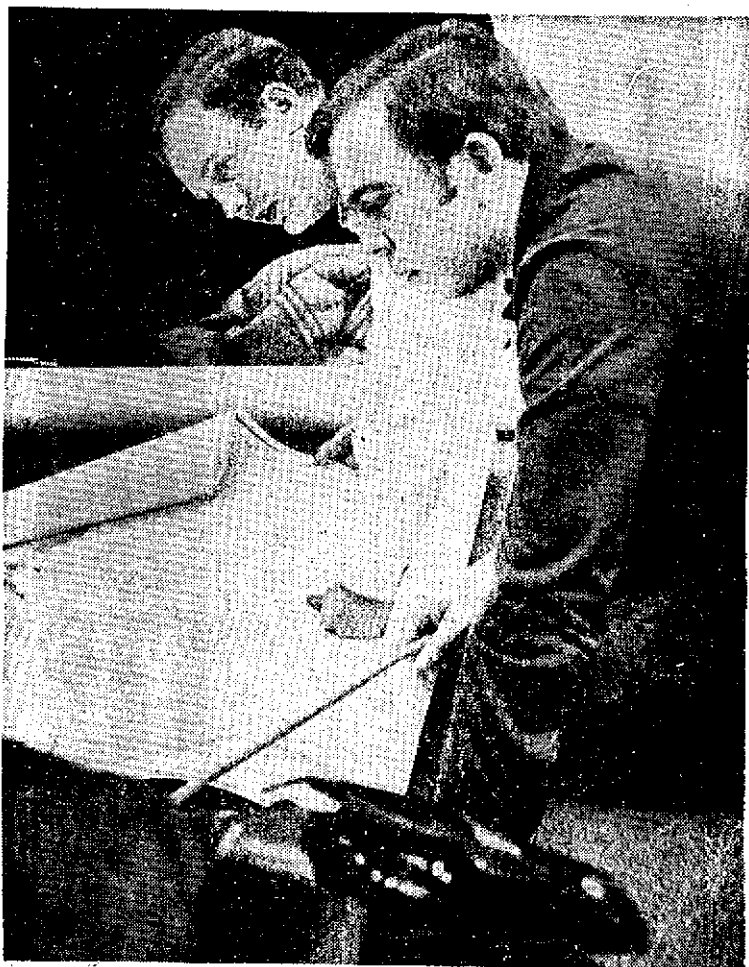

The airliner flew at very low speeds — around 200 mph — and at about 10,000 feet altitudes, officials said. The altitude may have varied considerably because of mountains along the path, including 14,162-foot Mt. Shasta, which lies almost directly between Medford and Reno.

At Northwest's Minneapolis, headquarters, the airline broke its two-day si-

are the plane's Second Officer H. Henderson, Rataczak, Pilot William Scott and stewardesses Tina Mucklow, Florence Shaffner and Alice Hancock.

lence on the incident at a news conference in which pilot William Scott disclosed the crew was as surprised as anyone when the plane landed at Reno and the hijacker was gone.

"I stepped into the cabin and asked if there were any more instructions, but there was no answer," Scott said. "I looked around the curtain and determined he was not there."

Stewardess Tina Mucklow, 22, of Richfield Minn., said she sat with the hijacker for some time on his orders but was ordered forward with the rest of the crew on the way to Reno, after the ransom was paid in Seattle.

"He was not nervous," she said. "He seemed rather nice, and he was never cruel or nasty."

"Right after the takeoff he said, 'go to the cabin, pull the curtain, and don't come back,'" Miss Mucklow said.

Miss Mucklow, Scott and flight officers William Rataczak and H. E. Anderson stayed on the plane to Reno after 36 passengers and two other stewardesses, Florence Shaffner and Alice Hancock, were allowed to get off at Seattle.

Miss Shaffner, 23, said the hijacking began a few minutes out of Portland, when the man handed her a note.

She put it in her purse, she said, because she thought he was "hustling me" for a date and the hijacker had to call her over and insist that she look at it.

It read, "I have a bomb."

On the way to the Seattle airport, she said, "he told me to sit by him, and I did."

The search centered around the tiny community of View, Wash. Headquarters were set up nearby at Woodland.

"Actually, he could be anywhere between there and Reno," said J. Earl Milnes, FBI special agent in charge at Seattle.

About 40 law officers took part in the ground search over an area 15 to 20 miles long.

Helicopters were also sent up but sheriff's officers said they were hampered by an 800-foot cloud cover.

The "bomb," a device with red cylinders and wires, was missing when the plane landed at Reno, along with the hijacker, the money, and two parachutes.

One of the parachutes would not have worked, it was disclosed Friday. Linn Emrick, a sport parachutist who supplied it, said he inadvertently picked a "ground training" chute when airport officials asked him for one to supplement two chutes furnished by the Air Force.

The other supplementary chute was supplied by Renton Aviation. Its manufacture said it would "work fine."

These were the two the hijacker apparently took, but officials said they doubted he actually used the non-functioning chute since it was a chest-pack and an experienced jumper would rely on Renton's backpack chute first. There was even some question as to whether the Renton chute harness would accommodate a second, chest-pack, device.

2nd headless body; fear maniac loose

HOUSTON (UPI) — The bodies of four teen-aged girls — two of them be-headed and two drowned — have been found during the last two weeks and the county sheriff said Friday all four may have been killed by the same homicidal maniac.

The second headless torso was found and identified Friday.

"There's no doubt about it, we're dealing with a homicidal maniac, who may be the same person or persons that killed the two Galveston girls," Harris County Sheriff C.V. "Buster" Kern said.

The headless remains of Colette Anise Wilson, 13, were found Friday near a reservoir less than 200-feet from where the decapitated body of Gloria Gonzalez, 19, was found Tuesday.

The Wilson girl was identified by her father, a dentist, who said he did all the dental work on the teeth in her lower jaw. He also said he recognized a ring found on the body.

She disappeared June 17 while waiting for her mother to pick her up following band practice. Her band instructor dropped her off at a rural highway intersection where she was supposed to meet her mother.

A young man hunting for buried treasure Tuesday found the torso of the Gonzalez girl with a chord tied around its neck. The girl was reported missing Oct. 28. Her head and a tooth were found 50 feet away.

But investigators said the tooth did not match the other teeth in the skull so they searched for a second victim. The only part of the Wilson girl's head that was found was the lower jaw. Authorities figured animals "carried off the rest of the skull."

The bodies of two 15-year-old girls were found floating last week in a bayou south of Houston. The girls, Debbie Ackerman and Marie Johnson, were nude from the waist down, their hands and their feet were bound and they were both shot through the head.

Officials say they planned to storm Rahway Prison

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — State officials said Friday they had decided to storm Thanksgiving morning to free hostages held by rebellious inmates but the plan was put aside in hopes negotiations could end the insurrection.

Col. David B. Kelly, state commissioner of institutions and agencies, said the recommendation to retake the prison by force came from Kelly, with Kott's concurrence.

BUT KOTT, the state's top corrections official, said he changed his mind because of the possible cost in lives and the hope negotiations could end the insurrection.

The insurrection ended peacefully Thanksgiving night when the inmates freed the hostages under an agreement in which state officials promised no reprisals.

Kelly said he agreed with a later decision by Kott to delay the maneuver. Both men said that at no time did Gov. William T. Cahill attempt to interfere with their decisions. Kott said the governor "suggested" they not make the assault.

"I want to make this clear," Kott said. "At no time did the governor not order us to go in." Spokesmen for Cahill said, however, they felt the governor would have made the final decision on an assault.

The commissioner said the inmates were warned over the prison public address system that "there was a real possibility" of a state police assault.

KELLY said he thought the uprising was "spontaneous and not that well organized." But he said the inmates became better organized as time passed.

Although the decision was to retake the prison by force, Kelly said "the time of the assault had not been decided."

Kott said that after he approved Kelly's recommendation, he had other conversations with corrections officials at the prison, with members of Cahill's staff, with the governor himself.

The inmates themselves did not know exactly what they wanted, Kott said. "Their demands were not finalized and we thought it was possible to achieve what we wanted through negotiations."

Kelly and Kott said Cahill was concerned about the lives of hostages, including prison superintendent U. Samuel Vukceovich, the troopers who would have made the assault, the correction officers, and the inmates themselves.

Bizarre plot to kidnap Army general, steal payroll told

FT. STEWART, Ga. (UPI) — A bizarre plot allegedly involving military police to "forcibly seize" the commanding general and other officers at this East Georgia Army base as hostage for part of the November payroll was disclosed Friday.

Brig. Gen. Eugene M. Lynch, the commanding general, told a news conference the plot involved "a small group of personnel assigned to the military police," believed to have already stolen more than $20,000.

Lynch said no charges had been brought, but a soldier hospitalized at Punta Gorda, Fla., after a shootout with police there Monday was "a key figure in the fraud and conspiracy plot." Robert Earl Ward, 32, was shot five times when he fired on officers who attempted to charge him with defrauding the government.

Lynch told newsmen both he and his deputy, Col. J. W. Harrington, were subjects of the alleged kidnaping plot which was believed to have been planned for a staff meeting Friday, but which never came off.

A base spokesman said the amount of cash which might be available at the time was "impossible" to determine because the Army mails some checks directly to officers. Ft. Stewart, located near Savannah, Ga., has about 3,500 officers and men and their payroll for two weeks would be about $1 million.

Lynch said the investigation had been underway "for some time concerning suspected criminal activities involving military personnel" and as a result, special security precautions were taken this week.

"The evidence available at this point in time indicates that a small group of personnel assigned to the military police were involved in repeated instances of larceny and fraud and falsification of finance documents," Lynch said. "While the exact amount is yet to be ascertained, it appears that the magnitude of such thefts will exceed $20,000."

Big pay hikes OK'd for building trades

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel appointed by President Nixon to hold down wage increases in the construction industry approved Friday scores of new contracts far exceeding the 5.5 per cent annual increase the Pay Board has set as a guideline.

The Construction Industry Stabilization Committee made public 48 contracts it has okayed for bricklayers, plumbers, painters, sheet metal workers and pipe layers across the country.

It was the first set of approvals disclosed since the wage-price freeze ended Nov. 14.

Typical was a contract won by Glaziers Local 260 of Great Falls, Mont., which will pay a 16 per cent increase over a year's contract. The glaziers now earn $5.11 an hour.

The Pay Board gave the stabilization committee responsibility for approval or disapproval of the construction contracts because the committee has been reviewing such contracts since last March.

A committee source said the contracts were negotiated before the wage-price freeze Aug. 15 and therefore will pay retroactively.

He said the committee apparently has not decided what to do about contracts negotiated during the freeze. The Pay Board has set a general policy of refusing retroactive pay boosts for those contracts, but it has said there can be a few exceptions.

A few examples of contracts approved by the committee:

— A 20 per cent increase over a year for Sheet Metal Workers Local 45 which covers 30 counties in Central Iowa and is headquartered in Des Moines.

— A 24 per cent increase over 11.5 months for Plasterers Local 23 in Wichita, Kan.

— A 6 per cent hike from $7.30 to $7.75 hourly for Bricklayers Locals 23, 33, 34, 36, 38, and 39 in the Upper Peninsula region of Michigan.

Most of the contracts cost employers more than 10 per cent annually in increased wages and benefits.

In some cases, the committee said it had ordered contracts renegotiated, then later approved the new agreement.

Ford will cut 3,200 employees

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. announced Friday it is laying off 3,200 employees at its Dearborn assembly plant all of next week because of dwindling sales of the Ford Mustang and Mercury Cougar.

Chrysler Corp. said it was temporarily laying off between 250 and 300 hourly rated and salaried employees at its tank plant in suburban Warren due to a strike by a supplier.

Ford's new car sales have been running at record rates since the start of the 1972 model year, but the sport compact models have declined in popularity. The Dearborn assembly plant produces only the Mustang and Cougar.

The Chrysler layoffs stemmed from a nine-week-old strike at the Blaw-Knox Co., of Pittsburgh, which makes hull and turret castings for the tank plant, a Chrysler spokesman said. The tank plant employs 800 persons half by the end of next year.

Rumsfeld said it was misleading to assume from the size of the postal request and an estimated 15 per cent wage increase for coal miners approved by the Pay Board that the Phase 2 guidelines were being ignored from the start.

Of 64 requests by large companies for price increases analyzed by the commission staff, the increases average 3.3 per cent, slightly over the 2.5 per cent guideline, Rumsfeld said. The six price increases approved by the commission average 4.6 per cent, he added, and one of these granted to the Chrysler Corp. will not take full effect because of competitive factors in the industry.

He added: "I'm encouraged that what we've seen so far does not pose a threat to reaching our goal" of cutting inflation in this concluding statement in his own affidavit.

"The long-term impairment of the U.S. trade position resulting from continuation of the dock strike will weaken the ability of the United States to pursue its national security objectives in the world and to maintain prosperity in the domestic economy. Accordingly, it is my belief that continuation of the strike would endanger the national health and safety."

Although longshoremen have continued to handle cargo moved through military ports during the 57-day-old strike, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said the Pentagon was still feeling the effects of the strike because many private ships are no longer available to move certain military shipments.

"I believe that since the United States merchant marine is essential to the movement of defense cargo, in support of this nation's and its allies' military commitments in Europe, Southeast Asia and elsewhere in the world, the national defense is jeopardized by having a substantial segment of the U.S. merchant marine rendered inoperative by continuing the current suspension of cargo handling and consequent immobilization of vessels at East and Gulf Coast ports," Laird declared.

Acting Commerce Secretary James T. Lynn dwelt on the effects a prolonged strike would have on the domestic economy and American foreign trade.

The national economy said Lynn, depended to a large extent on the availability of transportation and contended that the longshoremen's strike had impaired that stability.

Merchants, farmers, shippers, sugar refiners and others were hard hit by the walkout, maintained Lynn, while the economy missed the wages that longshoremen have lost as a result of the strike between Oct. 1 and Nov. 22, said Lynn, the strikers, their families and their local economies have lost nearly $49 million. Others affected by the strike were also losing pay, he said.

Lynn and McCracken hammered away at the impact of the strike on the U.S. balance of payments.

Lynn also warned that if the strike continues much longer foreigners who have temporarily shifted to buying from non-U.S. sources may be permanently lost as a market for American exports.

Under normal procedure the federal courts could order members of the ILA back to work on Monday after holding show cause hearings.

Longshoremen returned to work earlier in seven southern ports under temporary restraining orders issued by federal courts. The ports were in Tampa and Jacksonville, Fla., Wilmington and Morehead City, N.C., Charleston and Georgetown, S.C., and Savannah, Ga.

as an endorsement, but would continue to seek the nomination of the Democratic Party.

RASKIN said he favored McCarthy because he felt that the former Minnesota senator or Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., could pick up 10 to 15 per cent of the popular vote in 1972, but that Spock could get only about 5 per cent.

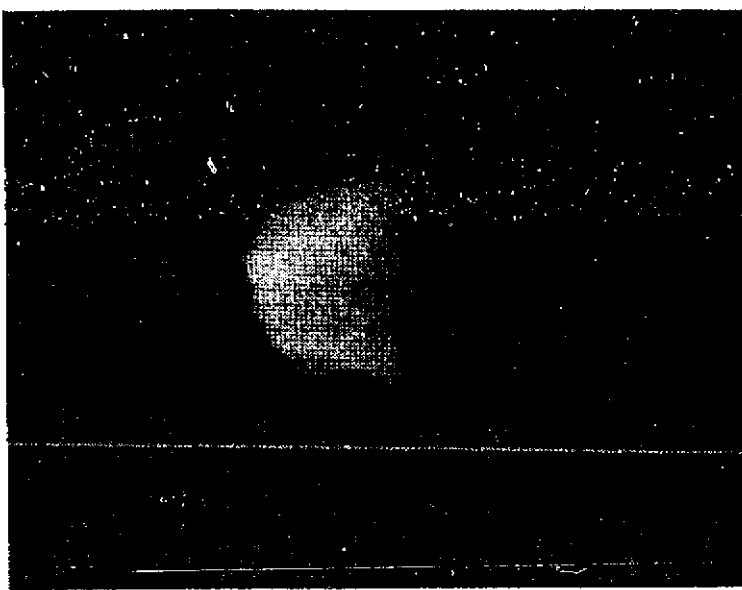

Spock said he had talked with Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., and she said she would consider the nomination of the coalition if she failed to get that of the Democrats.

Delegates indicated they were interested in a candidate who would work full-time as a fourth-party nominee and not accept the title to complement his status with one of the established parties.

The convention may decide it does not want to nominate a real candidate, but just a stand-in who could be replaced with someone else, possibly McCarthy, after the Democratic National Convention.

C. T. Weber, convention organizer and vice chairman of the California Peace and Freedom Party, had said before the convention opened that he felt Spock might be used as a stand-in.

MARINER 9 TOOK this photograph of the Martian moon Deimos Friday from a distance of 5,300 miles and transmitted it to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, via the Deep Space Station in Spain. The moon is estimated at 5½ miles high and 7½ miles across, requiring extreme accuracy in aiming the spacecraft's narrow-angle camera to capture the picture.

Mariner sends back closeup of Mars moon

PASADENA (AP) — Mariner 9 sent back a historic closeup photograph of the Martian moon, Deimos, Friday, picturing an irregular object with a dark smudge scientists said almost certainly was a surface feature.

The experts set to work at once studying the photograph for clues to Deimos' origin and perhaps a better understanding of the origin of Mars and the solar system.

"THIS is a historic first — the first time man has ever seen the disc of Deimos," said Dr. Bradford Smith of New Mexico State University after the first photograph was transmitted to the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

Deimos appeared as a lumpy half disc, a little larger than a quarter on television monitors at JPL. The picture was snapped by a telephoto camera aboard Mariner 9 from 5,300 miles away. Mariner 9 has been orbiting Mars twice each day since it was rocketed into orbit Nov. 13.

Smith said it was too early to tell what the "dusky marketing" on Deimos might be.

"We are not sure what we are seeing on the surface at this point, but we're hopeful the computer enhancement will bring out more details," he said.

Mariner 9 photographs are scanned by computers at JPL that heighten contrast and often bring out hidden detail. It no doubt will take scientists several weeks to understand all they are seeing in photographs.

BUT SMITH speculated that the marking might be either a topographic feature, such as a hill or crater casting a shadow, or a zone where materials of different chemical composition meet.

Deimos is about five miles in diameter, astronomers estimate, and orbits Mars about 12,000 miles from the planet's surface.

It has a companion, Phobos, which is about 10 miles in diameter and orbits Mars about 3,700 miles from the surface.

Earth's moon is slightly more than 2,000 miles in diameter and an average of about 239,000 miles away.

Martian moons were discovered by an astronomer at the U.S. Naval Observatory in 1877 but through even the most powerful earth telescopes, they've never appeared larger than a pinpoint of light.

Phobos was photographed from 79,000 miles by Mariner 6 and 7 in 1969. It appeared as a potato-shaped object but was too far away to see surface detail.

Deimos appeared to be somewhat oval-shaped and Smith said that its irregular appearance had been expected.

Mars and other large objects in the solar system are globe-shaped because strong gravitational forces push them into that shape. But the tiny moons, with much smaller gravity fields, can assume other shapes.

SCIENTISTS hope studying the two moons will give them clues to their origin and a better understanding of how Mars and the solar system evolved. The experts speculate Deimos and Phobos might be asteroids captured by Martian gravity or chunks of primordial rock left over from the creation of Mars.

Scientists hope for an even better look Saturday at Phobos. Mariner 9 will pass within 4,200 miles of Phobos, and ground controllers will attempt to photograph it because the spacecraft will be a thousand miles closer and Phobos is about twice as large as Deimos.

TV stolen

China, Soviet trade insults

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Communist China lashed out at the Soviet Union Friday, accusing the Russians of "social-imperialism" and of encouraging "India, to launch 'bare-faced aggression against Pakistan'."

Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua addressed the 131-nation General Assembly shortly after the United States had joined Peking in urging that a Soviet plan for a world disarmament conference be shelved.

are not worth refuting," Chiao asserted. "Who, after all, is singing a duet with U.S. imperialism?"

HE SAID Soviet forces were stationed in Mongolia, to the north of China, while the United States maintains military bases in Japan.

"Is this not a kind of duet?" he asked.

Chiao said China has had long experience with Soviet chauvinism and social-imperialism.

"The Chinese people do not buy such stuff of yours," he added. "Your baton no longer works. The days are gone when the superpowers could dominate the world."

Chiao said he would not participate in the voting on the Soviet proposal "and will assume no obligation as a result of the voting."

Ambassador Christopher H. Phillips told the assembly the question of a world arms conference should be approached "in a deliberate and cautious manner" and that a further exchange of views is needed before a decision is taken.

HE EXPRESSED doubts about the possible results of discussions in a worldwide forum, as well as the need for additional machinery. He quoted Secretary of State William P. Rogers as saying grandiose schemes "tend to generate many words and few results."

Jury out in Ohta mass killing trial

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — John Linley Frazier sat reading George Orwell's "1984" Friday as a judge instructed jurors and then sent them out to deliberate Frazier's guilt or innocence in the murder of wealthy eye surgeon Dr. Victor Ohta and four others.

Superior Court Judge Charles S. Franich told the eight women and four men jurors they could return any one of five different verdicts in each of the five slayings—innocent, guilty of murder in the first degree, guilty of murder in the second degree, guilty of voluntary manslaughter or guilty of involuntary manslaughter.

Throughout Franich's 45-minute presentation, the bearded Frazier sat reading the book facing a small court of spectators in the court. He did not look at either the judge or jury.

Frazier, 25, has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to the Oct. 19, 1970 murders of Ohta, his wife, two sons and secretary in the family's $250,000 hilltop mansion near Santa Cruz.

After deliberating five hours and 45 minutes Friday, the jury was dismissed for the night and taken to a motel.

Judge Franich told them to resume deliberations at 9:30 a.m. today.

Liberals convene—Spock mentioned for presidency

DALLAS (UPI) — Baby doctor - activist Benjamin Spock may emerge as the presidential nominee of a group of liberal parties that are considering hoisting a single banner in 1972.

The mention of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who is considering a rerun of his 1968 presidential campaign, brought groans from an audience of some 200 persons Thursday night at the opening session of "the coalition" convention.

Marcus Raskin, director of Washington's Institute for Policy Studies and a liberal polemicist, said McCarthy has said he would consider taking a nomination of the groups as an endorsement, but would continue to seek the nomination of the Democratic Party.

RASKIN said he favored McCarthy because he felt that the former Minnesota senator or Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., could pick up 10 to 15 per cent of the popular vote in 1972, but that Spock could get only about 5 per cent.

Spock said he had talked with Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., and she said she would consider the nomination of the coalition if she failed to get that of the Democrats.

L.B. fights telephone rate hike

The City of Long Beach, through its Bureau of Franchises, petitioned the State Public Utilities Commission Friday for a rehearing and stay of its decision to grant a $16.8-million rate increase to General Telephone Co.

The increase, if put into effect, is expected to boost the monthly telephone bill for Long Beach subscribers by 95 cents. Business users would pay an additional $2 a month.

LOUIS Possner, chief engineer of the Long Beach Bureau of Franchises, said the decision by the Public Utilities Commission was made without a public hearing, and thus denied ratepayers "due process."

"The honorable commission failed to hold a hearing, adduce any evidence, on appropriate depreciation allowances for the test year 1970, and has therefore failed to hold evidentiary hearings required by law," the Long Beach petition asserted.

"It follows that the conclusions reached as to operating results for intra-state California business of General Telephone Co. have been made without any evidence or finding on multi-million dollar depreciation practices," the petition charged.

The rate increase, which would go into effect in December, is the third approved by the PUC for General Telephone Co. within the past year. Last December, the commission granted the firm a $7.1 million increase on an interim basis, pending completion of public hearings on a company application for $60 million, and last July, General received a $16.3 million increase as a result of a decision involving Pacific Telephone Co.

The new hike would raise the basic, one-party residential service from $4.80 to $5.75 a month, and would boost one-party business service from $10.60 to $12.60 a month.

Widow sues Edison over mate's death

The widow and seven children of a Long Beach farm worker filed a $500,000 wrongful death suit against the Southern California Edison Co. Friday in Superior Court as a result of the worker's electrocution a year ago.

Mrs. Mercedes Villicana of 2624 Madison Ave., and her children, ages 4 to 16, claim the death of Gabriel Villicana was due the negligence of the company and 20 John Doe codefendants.

The victim, a field hand harvesting crops for Atlas Farms, died Nov. 23, 1970 while working in an area near Alameda and Dominguez Streets where high voltage lines are located.

Judge Charles C. Stratton signed an order making Mrs. Villicana guardian-at-law for the children for the purposes of the suit.

Attorney Robert R. Wyatt filed the action which seeks $500,000 general damages because the family has been deprived of the father and will not have "future financial and other support" from him.

Councilmen on junket to Hawaii

Because six of Long Beach's nine councilmen, will be in Honolulu for the 48th annual congress of the National League of Cities, there will be no City Council meeting next Tuesday.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade and Councilmen Thomas J. Clark, James H. Wilson, Wayne B. Sharp, E. F. (Ted) Cruchley and Russell Rubley will be attending the annual congress, which runs today through Wednesday.

He's . . . a man's man with the sharp memory of a little boy who never got over the excitement of engines and sirens and smoke and danger.

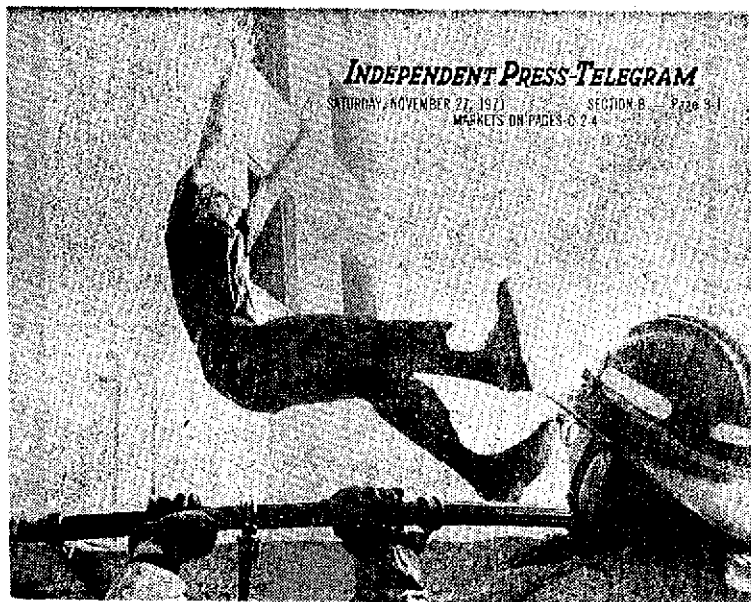

He's a guy who puts it all on the line when the bell rings . . . a man who savors life because he has seen too much death, too much of awesome powers out of control. He's a man responsive to a child's laughter because his arms have held too many small bodies that will never laugh again.

He's a man who appreciates the simple pleasures of life . . . hot coffee held in numbed, unbending fingers . . . the flush of fresh air pumping through smoke and fire convulsed lungs . . . a warm bed for bone and muscle compelled beyond feeling . . . the camaraderie of brave men . . . the divine peace of selfless service and a job well done in the name of all men . . .

He doesn't wear buttons or wave flags or shout obscenities and when he marches, it is to honor a fallen comrade. He doesn't preach the brotherhood of man. He lives it.

ROOKIES NO MORE

A dozen recruits in the Long Beach Fire Department graduated this week and staged a demonstration of their skills at the department's training center. Here they're using the sliding life line, putting out a car fire, leaping into the life net, shooting streams of water into a simulated refinery fire and — last but not least — standing in line for their diplomas. Leo A. Gallagher is battalion chief of the training staff. Graduating were Leonard J. Cavanaugh, Richard A. DuRee, Maurice Green Jr., Terry L. Harbour, Jeffrey M. Jones, Ronald E. McIntosh, Robert McMackin, Gilbert L. Moxley, Rudeen Parks, Medwin F. Peck, Lloyd H. Pickett and Ronald Webb.

WHAT IS A FIREMAN?

8,000 march today in big L.B. parade

Long Beach will host more than 8,000 high school students in 75 bands which will perform along Ocean Boulevard when the 31st annual All-Western Band Review begins at noon today.

For nearly four hours 73 high school bands, drum majors, majorettes and marching units will vie for points and a chance to win the sweepstakes prize — the Mayor's Trophy to be presented by Long Beach Vice Mayor Bert Bond.

Loara High School of Anaheim and Long Beach's Polytechnic High will march near the front of the parade on a non-competitive basis. Loara is a three-time winner of the trophy and will appear as Honor Band. Poly will march as the host band representing the city.

REVIEW director Don Gill says 18 California counties will be represented in the parade. Nearly 300 buses will bring 16 bands from Northern California, 12 from the central part of the state, 11 from Orange County, 14 from San Diego County and 15 from Los Angeles County.

They will compete in six divisions based on the size of the school's enrollment. Bands will be rated on musicianship, showmanship, precision and general appearance by a panel of California band instructors and program directors. The judges and the reviewing stands will be located at Atlantic Avenue and Ocean Boulevard. Trophies will be awarded to each of the winners in the six divisions.

Awards will be presented at the Long Beach Arena in a program of events which will include the annual state baton-twirling championships.

The parade begins with the host division including the Long Beach Police department motorcycle squad, the U.S. Marine Corps Color Guard, Vice Mayor and Mrs. Bond, "Miss Welcome to Long Beach," Miss Carol Vogen, the Poly and Loara bands.

THE SIX competing divisions will follow in what one city official termed the biggest event of its type in the world.

The West Arcadia Band Review was held last weekend as a preview to the Long Beach event. Loara High was picked as honor band during that competition.

Three other bands in today's parade won class awards at Arcadia. Montebello High was Class A winner, Glendora Class B champion and Temple City and Alta Loma High schools of San Bernardino County tied for Class C prizes.

Hike in water rates slated

Water bills to 27,000 Orange County customers and another 2,000 customers in Bellflower, Lakewood and Paramount will be increased by two utilities on Dec. 17.

The Southern California Water Co. will boost its rates to average customers from $2.20 to $2.40. Residents of Seal Beach, Los Alamitos and nine other Orange County communities will be affected, according to the Public Utilities Commission.

The Lakewood area customers of Peerless Water Co. face an average monthly rate increase of 16 cents, a 2.6 per cent boost, said a commission spokesman. Both increases have been granted by the PUC.

The Southern California Water Co. had sought an 18.8 per cent increase. The increase granted by the PUC is 7.8 per cent, said the spokesman.

Authorization for the increases is "consistent in purpose with the federal government's economic stabilization program," he said.

Some residents of Anaheim, Cypress, Garden Grove, La Palma, Westminster, Santa Ana, Stanton, Placentia and Yorba Linda also will be affected by the Southern California Water Co. rate increase, the spokesman said.

The increase will boost the utility's annual income by $187,950, he said.

Accepting the go-ahead to increase its rates for the first time since July, 1968, the Orange County company also obligated itself to rectify problems with its service which were questioned at a public hearing in Los Alamitos last July, the commission official said.

New equipment will be installed, the official said, to alleviate dirty water and low pressure troubling at least seven Orange County customers who complained at the hearing.

Lakewood park opening date set

A five-acre park adjacent to Palms Elementary School in East Lakewood may be ready for use by June, a Lakewood official said.

The Lakewood City Council has hired Williamson, Morris and Paige, Long Beach architects, to prepare plans and specifications for the park, which will be developed as an extension of a five-acre school playground. The site is on 207th Street east of Norwalk Boulevard.

A total of $100,000 is budgeted for the improvement of what is now undeveloped land.

Detailed plans for development of the five acres, along with an adjoining 11-and-a-half acres which the city also owns, should be presented to the City Council "by early in 1972," G. David Mills, superintendent of Parks and Recreation, said.

"I hope we'll have children out there playing by June," he added.

L.B. gets share of liquor fees

Long Beach has received its six-month, $90,430 share of fees paid by liquor license holders. The State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control made the payment to the city.

Ninety per cent of the fees collected are used by cities and counties to pay for government services, such as police and fire protection, and 10 per cent goes into the state general fund, officials said.

Designed to save money, hospitalization

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors have been asked to approve a tough new program designed to save thousands of dollars by treating the mentally disordered outside of hospitals or drastically reducing hospital stays.

Under the proposed system, the county would set up a network of "crisis evaluation units" — emergency rooms where the emphasis would be on alternate treatment methods "avoiding hospitalization wherever possible."

In a report to the board Friday, Dr. Harry R. Brickman, director of the Department of Mental Health, proposed the first of the crisis units be set up at Metropolitan State Hospital, Norwalk, at a cost of $582,000.

He said the goals of the crisis unit would be to "control the inflow (of mentally ill patients) into hospitals" and to ensure that when hospitalization is prescribed it is because of "medical indicators" and not for lack of alternatives.

The units also would review all available treatment methods and develop new resources if necessary, with the "prime concern of reducing the length of stay" in hospitals, "thus cutting the cost of care to the county," he said.

Doctors at the units would diagnose the disorder, prescribe the initial treatment and work out a follow-up care program, he said.

Patients would be able to remain for observation and medication at the unit for no longer than two shifts. If it is then decided they need to be hospitalized, first consideration must be given to community hospitals working under contract to the county, then county facilities and finally state hospitals.

"Regardless of the diagnosis, all patients will be allowed a maximum of 17 days in-patient care" at whatever facility they are sent to, the report said.

During that time, intensive treatment will be given and plans for discharge and after-care services will be developed.

If a patient has not been released before 17 days it will be incumbent upon the hospital staff "to justify extending the period," and the ultimate decision will rest with the department of mental health physician, the report says.

The department physician "may elect to force the release of the patient and provide alternative care as he feels is medically indicated."

If the unit doctor then allows the patient to stay the system provides for only two further seven-day extensions.

After this, the program envisages an "after-care system" which may involve "discharge in many instances to community rehabilitative and custodial type treatment facilities."

"With this in mind," says the report, "our concern becomes two-fold: That an after-care system be established which will insure rapid discharge and continuity of care following the patient's release as well as taking all steps to insure the patient does not require hospitalization."

Brickman told the board that the state "at this time has indicated approval of the proposal."

When the state earlier this year allocated additional funds for mental health services, he said, officials stressed high priority should be given to programs providing alternatives to inpatient treatment.

By way of an apparent incentive, the state allowed counties to accumulate for their own community programs funds saved by cutting down on the use of state hospitals.

As a result of this his department has come up with a plan for reducing the number of county patient days at state hospitals by five per cent for the 1971-72 year, he said.

If the plan is approved and fully implemented it would result in a return of $720,000 to the county for the current fiscal year, he said.

The $582,000 to set up the Norwalk crisis unit would be drawn from these savings and therefore would not represent an extra cost to the county, he added.

CAN I SEE SANTA YET?

Mark Romens, 3, asks a dancing bear outside Santa's Animal Fair, 121 Pine Ave., if Santa's arrived. Santa Claus is scheduled to arrive at the fair — where he'll appear daily until Christmas eve — at noon today. His transportation won't be a sleigh, but a Candy-Cane-colored Bus. Youngsters will be able to visit Santa — and receive a free gift — and wander through the fair, peering at dozens of animated animals and a four-foot-high railroad train. Fair decorations were created by Jack Oehlert, a nationally-known decorator. Children also will be able to meet "Mr. Truthful," a now creation from Downtown Long Beach Associates, sponsors of the fair. "Mr. Truthful" will flash colored lights at children who step on his toes. Parents will be able to monitor their youngsters' private conversations with Santa by closed circuit TV, and will find a special mail box for children's letters to Santa. Letters must be accompanied by a stamped return-addressed envelope and 10 cents, the DLBA said.

Pinball machine controversy rages—is it or isn't it?

By VINT MADER Staff Writer

A police expert and a distributor of coin-operated "table games" disputed Friday in Long Beach Municipal Court whether an amusement device known as "Bally's Big Valley" is a pinball machine.

Administrative Investigator Lt. Harry Welch told Judge Elsworth M. Beam that the machine, seized from Forty Niners Tavern, 5660 E. Pacific Coast Highway, is in the pinball class because it uses a plunger, steel balls and has pins and bumpers under glass. However, defense expert witness Dennis Glover told the judge games like Big Valley advanced out of the pinball realm after the city passed its antiball machine ordinance in the early 1940s.

"We call them flipper games," testified Glover, operator of Qualified Vending Service and owner of the four-player machine that vice officers seized from the tavern Aug. 5.

Judge Beam convened part of the nonjury trial around the game machine, which was set up in the foyer of the Long Beach city prosecutor's offices, to hear some of the testimony from Glover and Lt. Welch.

The investigator identified Big Valley as the machine he studied in August and defined as fitting the terms of the ordinance that bans pinball outside of the downtown "A Zone" of the Nu-Pike amusement area.

However, Glover, who played his machine briefly, pointed out electronically controlled "thumper bumpers," "flippers," "up posts," "down posts," "go-phers gates," "fox gates" and other advances that he said have consigned pinball to antiquity.

He told the judge pinball was different "because you couldn't control the ball — the player didn't have any control over the ball except to shoot the ball."

Table game fans can now thump, gate and flip the balls almost entirely by their own skill, and "you can score fantastically on a single ball" in the Chicago-built valley game.

The machine posts electrically on its back-board cumulative scores for up to four players who shoot five balls each in a contest that simulates pursuit of wildlife over an open range. It also posts free games that are won.

Defendants in the action are tavern owners Thorbert Beck and Roger Corbin, who were cited after vice officers visited the premises several times and warned the machine would be seized if it remained.

Judge Beam took the case under submission and ordered the defendants to return to court Dec. 23 when he is scheduled to rule.

Freeway funds can't be rerouted

Money "saved" by deleting the Long Beach segment of the Pacific Coast Freeway can not be transferred to the Artesia Freeway, but financing for that project already is taken care of, Long Beach councilmen were advised Friday.

When Long Beach councilmen voted Nov. 2 to ask deletion of the Pacific Coast Freeway, they also adopted a motion by Councilman Russell Rubley asking that funds saved be applied to completion of the Artesia Freeway through the city.

Harold A. Richard, assistant secretary for the State Department of Public Works, advised the city by letter that the proposed Pacific Coast Freeway is "still some years away," and has no currently budgeted funds.

"On the other hand, all but the final unfinished portion of the Artesia Freeway in the Long Beach area are currently budgeted, and will be placed under construction as soon as cash can be made available," Richard wrote.

MARCHING FOR POLY

These Poly High School band members are getting in form to host bands from throughout the state for the 31st annual All-Western Band Review at noon today. Bands from Poly High and Loara High of Anaheim will march near the front of the parade, but won't be competing for trophies. Shown here are (from left) Poly band members Johnson King, Marie Dunning, Leslie Kirk, Kathy Ross, Dave Smith. (See story on Page B-1).

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

NEW ZEALAND FLAX

One of the lesser used shrubs in landscaping or as a specimen container plants is the New Zealand flax, phormium tenax. They tolerate cold from 30 degrees down to 20 degrees above zero.

The interesting, long, sword-like leafage of green, with a green and white or bronze margin is strong and tenacious as the name tenax implies.

They grow poorly if planted too deep. A plant eventually dies if water stands in the central area of the crown below the soil line. That's why it is so important to plant the top of the root ball at ground level.

We've seen these plants growing 10 to 12 feet high and in vast numbers in New Zealand. The tough foliage is used as fiber cordage there. The tallest we've seen in the Southland is about seven feet. Here they're not grown for their tall spikes with red-yellow small blossoms, but for their interesting landscape design use. The plants usually don't bloom until they're about five years old — in the ground.

Flower arrangers effectively use the interesting foliage in certain types of arrangements.

New Zealand flax are attractive when used with junipers or in sub-tropical plantings with other shrubs. They're used in shrubbery planting, or close to the house in front of a picture window, or as a filler shrub to break the blankness of a bare wall.

We don't recall seeing any pests that infest these plants. But we have seen scale on citrus, gardenias, oleanders and some other plants. We're spraying our citrus (lemon) this month.

We still like to use a horticultural oil spray for scale control. Some plants won't tolerate such a spray. For instance, ferns, cacti, and succulents, to name a few, should not be sprayed with an oil spray. Gardener should read the label on the bottle.

A wise gardener never sprays plants to control pests, or uses a soil conditioner, or feeds plants or lawns without first stopping to think, "are the plants thirsty?" If thirsty, they are thoroughly watered, then a short time later they are sprayed for pests, fertilized, or soil treated with a soil conditioner. (Lawns are not fertilized till the leaves are dry, the lawn having been watered earlier). Gardener that thoughtlessly does one of the three above mentioned jobs to thirsty plants might burn the plant roots, thereby, set back the plant growth temporarily.

Continuing the pests discussion, a gardener friend of ours wanted to have his zinnia bed soil tested. Some of the plants grew stunted and poorly, also a few of them died. We knew what the trouble was as soon as we looked at those zinnias. They were borer infested! Took us 25 minutes to find one, then shortly two more. Systemic type of spray or granular form doesn't affect those pests. Only thing a gardener can do is to treat the soil with a chewing-pests type of dust insecticide.

We've never heard of Pacific hybrid delphiniums becoming borer infested, but we do know for sure, gardeners that set out these plants in a sunny flower bed as background plants will have the tallest, showiest, gorgeous spikes of flower of blue, purple, white, or lavender, come spring.

the following directions carefully. Clay, hard-packed soil takes more water volume to soak and much longer to do it than loamy or sandy soil. Take a pound coffee can, place in on the lawn halfway between the tree trunk and where the irrigation ditch will be and put a sprinkler on the garden hose. Sprinkler should not revolve but be like a fountain. The can should be three feet away from the sprinkler head. Check to see how long it takes the sprinkler water to fill an inch of water in the can. An inch of water in the can, probably won't soak in more than an inch deep in clay, four to six inches in loamy soil and maybe 10 inches in sandy-porous soil. A mature tree needs to be watered down to four feet which means 48 inches. Depending on the season and the weather, roughly a mature tree in clay needs to be watered about a month to six week intervals... loamy soil maybe two to three week intervals... sandy-porous soil at about 10 day intervals.

Q. — Our apricot tree has an abundance of fruit. For the past two years in a row, the apricots get half ripe then the skins get deep services in them and shrivel. The crevices do not break open. Those that remain and don't shrivel are small and dry inside. The tree is planted where there is lawn. We have watered a lot and also tried watering very little. There is no trench around the base of the tree. Would it help to build up a mound of dirt about 12 inches from the base of the tree then deep water? If so how often should it be watered? The tree is at the south end of the lot, so it gets sun. It was pruned last year. Should a lot of the branches be thinned out so that the apricots will ripen better? Mrs. Wm. R. Raines.

A. — First of all, a fruit tree should never be planted in a lawn or a lawn on one side of it. Neither should it be planted in a sunny flower bed where flowers have to be watered much more frequently than the tree. The crevices and shriveling can be due to sudden weather changes and possible erratic watering. No, don't thin out the branches until late December or January, then if they are closely together, thin them out. No, don't build up a mound of dirt around the tree trunk! Not having mentioned the age of the tree it is hard for me to advise you how often to water. Besides you didn't mention whether the soil is clay and hard or sandy and porous. If the tree is five years or older, dig a circular trench 10 inches deep and at least two feet beyond the drip line of the tree. Irrigate, continuing to soak into soil but not overrunning the trench. Not knowing the soil I can't tell you how long to run it. Now, read

Top dress deciduous fruit trees, avocados and citrus with manure or a mulch material. First the soil must be moist. Scatter bone meal or a fruit-flower fertilizer over the soil then cultivate lightly and cover with the top dressing. Soak well.

Trim dead twig off deciduous fruit trees and shrubs before all the leaves have fallen. It is harder to determine which twigs and branches are dead when such plants are leafless.

Plant perennials for next year. They will benefit from winter rains, with slower but deeper root growth. Dependable seasonal blooming perennials are coral bells, penstemon, saxifrage (bergenia), tulbaghia, helleborus, nierenbergia, day lilies, agapanthus, kniphofia, monarda, foxglove, and primavera. Purchase late season now blooming mums if you live in a mild area.

Water lawns from now on in the forenoons instead of late afternoons. Adjust lawn mower to cut lawn lower.

NEWS OF RELIGION

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM—B-3
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., Nov. 27, 1971

By REV. D. P. SHOEMAKER

"Jesus Christ, Jesus Christ, who are you?" His disciples once reviewed for him the many suggestions that people had: John the Baptist, Elijah, Jeremiah or one of the prophets.

Jesus knew that men would always debate this issue, and so he warned, "If any man shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there; believe it not." Yet, he himself provided an escape from the labyrinth of confusion, for he told his disciple Peter that only God the Father could enable a person to say of Jesus, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

This remains ever the basic confession of genuine Christianity. As Christ, He is God's Anointed One who was sent to die for the sins of men. As son of God he is Deity.

WE THINK it not strange that the person of Jesus Christ should continue to be clouded today. In "Jesus Christ Superstar" he is not God in flesh, of whom the Bible speaks. The skeleton of the opera may appear Biblical, but its flesh and sinews are fabrications. This we can see.

First, it is Judas, and not Jesus, who emerges as the real hero. Judas has the shrewd mind, the piercing insights, even the highest motives. He did not betray for money, but to save a cause that had gotten out of hand. One might contrast this with Matthew 26:14-16 and John 12:2-4.

Jesus in contrast stands confused at the purpose of his life and the value of his death. "I'm not so sure as when we started. Then I was inspired, now I'm sad and tired." The most blasphemous section of the opera depicts him praying to God the Father in the Garden of Gethsemane, "Can you show me now that I will not be killed in vain? Show me just a little of your omnipresent brain. Show me there's a reason for your wanting me to die. You're far too keen on where and how and not so hot on why."

OPPOSED to this is the creedal statement of the Apostle Paul (1 Cor. 15:3), "Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures," and of John the opera nullifies Christ's teaching (which was laced with references to his coming resurrection), and robs the Christian faith of all meaning, for if Christ is not risen our faith is empty and we are yet in our sins (1 Cor. 15:17).

The realization of the true Christian must be that this production presents both an inadequate and perverted view of his Saviour.

Presbyterians tell of self help allotments

Grants made to community self-development programs by the United Presbyterian Fund for the Self-Development of People now exceed $1,600,000, the agency announced this week.

The total includes $1,194,367 made available to 17 projects in the United States and $405,000 granted to self-help programs in other countries.

The 30-member national committee which administers the fund is drawing on contributions to the 1971 One Great Hour of Sharing for world relief and emergency service and the self-development of people in the United States and world-wide. Nearly $4.5 million has been received so far in 1971.

Among grants validated is $300,000 for the largely black United Presbyterian Synod of Catawba in Southern Virginia and North Carolina. This is to be used as "seed money" for a $25 million project known as the Catawba Design — an elaborate plan to upgrade living conditions of areas in the synod's constituency.

California rebukes national board Teen integration art fuels So. Baptist row

By LES RODNEY
A sharp difference of opinion among Southern Baptists has surfaced over the propriety of a Sunday School publication illustration involving Negroes and whites.

California Southern Baptists meeting last week in Sacramento, in an unprecedented action formally rebuked the national Southern Baptist Sunday School Board for withdrawing the disputed publication from circulation.

The quarterly publication, named "Becoming," contained an illustration which depicted a trio of teenagers chatting outside a church building. The young man was a Negro, and the two young women, standing together some distance away from the young man, were white. There was nothing unusual about the picture, except, as seen by the Sunday School Board, for the color of the young people shown.

THE SUNDAY School Board, after what was reported to be extensive debate, ordered the offending publication withdrawn on the grounds that it was

"improper promotion of integration."

The California convention adopted a resolution expressing displeasure with the withdrawal of the publication, and asking the Sunday School Board to explain its action and to publicly state its position on race relations and integration.

As though to underscore its displeasure with the Board's action, and its belief that the action might hurt Baptist evangelism, the California convention for the first time in its history elected a black minister to a key office.

The Southern Baptist General Convention of California is the annual convocation of Southern Baptists in the state. The Sunday School Board, headquartered in Nashville, Tenn., is the publishing establishment for the nationwide Southern Baptist Convention, which is the largest single Protestant denomination in the country with more than 11 million members in all 50 states.

Steering clear of "social action," and stressing Bible-centered evangelism, the Southern Baptists until recent years had escaped the controversies which have wracked most other Christian denominations. In recent years, however, there have been big hassles over Bible literalism and allegedly "liberal" Southern Baptist theologians, and professors at Baptist-affiliated colleges.

ORIGINALLY breaking with the "northern Baptists" before the Civil War over the question of slavery, the Southern Baptists have been attempting to live down the "white only" image, with some success in various areas. Most famous Southern Baptist is Billy Graham, though the evangelist is non-denominational in his crusades. Graham, often accused in the past of being evasive on the great civil rights issues, has in recent years spoken more about Christian responsibility against racism.

Here is the text of the resolution passed by the California convention: "Whereas on October 31, 1971 it was reported in national news media and the Baptist Press the Baptist Sunday School Board had withheld distribution of the quarterlies and teaching guides, becoming, allegedly because of the photograph and text which 'could have been construed to be improper promotion of integration of our church,'

"Whereas as California Southern Baptists we believe in integration of our churches and convention staff, and are committed to being Christian in the area of race relations,

"And whereas the work of God in minority areas has been hindered, Be it resolved that we express displeasure over the effect of this action and that this convention appeal to the Sunday School Board for a public explanation of this action, and to publicize its position on race relations and its belief on integration."

The convention elected Rev. Jesse Davis, black pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church of Oakland, as second vice president.

In another action, the California convention reasserted a traditional emphasis when it adopted a resolution commending the California State Board of Education for its adoption of a textbook which teaches the Bible account of creation as well as the evolution theory. It urged widespread use of the new text.

Humbard to appear

Help 'House of Zacchaeus'

The House of Zacchaeus, a Christian coffee house reaching out to lonely young people, will be the subject of the monthly forum of Church Women United to be held Friday starting with 9:30 a.m. coffee in St. Thomas of Canterbury Episcopal Church, 5306 Arbor Road.

A musical program will be presented by young people of the House of Zacchaeus. They will tell something of the work under the guidance of Inner City Ministries.

The Christmas Project offering of the churchwomen will be dedicated Friday, one-half going to the House, and the other to "Project Food," to be distributed through neighborhood centers to those in need.

Matt. 25:31-45 is the text for these projects.

A Christmas worship service has been prepared by Mrs. George Higgins, Spiritual Life chairman. All are welcomed.

DR. PREUS
New enthusiasm

Lutheran Synod leader optimistic

The president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, Dr. J. A. O. Preus, sees a bright future ahead for his church.

In Southern California this week for the dedication of the new Zion Church in Anaheim, and feted at a dinner in his honor at the Convention Center in Anaheim, he expressed himself in optimistic tones, as he reviewed the bankruptcy of much religious expression throughout the country these past several years — "When even theologians announced that 'God is dead,' and like Mark Twain reflected about his own printed obituary, 'it was grossly exaggerated.'"

New enthusiasm, new witnessing to the power of Jesus Christ in the life of individuals is being expressed "everywhere I go," said the church leader. He spoke of conversations on planes and Amtrak, fellow passengers who spelled out they had found new life in Jesus Christ, and the theologian observed: "This is the very message of our church."

Dr. Preus outlined how

Confident living Do worry lines change your face?

By NORMAN
VINCENT PEALE

The little girl came bouncing downstairs that morning happy and filled with life. The mother, getting breakfast, had a face full of dark clouds.

"Mommy," asked the little girl, "aren't you happy?"

"Why certainly, I'm happy," snapped the worried mother.

"Well," commented the child, "you haven't told your face yet."

This charming little story was told me by Dale Evans Rogers who herself has a happy face, so much so that all worry lines have been erased. Her secret, as she will tell you, is to trust God, love people and be joyful.

Isn't it something how so many people spend great sums of money as well as time trying to look younger and more beautiful, when the real answer is in their own psychology. The actress Claudette Colbert said, "it matters more what's in a woman's face than what's on it."

I GUESS that goes for men too! Lines in the face that indicate age and tiredness do not come, primarily from either time or toil, but rather from unhealthy thinking, tension and worry.

On a bus or train have you ever studied faces? They are often as legible as books. It's easy to tell the Synod was planning to gain 125,000 new adherents as its way of celebrating the 125th anniversary of the 3 million member branch of Lutheranism, come 1973. In addition, plans are underway for a fund gathering campaign for church expansion in that same year, he said. Part of the drive will benefit the new Irvine College which the Synod is establishing in Orange County.

OCCULTISM

Mrs. Camille Svensson will speak Sunday, 3 p.m. at the Theosophical Society, 602 Pacific Ave., on "Hints on Occultism from H. P. Blavatsky." Recently retired from the Los Angeles City School District, where she taught visually handicapped children, she teaches classes in occult philosophy. She has translated from Spanish, Latin, Greek and Sanskrit.

that in a day he was so often exasperated by something which was really quite petty.

HE WAS letting all kinds of little things bother him and naturally he walked around with an unhappy face. And when he really had something to worry about, he became a real so r p u s ! When he changed to a positive mental attitude he stopped being tired and worried. And of course his face was more pleasant to look at, too!

Change thinking from negative to positive and learn to relax. Expect good things to happen. Anticipate and be joyful and good things will really happen. Never expect evil things to happen. When trouble does come, it will either care for itself or you will know how to deal with it. Practice filling the mind with faith thoughts and worry thoughts will be eliminated. Such practice of dynamic thoughts of faith and happiness will keep the worry lines out of your face.

Southland's 1st Episcopal crusade set in Downey

The first Episcopal crusade ever held in Southern California will begin Sunday at 7:45 p.m. in St. Mark's Episcopal Church, 10354 Downey Ave., Downey.

Speaker each evening will be Rev. Marney Patterson, Anglican evangelist from Toronto, Canada.

Talks will be of a non-denominational Christian evangelistic nature.

Combined choirs of the sponsoring churches of St. Clement's, Huntington Park; St. Margaret's, South Gate; St. Mark's, Downey; St. Anne's, Lynwood; and St. Bartholomew's, Pico-Rivera, augmented by choir members of other churches, will sing each evening.

The Crusade's "Youth Night" on Saturday, Dec. 4, will feature a Christian musical presentation entitled "LIFE" presented by First Baptist Church of Downey.

St. Mark's church has been converted into a Crusade center for the event. The sanctuary will house early arrivals and those with delegation tickets from various churches. The parish hall will be equipped with closed-circuit television and sound equipment for the overflow.

A team of 40 volunteer counsellors will meet with individuals making commitments to Jesus Christ during the Crusade while a like number of men will act as ushers in both locations.

On Tuesday, the Rt. Rev. Francis Eric Bloy, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Los Angeles — largest segment in the Anglican church around the world, will speak.

Father Patterson, 44, has conducted crusades in various Canadian provinces, in Japan and in the Arctic regions among the Eskimos.

He is also lecturer in Evangelism at Wycliffe Theological College in Toronto. He served as a delegate to the World Congress on Evangelism in Berlin, Germany, in 1966.

Viet moral issues stressed by clerics

A nationwide interreligious movement "of witness concerning the moral issues in the Indochina war" will be initiated Sunday morning with prayers for peace and justice in front of the White House and in churches across the land.

Called "An Ecumenical Witness," it is sponsored by 125 Protestant, Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Jewish leaders. It is designed to "stimulate thought and action in

Theologian sees anti-Semitism

Dr. Franklin Littell, theology professor at Temple University, has blamed a large part of "the anti-Israel feeling in some segments of the Christian church" on a long harbored feeling of cultural anti-Semitism.

"Few Christians will admit to the existence of this problem, and fewer still fully understand its nature," said Dr. Littell. "The church must take full recognition of the questions that are raised by the modern State of Israel in terms of Christian theology. For too long we have been operating under the myth that the Jews or the people of Israel ceased to exist with the advent of Christianity. Obviously, this is a dangerous misconception to labor under."

America's religious communities with regard to the moral issues of the Indochina conflict," according to the Rev. Dr. Robert S. Bilheimer, executive director of the National Council of Churches' Department of International Affairs, who is the coordinator of the campaign.

Ordained at age 59

Gave away 2 million and became Benedictine monk

MISSION, B.C. (AP) — To retire at age 34 after earning more than $1 million — that was a thrill. To give away $2 million at age 53 and enter a monastery — that was a more profound experience.

It happened to the Rev. Bede Reynolds, 79, once a Protestant civil engineer, who struck it rich in the oil fields in the 1920s and today is a senior Benedictine monk at the Westminster Abbey Seminary of Christ the King near this Canadian town.

When Father Reynolds, born in Michigan as Kenyon Llewellyn Reynolds, met the woman who would become his wife it was the beginning of a spiritual odyssey which eventually would lead him to monastic life.

THE FIRST week he knew his wife-to-be he made a discovery:

"I learned that she was a Roman Catholic. What a blow it was for me. If she were a cripple or an invalid, that could be cured. But if she was anything like my brother Graham, a fervent Catholic then at a seminary, what was the chance of cure for Catholicism?"

They were married, notwithstanding. Later, it was Reynolds who was converted.

He was married at 23 and at 28 used his civil engineering skill to build a $1 million plant to extract gasoline from natural gas in Texas.

Reynolds was part of Pacific Gasoline Co., a little company which sold only to wholesalers. But Standard Oil of California didn't consider Pacific Gasoline Co. so small — it handed over $20 million to buy the partners out.

"I was vice president of our company at the time, and my share came to a little over a million dollars," Father Reynolds recalled.

"And don't forget, that was in 1926. The transaction left me, at the age of 34, with more money than

FATHER REYNOLDS
Rebel from riches

I ever expected to own. I had three checks sent to me for my three stock certificates and deposited them in the bank — and if you don't think that it is a thrill, try it some time."

FOR THE next 16 years, Reynolds and his wife lived at ease. They traveled around the world. They bought a summer home at McKenzie Bridge, on the McKenzie River in Oregon.

Reynolds kept up with his hobbies: hybridizing daffodils, angling and archery.

It was during this time that he became a Catholic.

"I observed the tactics of a Catholic saint of a wife for 18 years," he said. "This is how I found my way into the church. The last seven years before my wife died, we were daily communicants."

"We had a chapel at our summer home, and a chaplain there who was a Benedictine from Mount Angel Abbey, 100 miles away. So this is how I eventually came to the order."

Reynolds volunteered his services in the U.S. Petroleum Administration during the Second World War, and just before the war ended, his wife died of cancer.

"As a married man, I figured that as God had given me the faith while I was married, it wasn't expected of me to break up my family to become a priest," Father Reynolds said. "But my wife and I both knew that I wanted to be a priest, when we knew that she had only a short time to live."

It took him three years to dispose of his assets — which had grown to some $2 million by this time.

"The money was distributed high, wide and handsome," Mount Angel Abbey was establishing a daughter priory in British Columbia and by the time he was ordained a priest in 1951, he had moved north.

FATHER REYNOLDS contributed $500,000 and his skills as a civil engineer when the $1.5 million abbey was built in 1953-54.

At 79, he is 15 years older than anyone else at the monastery, and is second in rank among the monks.

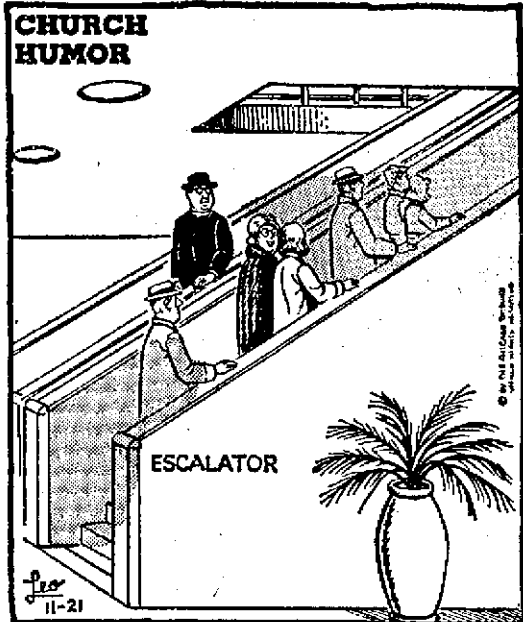

He has written a book about his life entitled "A Rebel From Riches."

"I wouldn't trade places with anybody in the world — not so much because I'm well satisfied with my own doings, but because it is what God has evidently mapped out for me to do," he said.

Belgian chaplains didn't like Synod

LOUVAIN, Belgium (AP) — A group of chaplains at Louvain University Friday accused the recent Roman Catholic Synod of Bishops in Rome of "blinding mediocrity."

The chaplains said in a communique that the synod "gave the world the image of a polite hierarchy incapable of moving." It added: "We greatly fear its possible consequences: withdrawal from Church institutions of laymen willing to promote justice in the world, maintaining women in a status of inferiority within the Church and more and more priests giving up the ministry and celibacy."

"I always say—it makes no difference what church you belong to, we're all trying to get to the same place."

Church cites plight of Jerusalem Palestinians

The future of Jerusalem must be settled by the people directly involved: the Israelis and Palestinian Arabs, according to a policy statement released by the overseas mission board of the two-million-member United Church of Christ.

Special attention was called to the "voiceless and powerless" Palestinian Arabs in its "Statement on the Future Status of Jerusalem." Copies of the document were sent to members of the House of Representatives Committee on Foreign Affairs and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, at their request.

"In order that Jerusalem may once again become a City of Peace, as its name suggests, it must be a city in which all inhabitants, Jewish, Christian, or Muslim, feel at home in a milieu of cultural, religious and ethnic pluralism."

In the present situation in Jerusalem, the Palestinian Arabs are an oppressed minority, the statement indicated. A "just resolution" of their situation is "essential to an overall peace in the area."

"However, we see our task as providing a voice to the voiceless and empowerment of those who otherwise are powerless and who . . . cannot under present conditions engage in discussion or negotiation of their own future." area."

Is violence the answer?

No. It doesn't solve anything. Neither is it inevitable.

It is no part of God, or of the man He made.

When people turn to divine intelligence for guidance, they find solutions without violence and replace anger with love.

If you want to do something about building a world based on divine Love, join us on Sunday. Visit our classes for young people up to the age of 20.

FROM THE PULPIT

Dr. Frank Collins

Students of prophecy are eyeing the Egypt-Israel situation with real concern. Bible students know that this is the very core of all world conflicts in relation to the culmination of this age.

There have been so many false cries concerning the end time until people have come to disregard these cries, like the proverbial cry of "wolf" until no one expects the wolf any more. But be assured that the Bible is not in error concerning this great climatic event of the ages, and Egypt and Israel are the two main players in this drama.

To have these things come to pass before our eyes should surprise no informed student of Scripture. The real problem of the world is that we do not, in fact, REALLY believe that God's Word is accurate, infallible and without contradiction in all things, including prophecy.

"And when ye see these things come to pass, lift up your heads for your redemption draweth nigh."

Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Aside from a few abrupt incidents, your life and daily living follow pretty much the groove you've chosen to create for yourself thus far. Today's natives can talk themselves into and out of all kinds of extreme situations.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Do what your community expects of you, and promptly. Then set away and back to your own affairs.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Put aside critical or cynical attitudes. Those around you have more than their own share of unusual problems.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take your time, relax, see this Sunday as a vacation of special dispensation.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Get out of your rut, far from whatever you'd thought would be the easiest course to follow. Seek new contacts.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You should find a diversity of views among associates and neighbors, with some common agreement on fundamental issues. The differences are local and/or personal.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accept an olive branch this Sunday, or better, offer one. Your sincere graciousness makes all the real difference.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Life shows itself in subtle variety on a normal day such as this. If you're not reasonably happy, then you're not on the best path.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sudden activity may find you unprepared. Give everybody the right to be themselves, and claim the same for yourself.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Systematic revisions of plans seem indicated today as the basis for your program shifts from forces beyond your control. Carry on the best of humor.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's just as well now that you feel like keeping others at a little distance. Divulge nothing of your intentions for the time being.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be of good cheer and even better manners while you keep your eye on the ball. There's something special to be gained.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The appeal of exotic people and places is more or less a mirage. Stay where you are and work out the issues on their merits.

'Superstar' a hit in L.B., too

So after you've read the "Good Book" and listened to the record, there doesn't seem much point in a "concert" version of the rock-opera, "Jesus Christ Superstar," presented Thursday at the Long Beach Arena.

Outside of Time magazine and top-40 radio, it appeared the majority of the three-fourths full house (mostly over-30 boppers) weren't all that familiar anyway with the "much publicized and slightly irreverent musical based on the seven last days of Christ."

And as surprises go, they loved it — even if it was performed without costumes and staging, the concert production came off as one helluva mimic of the original cast record album, which was a hard act to follow and even harder to duplicate without the aid of studio techniques.

FREELY adapted from the writings of apostles Matthew, Mark and Luke, the no-intermission, hour-and-a-half operetta was composed by 23-year-old Andrew Lloyd Webber and lyricist Tim Rice, 26.

Although initially jarring, the content doesn't seem to offend. Superstar neither hurls disbelief (unlike Leonard Bernstein's "Kaddish") or keeps a safe, academic distance (unlike Nikos Kazantzakis' "Last Temptations of Christ," a probable springboard for Superstar).

Refreshing in its innocence, Rice and Webber's Superstar makes the all-too-human, self projection into an ordeal of rise and fall from superstardom, betrayal by friends and public crucifixion — as suffered by a mortal man.

The score itself draws from every contemporary form and could hardly be called "show music." Highly stylized, it is swift-paced and merely rock-flavored.

Rice and Webber seem to have discovered that delicate blend of rock and classic, attempted most recently by the Deep Purple rock group which features as lead singer Ian Gillan, who recorded as Superstar's first Jesus.

ROBERT CORFF "Jesus"

I wrote about the album almost a year and a half ago, before the production came to the stage. After the $9.98, two-record set proved a success, producer Robert Stigwood formed Superstar touring companies but the score had already been bootlegged by everyone from ex-hair troupes to church groups.

Former Long Beach resident Tom Westerman, who sang the title role recently (Mary Magdalene), who lent a crooning, country ballad style to the role in contrast with the classic-oriented, Yvonne Elliman's recorded version.

Show stoppers like: "I Don't Know How to Love Him," "Gethsemane," "Herod's Song" and the Superstar theme, are sure-fire winners (the kind preceded by lengthy stage blackouts) but hardly a show in themselves.

'And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little'

By ROBERT C. WYLDER

If Miss Reardon does indeed drink a little, it's no wonder. Given her situation, it's amazing that she ever draws a sober breath.

For instance, there is Mama, recently deceased after a lingering illness but obviously still inserting the dead hand of the past into the present. Papa has been gone for years, so the three daughters have had to make do with one parent. One was enough.

her is a lesson in stage delivery.

JULIE Harris is Anna, the sister who lives with Catherine and helps to drive her to drink. She creates a poor little sick girl food nut bitch with a vengeance, switching from mood to mood as easily as from soft to loud. She can't make complete sense in her part, for the play doesn't, but she never loses the power to rivet attention on herself.

And then there's Ceil, now a successful school administrator who has stolen and married sister Catherine Reardon's boyfriend (Catherine is the Reardon who drinks) and who has more or less grabbed all the goodies at Mama's demise and subsequently almost abandoned her teacher sisters.

Yet she and Miss Hunter complement each other beautifully. Actresses both, they know that the ensemble is what counts, and what an ensemble! Also contributing to it are De-Ann Mears, the third sister, and Jo Flores Chase and Bill Macy as friends of the sisters. The way all in the cast work together makes the play they are in seem to be a lot better than it is.

FINALLY, there is Anna Reardon. She collects stray cats, eats no meat, believes she has recovered from rabies, disapproves of fur and leather and anything else that implies killing an animal, exists on a health-food vegetarian diet, and is, presently recovering, clearly incompletely, from a nervous breakdown of sorts brought about in part by a sexual encounter of some kind she has initiated with a high school boy in her chemistry class.

It is, in fact, a weak, incoherent, opportunistic play with several funny and a few moving moments but no semblance of logic or unity. It is not structured but patched together and makes no psychological sense. In the hands of a lesser cast it would show its flaws embarrassingly. Thanks to H and H, though, it comes off rather well. Heaven help it when it gets onto the amateur circuit. Then we'll all have to drink a little.

That's the raw material for a comedy? Well, it's the raw material for Paul Zindel's "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," and most of the time the product is very funny. It opened a four-week run at the Huntington Hartford this week with a top-flight cast.

Kim Hunter is the drinking Reardon sister. As Catherine, she starts the first act stone sober and progresses to a fine state of inebriation by the final curtain, but she never slurs a word or wastes a line. Her sense of timing gives every bit of dialogue far more effect than it really deserves. No matter what she says, listening to

THE OSMOND Brothers, featuring the star of the singing group, Donny Osmond, will appear in concert, next Saturday night at the Forum in Inglewood. This will mark the only Southland appearance of the popular group this year.

SOUTHLAND MOVIE GUIDE

As a guide to moviegoers this newspaper lists capsule contents of major motion pictures playing the Long Beach area. Most classifications represent the judgment of the Film Board of National Organizations.

BLACK BEAUTY — The film version of the classic children's novel about a youngster's love for his black colt and its adventures on two continents under a succession of owners. (G)

THE LIVING DESERT — A Walt Disney Productions "true-life adventure" Technicolor documentary depicting the fascinating animal, reptile, bird and floral life of the desert. (G)

PLAY MISTY FOR ME — A thriller about a Carmel disc jockey's dangerous affair with a beautiful but psychotic young woman. (G) an who was one of his listeners. With Clint Eastwood and Jessica Walter. (R)

MAN IN THE WILDERNESS — Violence in the Northwest territories when a fur expedition leaves hunter Richard Harris to die after he is mauled by a grizzly bear. (GP)

THE HELLSTROM CHRONICLE — Nature is studied and concern developed that insects, rather than man, will survive on earth. (G)

BED KNOBS AND BROOMSTICKS — Angela Lansbury stars as an amateur witch in Walt Disney Productions' musical fantasy. (G)

THE FRENCH CONNECTION — The exciting and life-like drama of two zealous detectives who smash an international heroin syndicate. A chase sequence is excellent. With Gene Hackman. (R)

THE SKIN GAME —

Slavery is the unexpected theme of this comedy starring James Garner and Lou Gossett as pre-Civil War con artists. (GP)

RYAN'S DAUGHTER — The awesome beauty of the Irish coastline is the background for a frail love story starring Robert Mitchum and Sarah Miles. (R)

DOCTOR ZHIVAGO — Omar Sharif, Julie Christie, Rod Taylor and Geraldine Chaplin in the film version of Boris Pasternak's novel. Winner of six Oscars. (G)

BILLY JACK — An uneven drama of American Indians' frustrations on the reservation. (GP)

Suits resolved without judges

A new way of settling civil suits — with lawyers, not judges, doing the settling — is expected to sharply reduce a backlog of some 50,000 Superior Court civil suits in Los Angeles, court officials said Friday.

The new system, in which an unpaid volunteer lawyer serves as an arbitrator, was inaugurated Thursday and settled an auto accident case that probably wouldn't have come up for trial with a judge until January 1974, officials said.

A Superior Court spokesman said the system is a first both for Los Angeles County and the entire state.

The judgeless system requires that both parties in a suit agree to accept voluntary arbitration without right of appeal and that any damage settlement won't exceed $7,500.

It was developed with the cooperation of the Superior Court by the Los Angeles Trial Lawyers Association and the Association of Southern California Defense Counsel.

The arbitrators participating in the new system are picked from a list of 100 volunteer attorneys selected by the two groups and approved by the court.

The spokesman said the new system would be particularly effective in settling simple cases where the facts are not complicated and only two parties are involved.

He said about half the backlog in Los Angeles County consists of accident suits and three-fourths of these concerned traffic accidents.

In Thursday's inaugural case, David Segal, 35, a warehouse foreman from Sepulveda, was awarded $2,354 for injuries he suffered April 29, 1970 when his car was involved in a rear-end collision with a truck owned by Utility Trailer Sales Co. of Fresno.

Segal had sued originally for $25,000 but accepted the voluntary arbitration limit of $7,500. The case was heard by attorney-arbitrator William Kurlander of Los Angeles.

Arbitration hearings are scheduled at present from 6 to 10 p.m. weekdays and Saturday mornings when the court facilities aren't in use, but the court spokesman said daytime hearings can be arranged if needed.

Merrick rites set Monday

Services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in Mottell's Chapel for Jack P. Merrick, prominent Long Beach realtor and appraiser for the past 40 years. Mr. Merrick, who was also an active community leader, died Wednesday at the age of 61.

A native of Seattle, he came here in 1923, graduated from Wilson High, attended USC and began his career as a realtor. During World War II, he served in the real estate branch of the War Department. Following the war, he owned and operated the Cinderella Ballroom in addition to his real estate activities.

Mr. Merrick was chairman of the appraisal division of the California Real Estate Association, and secretary of the Southern California chapter of the Society of Industrial Realtors.

He served on the advisory boards of St. Mary's Hospital and the Long Beach Assistance League, was a director of the Chamber of Commerce, secretary-treasurer of the Rotary Club, and member of Downtown Long Beach Associates, Alamitos Bay Yacht Club, Southern California Tuna Club, International City Club, Palos Verdes Masonic Lodge, Long Beach Board of Realtors, California Real Estate Association and National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Surviving are his wife, Marjorie; son, Thomas; daughter, Mrs. Richard Van Der Laan; brother, Harry; and sister, Mrs. Richard L. Russell, of Long Beach, and another sister, Mrs. Charles S. Benson, of Berkeley.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society.

Dr. Riggins services set for Monday

Services for Long Beach physician Winston C. Riggins, killed this week in a light plane crash near Big Bear, will be conducted at 12:30 p.m. Monday in the Dilday Family Mortuary's Lakewood Chapel.

Interment will be private.

Dr. Riggins, a Southland physician and surgeon for more than 20 years, was killed Wednesday while trying to land his single-engine plane about half a mile east of Big Bear City Airport, sheriff's deputies reported. He was 63.

Dr. Riggins maintained offices in the Woodruff Medical Arts Building, at 3780 Woodruff Ave.

He established his Long Beach practice in June, 1953, after practicing surgery in San Pedro and industrial surgery in Wilmington.

While practicing in Long Beach, Dr. Riggins was affiliated with Elks Lodge 888 and the Los Angeles County Medical Association.

A native of Waldo, Ark., Dr. Riggins graduated from the University of Arkansas medical school in Fayetteville and later studied at the Physicians and Surgeons College of Columbia University in New York.

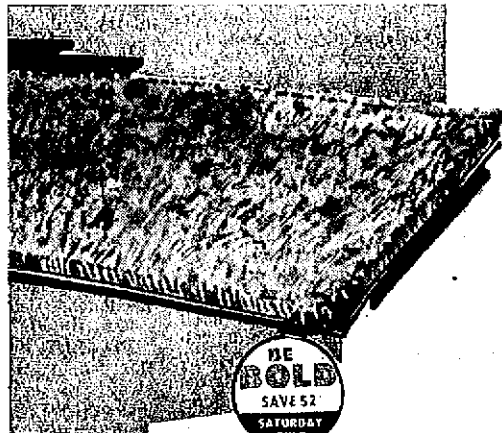

He is survived by his wife, Rhoda.

Prothro likes Ram chances

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

The way Tommy Prothro has it figured, the Rams will be playing football on Christmas, or the day after.

"Regardless of what San Francisco does, if we win our last three games, it's 1,000-1 we'll be in the playoffs," the Ram coach said Friday as he enjoyed a rare day off following Thursday's Turkey Day game in Dallas. Dallas got the bird, 28-21.

Prothro, who is a card-carrying "stat-rat," mapped out the NFL's game of "Rozelle Roulette."

"Assuming the 49ers win their last four games, they would win our division with a 10-4 record. But we stand an excellent chance of finishing with the second best record in the National Conference (at 9-4) and would enter the playoffs as the fourth qualifier.

"If Washington wins three of its last four games

Only Chicago has a chance to beat us out should they win their last four games, which would give them a 10-4 record. But they have to play Miami, Green Bay, Denver and Minnesota, and I'm not sure they can

'ROZELLE ROULETTE' A COMPLICATED GAME

(he's assuming the Rams will pin the tail on George Allen), we'd be tied with Washington. Since we'd have beaten them, they would be out.

"If Detroit loses to San Francisco, the best they could finish would be 9-4 and we've beaten them.

beat Miami and Minnesota.

"When we lost to Dallas, we put ourselves in the position where we have to win our last three games (New Orleans, Washington, Pittsburgh)."

The divisional matchups in the AFC and NFC playoffs on Dec. 25 and 26 go this way:

The Eastern Division champion plays at the Central Division champion and the wild card team plays at the Western Division champion, unless the fourth qualifier is from the West. In that case, the pairings change to the wild card meeting the Central Division champion, and the Eastern champ plays at the Western Division camp.

That means if the Rams were to win their division, they would host the wild card team, unless the 49ers were the fourth qualifier. In that case they would engage the Eastern champ at the Coliseum. Should the Rams finish as

TOMMY PROTHRO

Tide, Tigers in 'Battle of South,' suh

Combined News Services

Following a one-day intermission for cold turkey sandwiches and a respite for weary orbs, the nation's football fans move in front of their television sets again today.

While the menu is a tasty one, it'll have to go some to equal Thursday's program.

The show starts innocently enough with the 72nd meeting between Army and Navy, a game that will attract some 100,000 to Philadelphia's John F. Kennedy Stadium and a handful or two more to the TV sets (Channel 7, 10 a.m. PST).

It's strictly a warmup for the TV fans, who'll no doubt have the lawn mowed and the bushes trimmed by the time Auburn and Alabama battle for Southern supremacy (Channel 7, 1 p.m. PST).

THURSDAY NEBRASKA settled the issue of who's No. 1 by beating Oklahoma 35-31, and now will await the outcome of the Alabama-Auburn game to see about another meeting of unbeaten in the Orange Bowl Jan. 1. Third-ranked Alabama can provide the Orange Bowl with the only game involving perfect records by getting past Auburn.

But the Tigers, already committed to the Sugar Bowl and with Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan at the controls, also are undefeated.

Sullivan and his favorite receiver, Terry Beasley, are all set to foil Alabama's hopes. The Crimson Tide, though, has troubles. Alabama, another of the wishbone powers, is concerned about the condition of its star runner, Johnny Musso, who was injured two weeks ago against LSU and didn't play last week against Miami. He'll play today but how much — or how effectively — isn't known.

ODDSMAKERS HAVE MADE Alabama a six-point favorite over the Tigers.

At Philadelphia, it'll be the usual pomp and circumstance before, during and after the Army-Navy battle which finds the Cadets (5-4) favored by six points over the Middies (3-7). Army holds a 34-31 edge in victories in the long series. Six games have ended in ties.

Rumors persist that Navy needs to win in order to preserve coach Rick Forzano's job. Forzano won last year, 11-7, but in his three years at the helm Navy is 5-25.

Both clubs operate with sophomore quarterbacks. Fred Stuvek leads Navy, and Army's quarterback is J.

San Jose, UCLA vie for title

By ROBERT BOHLE
Staff Writer

The favorites, UCLA and San Jose State, will meet tonight for the title in the third NCAA Water Polo Championships at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool.

UCLA, the Pacific-8 champion, demolished Washington, 37-2, and Cal State Long Beach, 10-1, Friday. San Jose, the PCAA champion and the only undefeated team in the nation, topped Stanford, 10-4, and squeezed past scrappy Cal State Fullerton, 10-9.

The Bruins polished up their shooting game against Washington, which doesn't compete in the Pac-8 in water polo. The Bruins subs were exposed to three quarters of playoff action in the game in which every player except goalie Kevin Craig scored.

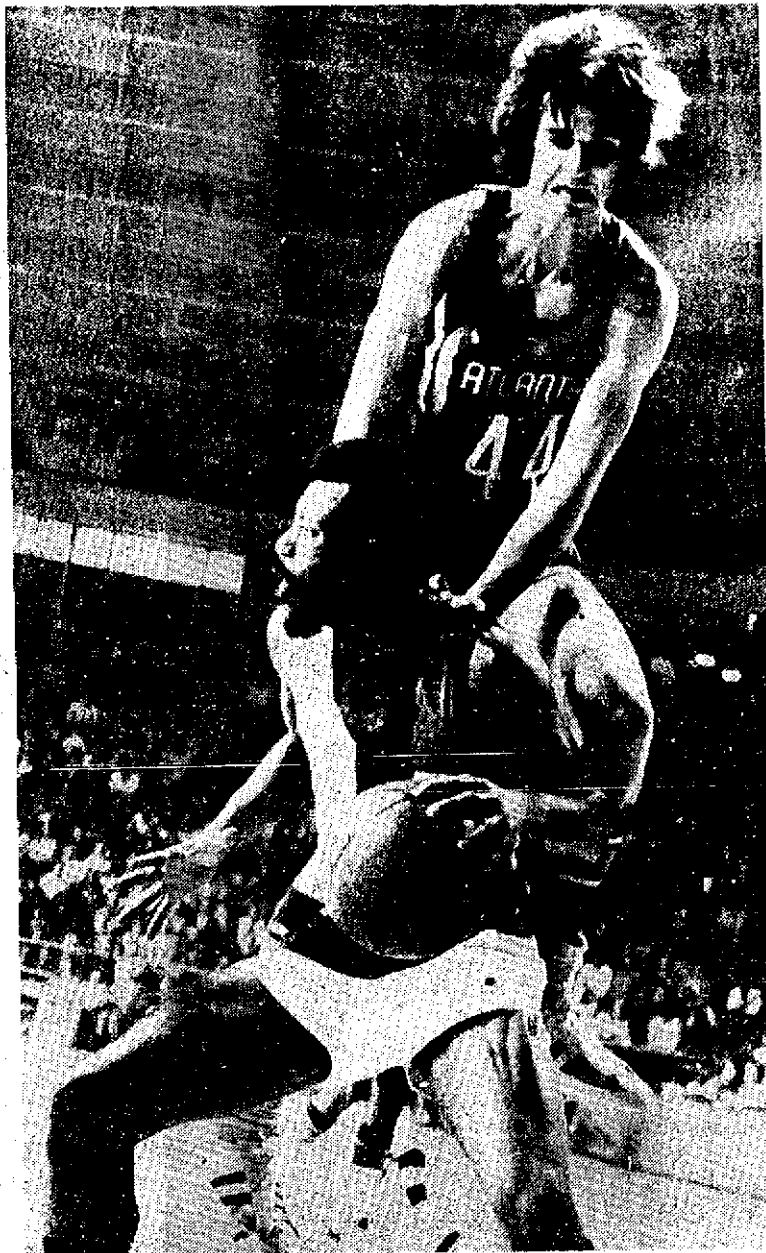

San Jose had no trouble with Pac-8 runnerup Stanford, but it wasn't ready for the hustling Titans, who had upset defending champion UC Irvine, 5-4, in a morning game.

The Titans made many errors in the first period, falling behind 5-1. In the final three quarters, though, Fullerton outscored the Spartans, 8-5.

With less than a minute gone in the final period, the Titans tied the score at 8-8, but a penalty shot and a bad pass cost Fullerton two goals and a berth in the title game. Jim Waska led the Titan scoring with five goals, and played a good defensive game.

NO TIME FOR LEAPFROG

Pete Maravich, not known for defensive prowess, climbs back of Baltimore's Archie Clark during NBA contest Friday. Clark sank free throw enroute to career-high 40 points as Bullets whipped Atlanta 118-105. See story, Page C-2.

SINDA-TORRES VIE FOR STATE TITLE

Cesar Sinda and Felipe Torres clash tonight in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium in a 12-round match for the vacant California lightweight title.

Torres, former state lightweight champion, takes a 21-0-1 professional record into the main event of the five-bout card. The East Los Angeles resident shows 17 knockouts to his credit.

Sinda, an Olympic Games champion, ran up an amateur record of 55-1 with 40 knockouts in his native Congo.

Since coming to the United States, Cesar is unbeaten with 10 consecutive wins and a 16-2 over-all mark.

Wilt riddles Detroit 132-113

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Victory came easy for the Lakers again Friday night and left 17,101 Forum fans wondering if the NBA win streak of 20 is safe.

The Detroit Pistons were the latest to crumble under the Laker powerhouse, falling 132-113 as Wilt Chamberlain showed the way with 31 rebounds and 31 points.

The victory was the Lakers' 13th in succession. Nine of them have been by margins, from 10 to 40 points. It has been rare in any of the Lakers' 19 wins that a team has forced them to play all-out to the final buzzer.

ALL OF the regulars took their customary seats on the bench early in the fourth quarter and watched the subs mop up. The reserves have displayed enough pride not to squander away any part of the huge lead the first-teamers have piled up.

Milwaukee owns the NBA record, set last year. For the Lakers to tie it they would have to beat Seattle, Boston, Philadelphia, Portland, Houston, Golden State and Phoenix.

Except for the Boston game, which is on the road, that lineup doesn't look impossible to surmount. The Lakers insist they aren't thinking about a record, but there is some mention of it as the possibility draws closer.

"I keep thinking we'll have a letdown sometime," says coach Bill Sharman, "but we seem to get up for every game. There is a lot of pride in the way we are playing now."

Sharman says Chamberlain gives more pre-game pep talks than he does, and it is obvious from watching Wilt perform on the court that he is thoroughly enjoying the game as much as anytime in his 12-year career.

THE BIG MAN intimidated the Pistons just as he has everyone else this year. No team can sustain an offense when it has to rely only on outside shooting.

Chamberlain hasn't tried to score much this season, but when Detroit center Bob Lanier got into foul trouble, Wilt went to the basket and rammed home one "stuff" shot after another to account for his season high in points.

The 31 rebounds was one less than his season high, and he could have had that easily had he not come out of the game with six minutes remaining. He also had six blocked shots.

Jerry West added 18 assists and 25 points, and Gail Goodrich matched his average with 24 points, all in the first three periods. Happy Hairston pulled down 14 rebounds to continue his splendid play.

Flynn Robinson made his only free throw to the West and Elgin Baylor's Laker record of 35 in a row. Sharman hopes his NBA mark of 56 falls to the reserve guard. For the season, Flynn is shooting a phenomenal 96 per cent — 54 of 56.

The Lakers fell behind 16-9, but they just kept running and forcing the Detroiters into mistakes to pull ahead 34-30 at the quarter.

The lead was 13 at the half, 21 after three quarters. At no time did the Lakers' relentless fast-break ease up on the Pistons, who admitted later

They were impressed by the way "they kept coming at us."

New Pistons' coach Earl Lloyd singled out Chamberlain as the difference. "He starts the fast-break with his passes and he lets the defense gamble," says Lloyd. "It must be comforting for the other Lakers to know they can try for a steal and not get burned because Wilt is backing them up."

Detroit sadly lacks the guidance of Dave Bing, its talented guard who will remain sidelined at least another month. Jimmy Walker makes far too many mistakes to be a playmaker.

Lanier continues to be effective on offense (29 points) but a liability on defense. Rookie Curtis Rowe from UCLA shows promise and he apparently has earned a starting berth. He scored 16 points.

GRAMBLING HEAVY FAVORITE TODAY

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

A year ago Cal State Fullerton extended heavily-favored Grambling to the final three seconds before losing on a 42-yard field goal, 34-31.

Grambling lost virtually all its starters, offensively and defensively, from the 1970 team, with 14 of the Tigers snapped up by the pros.

Despite the heavy losses, Grambling is a top-heavy favorite again today when the clubs meet for the second time in the Coliseum. Kickoff is at 1:30, with an expected turnout of 45,000.

"In looking at their films, they've got a half dozen or more pro prospects," said Dick Coury, the Fullerton coach who still is in shock from the tragic plane crash two weeks ago that took three of his assistant coaches, Dallas Moon, Joe O'Hara and Bill Hannah.

The Titans were denied in their request to the NCAA to play a Mercy Bowl game, hopeful of obtaining funds for the 11 children left fatherless by the tragedy.

Today's game will serve as a source for the funds. Grambling has volunteered to turn back a portion of the proceeds from the game to the deceased coaches' families.

"Everyone at Grambling, from the president to the football coaches, have been so thoughtful," Coury said.

Grambling is heavily favored today because of an 8-2 record and Southwestern Athletic Conference championship, as well as the memory of the 1970 game with Fullerton.

"I think we might have surprised them a little," Coury said. "Maybe they didn't know us then but they do now."

Much is made of Grambling's high-scoring offense but the defense hasn't exactly been lacking either.

The Tigers, who gained sole possession of its sixth SAC title Thursday when rival Alcorn A&M lost to Jackson State, hasn't permitted a touchdown in two weeks. Grambling roared over Norfolk State, 55-0, two weeks ago and last week flattened Southern University, 31-3.

John Mendenhall, a 6-2, 250-pound defensive end, is listed by coach Eddie Robinson as among his best.

Texas-El Paso last 49er hurdle to Pasadena

By JIM MCCORMACK
Staff Writer

EL PASO — "Nice guy" coaching may not be dead. Cal State L.A.'s Foster Anderson gave it a whirl earlier this year, but when his team lost seven of its first nine games, the coach decided "no more Mr. Nice Guy."

Unfortunately for Anderson, turning nasty wasn't the answer, either. The Diablos lost their season finale, 31-7.

While the pal approach to coaching was dying at L.A., it was blossoming at Cal State Long Beach.

"Coach (Jim) Stangeland told us that if we played well at Hawaii, he'd give us some free time while we were in the Islands early in the week," reports John Kahler.

The 49ers, who expected to be down after four tough victories in a row—three on the way to a Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. record of 5-1—routed the Rainbows, 46-21.

"That's one of the reasons we played so well," says Kahler, "because of the coach's promise. He kept it, too. We had a fabulous time."

The good guy policy worked so well that the 49ers have used it this week while preparing for tonight's opponent, Texas-El Paso.

The incentive tonight won't be a holiday in El Paso. Or in Juarez.

A win tonight could mean a trip to Pasadena for the 49ers.

Normally, they might choose El Paso. But this trip to Pasadena includes participation in the Pasadena Bowl.

"It will be difficult to get ready for the game because of the week we've had," acknowledges Kahler, "but we all know what we have to do if we want to go back to the bowl."

The conference executive committee, consisting of the athletic director and faculty representative of the seven schools, will vote Sunday on the PCAA's representative in the Pasadena Bowl.

The 49ers (5-1 in league, 8-3 over all) and San Jose State (3-1 in league and 4-5-1 over-all) are the leading candidates.

San Jose concludes its regular season this afternoon at UC Santa Barbara. If the Spartans win, the 49ers will need a good effort tonight.

If San Jose loses, the 49ers will be under less pressure.

Texas-El Paso may prove to be a difficult opponent.

The Flying Miners of Bobby Dobbs are struggling. They have lost six of 10 games, and in a 24-7 setback to Colorado State last weekend drew only 7,000 partisans.

About the only thing the Miners can do at this point, is stick a needle in the 49ers' bowl balloon.

49ER FOOTNOTES: The 49ers stayed in Hawaii for five days. After he had rushed for 368 yards and scored five times in the 49ers' 46-21 victory over Hawaii, tailback Terry Metcalf went out on the town and won a dance contest. Metcalf (28) needs three touchdowns tonight to set an NCAA college division record. He also needs 161 yards to break Leon Burns' single-season CSLB rushing mark of 1,659.

The 49ers had an informal practice Tuesday at Keweenaw in Hawaii. The highlight of a casual touch game was equipment man Walt Kraeun's TD reception over trainer Tom Ostry. The pass was thrown by the team's Samoan bus driver.

Cal State flew back to Long Beach Wednesday and didn't practice. The 49ers worked out for an hour, then were home in time for the Nebraska-Oklahoma game on TV. Friday the club flew to El Paso so the "nice guy policy" is really going to get a test tonight.

the fourth qualifier, they'd play in the Central Division's ice box, most likely Minnesota.

The four division playoff winners will play in the NFC and AFC conference championship games on Sunday, Jan. 2. The two conference champs then qualify for Super Bowl VI, to be played Sunday, Jan. 16, in New Orleans.

It's fortunate that Prothro has an analytical mind, developed by playing bridge since age four. Devising the playoff system didn't come easy for the NFL.

ASKED IF he was second-guessing himself for gambling on the fake field goal Thursday while leading 14-7 in the second quarter, Prothro said, "No, I thought it would work. We could have punted, and probably gotten 20 or 30 more yards, but the touchdown pass to Bob Hayes (51 yards) would have gone for 100 yards if need be."

Prothro said the unbalanced goal-line offense the Rams installed on two occasions when he inserted a third tackle (Joe Carroll) and two tight ends was "something we put in special this week. We call it rock and log. If we line up strong to the left, it's log, and if we line up with two of our three tackles strong-side right, it's rock."

The Rams scored both times they employed their "bull-elephant line." The first time Larry Smith leaped over from the one, and the second time Roman Gabriel fired a two-yard scoring pass to Pat (Captain Marvel) Curran.

THE RAMS, almost to a man, complained about the artificial turf in Texas Stadium, which they described as "too slippery, too hard, the worst I've ever seen."

Lance Rentzel, a former Cowboy, said he "felt sorry" for his ex-teammates who have to play on it.

Because tackle Harry Schuch stayed back to visit his parents in Memphis, the Rams won't know the condition of his right knee until the team gathers Monday to begin preparation for the battle of New Orleans in the Coliseum.

The same is true of Les Josephson, who is visiting relatives in Houston. He re-injured his shoulder.

The biggest comic strip of all

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

There was a time when some Sunday newspapers were wrapped in the color comic section to boost sales — and some still are.

The newspaper comic strips had their day, and while they still are a factor in publications, they just don't have the appeal they once did — or maybe that's too personal an impression.

The reason isn't too hard to find, if you'll consider that television has become a major purveyor of the comic strip — and I don't mean just on the Saturday morning kid shows or the animated color jobs that come on as specials every once in a while.

THE SITUATION comedy is an enlarged and embellished "Blondie" or "Bringing Up Father"; "Beverly Hillsbillies" was an animated "Dogpatch"; the working females in various shows are up-to-day "Tillie, the Toilers," and there are, of course, the undisguised transfers from the comics to the screen in the likes of "Batman," "Munsters," etc.

But, I guess, the more prevalent comic strips in TV form are variations on the "Dick Tracy" theme.

"Hawaii Five-O," for example which is one of the top rated shows in the Nielsen, each week brings us figures right out of the comics.

If there ever was a Dick Tracy, I guess the guy has to have been modeled after grim-jawed Steve Mc-

Garret, played by Jack Lord, who without a two-way wrist radio does battle against Fu Manchu, and a variety of thugs and psychopaths who look and act like they came out of the funny papers.

MC GARRET'S latest outing, for example, had such a healthy helping of underworld nicknames for characters that I anticipated "Pruneface" would turn up at any moment.

And as, with the comic strips, there was a dash of right thinking as one of the characters uses terms like "gook" and "chink." McGarret sells him straight immediately about Hawaii being a part of the United States and that we don't use terms like that (except over on another CBS show, "All in the Family," where it is considered comedy).

THEN THERE is the comic page type of character "Cannon" who is occasionally referred to as "Fat Man," in the good old funny paper tradition of gimmicky names.

"Steve Rogers" abound — at least, I think it was the comic page's Roper who is always going "undercover."

Of course, the regular characters on TV are not all based on funny paper figures. Some develop their own campy characterizations. Raymond Burr, for example, is beginning to look and sound more and more like Charlie Chan, as he knits his brows and engages in Socratic dialogue with his students.

There are a lot of laughs in the medium — some of them not exactly intended.

SUNDAY night's "60 Minutes" at 6 p.m., Ch. 2, will have a continuation of a previous program on auto repair gyps — this time with some rebuttal as well as extension of remarks on how the innocent motor car owner can be "taken."

Among those scheduled to appear "in rebuttal" is Henry Sorenson of Long Beach, a past president of the Independent Garage Owners of America.

"60 Minutes" also will air a segment featuring Hosea Williams, black American clergyman who talks about his recent meetings with China's Premier Chou En-lai. The segment originally had been scheduled to air on the special Thursday night edition of the show.

CRAIG HOSMER, U.S. congressman of Long Beach, will be interviewed on Ch. 2's "Newsmakers" program at 3 p.m., Sunday. Bill Eames, director of KNXT News, heads the panel of questioning newsmen.

Game shows to be analyzed

The game show — its history, packaging and selling, and its place on television — will be discussed by such game show veterans as Chuck Barris, Dennis James, Monty Hall, Jack Barry and Ralph Andrews on The Game Show Show Tuesday at 10 p.m. on KCET, Channel 28.

Hosts Billy Adler and John Margulies will talk with Barris (Dating Game and Newlywed Game) and Andrews (You Don't Say) about the creation of game shows, their packaging and selling to the networks. Andrews will defend the game show against what he considers to have been unfair criticism by TV viewers.

Barry, who created Concentration and Juvenile Jury, will discuss the quiz show scandals of the 1950s, which forced him out of television for nearly 12 years. He then was co-producer and host of 21, one of the shows found guilty.

James and Hall will trace their careers, talking about their shows and how they got into television and the game show business. James has been involved in television since the experimental days in the late 1930s.

Yule giving, toy sales expected to fall under '70 mark

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

ITEM ONE: New York (UPI) — Business Christmas giving will drop off this year for the first time in a decade . . .

ITEM TWO: New York (UPI) — The toy-games industry, normally recession proof because of Christmas sentimentality, this year expects its first annual sales decline since 1957 . . .

These and other indicators this week point to the Yule season.

Incentive Marketing, a trade magazine that has kept tabs on holiday giving for 20 years, believes the drop in gift-giving will be about 2 per cent from last year's $395 million.

In 1953, when the magazine started keeping score, it estimated the gift total at $250 million. There have been increases every year since then — except for 1956 and 1958 recession periods.

Christmas bonus and gifts by employers to workers is expected to follow much the same pattern as last year, according to Prentice-Hall, Inc., publisher of business and labor information services.

Prentice-Hall recently surveyed 182 firms and found that about half will give either cash bonuses or gifts to workers, with cash the most popular.

Such bonuses will range from $5 up to a full month's salary for workers with more than five years with the firm.

The number of business gifts to customers, suppliers and other associates has increased greatly in recent years. The variety of such gifts also has grown.

Bottles of liquor are "out" this year and foods and other useful gifts are "in," says a spokesman for — of course — Bachman Foods, Inc., Reading, Pa., which dispenses Pennsylvania Dutch Foods.

"Bosh," says Al Durante of the Bourbon Institute. "Useful gifts may be in, but liquor definitely is not out."

Among the most popular business gifts this year, Incentive Marketing reports, will be sporting goods and sports wear, small appliances, portable radios, small power tools, stainless steelware, glassware, luggage and decorative ponchos.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Toy Manufacturers Association was heard to say "the general feeling around the industry is that we'll be happy to bring in 1971 — at or slightly under — the $2.26 billion figure of last year."

That's an indication of how deeply the recession has cut into the budgets of Americans who traditionally forget money worries when it comes to buying Christmas gifts for the children.

Since 1955, the toy industry, fueled by the Christmas season, has grown at an annual rate of 8 to 12 per cent.

Total manufacturing sales prices in 1955 hit $592 million, about one fourth of last year's bonanza sales.

Orders so far are down by 1.2 per cent and "unless there's a lot of shipments in a hurry we could be down," the TMA man said.

Naturally, the economic worries are a major reason, but overstocking last Christmas season is another. Many merchants still have such trend items as slot racing cars left over from 1970.

One cheerful note comes from one segment of the industry: games, and they're "doing as well or better than ever."

One observer sees an upsurge in model train business, partly due to the decline of interest in slot racing.

However, the feeling is that most merchants will stock up on the "staples" (Monopoly is one and will sell about 2.7 million copies this year it's estimated) because staples continue to sell after Yule buying ends.

Season for thieves

With the Christmas season comes an upsurge in shoplifting.

Thanks to Roger Griffin, general manager of Commercial Service Systems, Inc., Universal City, the theft picture is taking on better focus.

In his latest report, Griffin has singled out shoplifting in supermarkets and in drug chain stores.

There has been a small "but steady" increase in the number of supermarket thieves turned over to police in the seven years the study has been conducted.

Biggest increase in theft calls, until 1970, was in 1968. And, then, in 1970 the number of cases jumped 2.6 per cent and the supermarket managers went on the alert.

The survey did not include drug chains until 1970, but in that one year after inclusion it was apparent drug chains take a firmer stand than supermarkets in calling police (34.6 per cent as compared to 29.7 per cent).

Fewest drug chain apprehensions (5.7 per cent) were made in January. The largest number (12.4 per cent) was made in December.

"This increase appears to be in line with the experience of other retailers who have a significant increase in business during the Christmas season.

December was next to the poorest month, however, for apprehensions in supermarkets. This survey has been consistent in showing that there is not an increase in supermarket shoplifting in December as there is in other stores which do a substantial portion of their yearly volume during the Christmas season.

The significant thing this survey has shown over the past eight years is the even distribution of shoplifting activity the supermarket operator must anticipate throughout the year.

There were most supermarket apprehensions on Thursday and fewest on Sunday. However, Sunday is not the lowest sales volume day in those stores. The amount of shoplifting appears to be correlated with the amount of customer traffic. The relatively small number of Sunday apprehensions seems to result from fewer personnel, both merchandising and security, being on hand to make apprehensions.

Saturday was the most productive day for apprehensions in drug stores with 22.3 per cent being caught on that day. The Saturday drug store figure is weighed by the fact that 25 per cent of all juvenile offenders were caught on Saturday.

INDUSTRY, BUSINESS WEEK

Elation seen evaporating

The elation felt by businessmen when the Nixon Administration took bold charge of the economy in mid-August "has all but evaporated," according to a survey in Business Week Magazine.

"The uncertainty hanging over us is terrible," William R. Lincher, president of Purex Corp., said. "We can't even engage in near-term planning. We want to chart January through March, but we not only do not know the rules of the ball game, we don't even know the shape of the ball field."

To be sure, most of the executives interviewed are optimistic for long term business prospects, and some of them have already seen improvements in their own earnings statements. But there is a feeling that the Administration ought to get on with shaping the next batch of controls so that the thorny problems of labor's demands and foreign trade relations can be tackled.

"Speaking generally," said Robert E. Hunter, chairman of Weatherhead Co., an $80 million Cleveland dard goods manufacturer, "there is no question that the effect of the economic policy to date has been to delay buying decisions. The businessmen with whom we do business are not sure just what they're going to do, and as a result, you find them doing nothing."

"I feel there's no question we'll have better business," Hunter said, "but it's not going to be a boom."

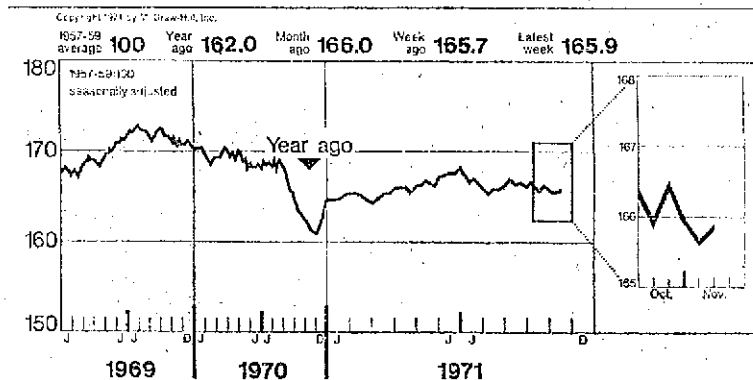

PRICE CONTROLS under Phase II of the new economic program signaled a rocky profit road is ahead for business, Industry Week reported this week.

Higher profits will be hard to come by under the 2.5 per cent price increase guideline and the rule that higher prices cannot be used to increase a business' margin of profit, the magazine for managers said. This means that about the only way companies will be able to boost earnings is by raising their business volume.

In normal times, profits would rise about 15 per cent in a recovery year such as 1972 is expected to be — but industry fears such a gain would be hard to attain with profit margins frozen. Business psychology could be adversely affected, and this could undermine increases in capital spending and put the brakes on the recovery.

Another fear of business leaders is that tight profit controls might dry up the supply of low-cost products and perhaps even result in a tendency to downgrade quality.

"If business can't make a profit at the approved price level, it will stop making the product," an apparel industry executive commented.

The index turned up slightly in the most recent week, reversing the decline in the two previous weeks. Gains were registered in electricity production and intercity truck shipments. Railroad carloadings held steady. Steel production eased after four consecutive weeks of increases. Auto output dropped as only one GM plant scheduled overtime last Saturday. Crude oil refinery runs also declined for the second consecutive week.

Broadway-Hale sales 'at new high'

Sales and earnings of Broadway-Hale Stores Inc. reached new highs for the period ended Oct. 30.

Earnings for the quarter rose 19.3 per cent on a sales increase of 10.8 per cent, and earnings for the year to date were up 22.6 per cent while sales increased 10 per cent.

Sales for the most recent 13-week period were $165,053,000 compared with $149,032,000 last year and for the first 39 weeks in the fiscal year reached $469,316,000, up from $428,753,000 in the comparable period a year ago.

Third quarter earnings of $4,996,000, or 40 cents per common share, after dividends on the larger number of preferred shares outstanding this year, compare with $4,187,000, or 36 cents per share last year.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Careful if you skip P.O.

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The turning point, future historians may decide, was the discovery by the Virginia Electric and Power Co. that it could deliver monthly bills to customers cheaper than it could mail them.

The utility said the cost of having its own employees deliver about 450,000 bills in urban areas was less than 5 cents per bill.

Whereas the postal rate, when last seen, was 8 cents.

Thus the company's do-it-yourself project will save about $162,000 a year.

It said businesses all over America had written for details of the delivery system, indicating they planned to by-pass the post office too.

YEAH, but that sort of thing is not a one-way street you know. Before long we may be seeing a series of other frugal enterprises. To wit:

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Postal Service announced today it soon will begin generating its own electricity at post offices throughout the nation.

The service said pilot programs in two cities had shown that electricity could be generated on the premises for cheaper than the commercial rate.

This money-saving measure was made necessary by the loss of revenue in areas where power companies have taken over mail deliveries," a spokesman explained.

He said inquiries about the program indicated a large number of government agencies and businesses planned to operate their own power plants.

NEW YORK — The International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. is setting up its own diplomatic service around the world and henceforth will make it own foreign policy, it was disclosed today.

The company said its ambassadors could negotiate disarmament treaties and handle other international relations more cheaply and efficiently than the U.S. State Department, where things tend to bog down in channels.

WASHINGTON — The State Department is installing a new communications system to replace the telephone.

A spokesman said diplomats here and abroad were being trained to send smoke signals and to relay secret messages through coded drum beats.

"Recent additional rate increases have made it impossible for us to use the telephone and remain within our budget," a spokesman said.

Telephone service is expected to continue, however, in overseas embassies operated by private corporations.

LUCKY SEAT PROMOTION

ROBERTSHAW CHANGES

Petrolane reveals purchase of Disco

Petrolane, Inc., Long Beach, has announced it has purchased the Disco Drug Co. for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The announcement was made by R. J. Munzer, Petrolane chairman and chief executive officer.

The purchase, according to Munzer, includes all 10 outlets in the Southern California Disco Drug chain.

Disco's president and founder, Frank Stutz, will remain with the company and will serve as president of the newly formed Disco division of Petrolane.

"Disco Drugs," said Munzer, "will enlarge the scope of Petrolane's consumer products division, which currently includes Stater Bros. Markets and the recently announced Brands Department Store. We expect to add four to five new stores a year within the Disco Drug Division."

The Disco stores all are located in Los Angeles County.

BankAmerica Realty buys financial center

BankAmerica Realty Investors, a real estate investment trust, announced this week it has purchased the Del Amo Financial Center, Torrance.

The complex, on Hawthorne Boulevard, includes more than 300,000 square feet of office space and approximately 11 undeveloped acres.

The undeveloped acreage will be improved with additional office facilities to ultimately provide more than one million square feet of office and commercial space.

The trust purchased the property from Great Lakes Properties, a subsidiary of the New York-based Great Lakes Carbon Corporation, or more than $10 million.

Wells Fargo checks to savers 'up'

A total of $23,129,344 has been distributed to more than 106,000 Christmas Club customers, Wells Fargo Bank announced.

The average Christmas Club check will be about $217, up from $211 a year ago.

Last year a total of $22,687,564 in checks was sent to 107,499 California residents.

Aer-O-Lite in contracts

Aer-O-Lite Draperies, Inc., of Garden Grove, has received two contracts involving $1,195 to manufacture and install new draperies in two offices of Security Title Insurance Co. of Panorama City.

The drapery assignment includes approximately 450 yards of various materials in Security Title's branch offices in Stockton and Menlo Park.

AUTHORS SPEAK OUT

A RICH MAN'S TAX GUIDE, by Ernest R. Field. Hearst Press, $10 (tax deductible).

In 1962, Field (attorney, CPA and lecturer) wrote "Stop Overpaying Your Taxes" and in 1968 his book "How to Make Money in Your Own Business" astonished some merchants with some things they hadn't known.

His latest volume is written specifically for the man who pays more than $4,000 a year in taxes — who would like to reduce that bill.

The book assumes the reader uses an accountant, then provides definite guidelines on how to reap benefits.

The author offers sound advice on ways to set up business affairs now — so as to avoid a heavier tax bite in years to come.

—RLB.

SELF RELIANT INVESTING, by John Ellis. Henry Regnery Company Publishers, $5.95.

Without neglecting the accepted methods of investing, the author sets about his real objective: offering techniques that the serious individual can use to enlarge his portfolio and to increase his profits.

Ellis discusses growth stocks, concept stocks and undervalued stocks (where he says the investor should be putting his money).

The book is addressed to the person who takes investing seriously — enough to know that professional advisors, brokers, analysts, fund managers are only as good as their records.

And often no better and sometimes considerably worse than the records of the average intelligent investor. —RLB

ESTATE PLANNING FOR WIVES, by Merle Dowd. Henry Regnery Company, $5.95.

This volume is based on an essential consideration — marriage should be, among other things, a financial partnership, in which money matters are understood by both the husband and wife.

In most families, major money matters are handled by the husband alone.

Grim statistics indicate, however, that the husband is likely to precede his wife in dying, leaving her perhaps with small children and total financial responsibility, for which she is totally unprepared.

To live comfortably the wife should be ready to deal with wills, property ownership, inheritance taxes, trusts, gifts, insurance, investments, Social Security and other government benefits, and much besides.

She should know how to evaluate financial advice and how to act on it.

To avoid difficulties in the event of family tragedy, the wife should be included in family money matters while the husband is still alive — sharing decisions and responsibilities and learning to use money wisely.

The advice the author gives will be ignored by husbands at the risk of great hardship for their wives, I fear. —RLB

Iowa takes lead with new tests

Iowa has a head start on a new traffic safety program designed to provide identification and reinforcement of safe-driving attitudes and techniques. Called 'DrivoTEST', it is the nation's first automated drivers' license test.

The new examination, which scraps the traditional paper and pencil for automated audio-visual techniques, is being used in Des Moines, Iowa. DrivoTEST builds safe-driving attitudes by training as well as testing, because answers to the questions are explained.

An applicant enters one of the 20 separate booths and presses a button that starts a color movie shown on a personal TV set. The film dramatizes a series of traffic situations that call for knowledge of legal and safe-driving requirements.

The film stops at a planned moment in each situation and presents a multiple-choice question which the applicant answers with a push-button responder. His choices are transmitted electronically to a central console where they are instantly scored.

10,000-mile spark plug change suggested

Ever wonder why you should change the spark plugs in your car after every 10,000 miles of driving?

There's a good reason. The 10,000-mile plug change recommendation is not actually based on the fact that spark plugs are "worn out," in the strictest sense, after 10,000 miles.

This figure — selected after extensive spark plug life tests — merely represents a safety factor beyond which plugs are likely to misfire under the sudden demands of peak acceleration or extremely heavy load. It also represents the point at which gas economy begins to drop and starting becomes more difficult.

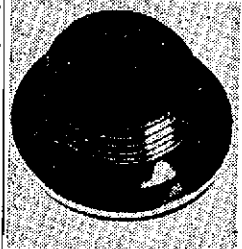

Champion Spark Plug Co. engineers consider a spark plug worn out when it reaches the point where it is likely to misfire — regardless of its appearance. And, contrary to popular opinion, misfiring doesn't necessarily mean the plug failed to create a spark. It simply means that the gasoline properly, whether a spark was produced or not.

How can a spark be produced and the plug still misfire? Because "spark tracking" (or high-tension current leakage) through carbon deposits on the spark plug's firing end can result in a weak spark, which in turn causes incomplete burning of the fuel mixture, and results in a loss of both power and economy.

HIGH RESISTANCE, which develops as the spark plug electrodes become rough and uneven and the gap between the electrodes increases, also can result in the spark being too weak. Here, too, the gasoline isn't ignited properly and incomplete burning of the fuel charge can result.

A new spark plug with the correct gap setting needs about 5,000 volts to fire. However, as the plug remains in service, constant heat and chemical attack plus electrical erosion cause the gap to become wider, thus increasing the amount of voltage to fire the plug. Spark plug gap growth occurs at a rate of about .001 inch for each 1,000 miles of driving.

Consequently, a set of plugs that has been in service for 10,000 miles generally will have gaps that are about .010 inch wider than the original settings and higher voltage is needed to make them spark.

This is only for normal driving.

Operating the engine at very high speed can decrease the amount of coil voltage available to fire the spark plugs by 30 to 40 per cent. Accelerating to pass on a highway may practically double the voltage burden on the spark plug.

That's why misfiring is first noticed while accelerating because it's here that the plugs actually can require more voltage to produce a spark than the ignition system is capable of producing — especially if the plugs are badly worn.

Now, back to the 10,000 miles change recommendation.

MOST spark plug engineers agree that a safety factor is needed in the spark plug to ensure proper plug performance under every possible operating condition. Consequently, they try to keep the amount of voltage necessary to spark the plugs well below the amount of voltage that the coil is capable of producing.

And keep in mind, this safety factor must take into consideration that fact that as the ignition system becomes older, its potential high voltage output drops off.

A new ignition system, for example, may be able to produce over 30,000 volts of electricity. The same system after 20,000 or 30,000 miles without replacing any of the parts may only be able to produce 15 to 20,000 volts.

Winning this road rally means 'college driveway'

How would you like to drive into the winner's circle, only you don't know where it is, and you don't know how to get there, but you have to arrive exactly on time?

Such is the task for entrants in the Exploring Safe Driving Road Rally, a national program for Exploring-age boys and girls organized by the Exploring Division of the Boy Scouts of America.

With national sponsorship by Lincoln-Mercury Division of the Ford Motor Co., up to 36 rally teams compete in a fall final event for $7,000 in college scholarships and the use of a new car for a year.

Finalists are selected from local rally winners, organized by Exploring division in area Boy Scout Councils, often with the sponsorship of local industry. For example, the Toledo, Ohio, area council rally, which sent the only all-girl team to the 1970 finals in Detroit, is sponsored by Champion Spark Plug Co.

RALLYING, a favorite pastime for many in the "sports car" set, is not a speed event, but a competition involving driving and navigation skill, plus the ability to observe local traffic laws, against a clock.

Competitors run on a pre-selected course, encounter all types of driving conditions, and progress is established — against a time factor known to the rally master — via a number of checkpoints situated along the route.

MAP STRATEGY

Participants in the Exploring Grand National Safe Driving Road Rally map strategy before start of the six-hour, 125-mile ordeal. The final runoffs are sponsored by the Lincoln-Mercury Division, Ford Motor Co.

Cars are sent from the starting point at one minute intervals and the navigator — the passenger — is handed a detailed instruction and direction list which will guide the rally team to the finish point.

Points are scored for arriving at checkpoints and the finish too soon or too late, and the team with the least points is the winner.

Classes are also a factor. Since time is the enemy, cars with elaborate expensive timing equipment are considered the "equipped" class. Cars using standard equipment, and perhaps stop watches and a slide rule, fall into the "unequipped" class.

THE TWO CLASSES normally do not compete against one another, but do run in the same event. The Exploring rallies are all "unequipped."

One important factor in rally success is the navigator. It's up to him — or her — to advise the driver where to go, how fast to proceed and for how long. In the Exploring events, an observer is also allowed in the car to aid the navigator.

The Exploring rally program is an example of the modern, creative activities available to young people.

Everybody's talking about pollution

but did you know you really can do something about it?

A recent tune-up clinic conducted with a large number of cars by engineering students at the University of Michigan found this: A tune-up did reduce exhaust pollution—a big 55% on the average. Of course, in some cars the reduction was less. But in others, exhaust pollutants were reduced even more.

Please. Won't you make it a point to take your car in for a tune-up? At least once a year or every 10,000 miles.

Toledo, Ohio 43601

Further clinic results are in the free factbook, WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT YOUR CAR'S EXHAUST POLLUTION. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Tune-Up Clinic Factbook, P. O. Box 910, Toledo, Ohio 43601

Be specific about this kind of car tuneup

Take your car to your service station and ask the attendant to give your car "Tune-Up No. 2" and he'll probably look at you and wonder. A tune-up he knows; a tune-up No. 2, probably not.

Yet, it's a needed service, one that's long overdue in most cars.

Tune-Up No. 2 is simply a thorough inspection and check of all the components making up a car's cooling system, plus replacement of worn or malfunctioning parts.

Why is it important? Consider this. The cooling system of your car performs a vital function, that of keeping the operating temperature of the engine at a level at which it will perform at top efficiency.

The cooling system on the average modern engines must be able to withstand in excess of 17 pounds of pressure combined with underhood temperatures that range from 224 to 278 degrees F. These higher heats and pressures put a strain on all components of the cooling system: Hoses, V-belts, water pump, thermostat, radiator caps.

It takes only one defective or nonoperative part to cause the engine to overheat with costly internal engine damage the likely end result.

If you are driving a late model car and it's been over a year since you've had your cooling system checked, you're overdue for trouble. And you're ready for a cooling system tune-up, or Tune-Up No. 2.

Avoid problems

THE COST is relatively small compared to the potential savings in forestalling expensive emergency service or repairs.

A Tune-Up No. 2 normally takes only about an hour and a half and carries a nominal rate of $12.00 plus parts.

And, if your station attendant or garage mechanic still doesn't know about Tune-Up No. 2, ask him to check his flat-rate manuals, or contact The Gates Rubber Co., 999 South Broadway, Denver, Colo. 80217.

Here's Tune-Up No. 2

1. A visual check of coolant level for indication of leaks or excessive oil content.
2. Check with pressure tester for internal and external leaks.
3. Visual check of oil for water content.
4. Test thermostat for proper opening, closing.
5. Check of heater valves.
6. Check heat gauge for accuracy.
7. Drain and back flush cooling system.
8. Clean radiator core of bugs and check for clogging.
9. Clean engine if heavily covered with grease, oil.
10. Test radiator pressure cap.
11. Check radiator neck cap seat for nicks or scratches that could release pressure.
12. Check water pump bearings.
13. Check fan blades and pulley for alignment and balance.
14. Inspect all hose and clamps for deterioration.
15. Check core plugs and drain cocks for leakage.
16. Refill system with coolant and check for airlocks.
17. Recheck entire system for leaks.
18. Check and adjust tension of V-belts.
19. Check and reset ignition timing to eliminate ping.
20. In cases where cooling system continues to over heat, check other possible causes.
21. Replace belts, hose, clamps, thermostat, cap, as necessary.

Vigilance required on pets, kids

Motorists are not the only ones who use the streets and highways.

Pedestrians often jaywalk, children hidden by parked cars dart into the street, cyclists sometimes ride as if they were in an empty field, and animals give little heed to traffic.

All such irresponsible behavior is aggravated during bad weather, when people become more impatient.

Keep your eyes moving to spot these potential emergencies. Don't depend on others to know the safety rules.

Balance vital to wheels

Have you ever noticed how different your favorite shoes feel with new soles and heels? Because the wear had accumulated so gradually, you had been quite comfortable in those shoes and had not Jody Carr realized how worn they were.

This is rather like the sudden improvement in our car when you install new tires. You may have become accustomed to the vibrations and noise of your old tires. Suddenly, with new ones, the car seems to glide.

You feel a dramatic change in the handling of your car, too. Especially with some of the newly developed tire designs.

Your new tires can be expected to last longer if they are properly balanced and aligned. But even the best of them may live a short life if either of these factors is ignored.

IT IS not unusual for misalignment to scrub off a third of a tire's tread. This can amount to several times the price of the wheel alignment job that could have prevented such waste and would have made your car a safer one.

How do you know if your car's wheels need aligning? Your first clue may come from erratic steering. The car may wander or pull from one side to the other.

'Car Care' seen keeping autos garage-proof

Not long ago we heard a prediction that the next few years would find the U.S. auto industry building cars that will be totally garage-proof — serving out their useful life from assembly line to junk heap without servicing.

The prediction made no mention of "Car-Care" — that essential responsibility of the owner, spelling the difference between risk of life and investment and the security of both during the life of the vehicle.

Most of us remember when a good garage mechanic could tell by the sound and feel — by the seat of his pants as the saying goes — what ailed the family car. Matter of fact, most of us kids could take down an engine and do our own valve and ring job if we had to.

But it isn't true anymore. Few would try it on a modern automobile. Few of us would relish the job of stripping air conditioning, power-assist systems and a dozen other modern extras — let alone try our do-it-yourself skills on those temperamental "horses" under the block.

Yet "Car-Care" — even if it's passed beyond the average owner's home-grown skills — is more important than ever. And predictions notwithstanding, it's going to be more and more important as the automobile takes on a degree of sophistication far beyond today's level.

First, many experts question what kind of power plant will be doing the job in "tomorrow's" autos.

We know that future energy conversions will answer to a series of computers; insuring fuel consumption without pollution to atmosphere, without waste, and with maximum response in power and maneuverability.

The future probably holds some form of radar brake control, guided highway lanes and a whole family of integrated, automatic safety devices.

The goal will be maximum crash-avoidance and maximum crash-survivability; and not the least of the ideas under serious consideration are devices capable of "sniffing" or screening out the irresponsible driver — the drunk or the addict — who becomes a killer, behind the wheel.

So vital will the role of professional "Car-Care" become, many experts believe, that the auto showrooms of tomorrow will feature both kinds of autos — the sophisticated "automatics" on one side, and the do-it-yourselfers line on the other.

HERE'S WHAT you do if you are looking for a quality car paint job according to the DeVilbiss Co.: Pick a busy shop — a sign of customer satisfaction; check for cleanliness; ask for their best man to paint your car. It may cost a bit more, but you get what you pay for.

Tune-up saves

A tune-up improves gasoline mileage, and engine performance that turns savings in dollars over to you.

Harmful emissions

When your car's PCV valve is clogged, harmful emissions from the engine can increase by 200 per cent, according to Champion Spark Plug Co.

Make sure car heater works well

With winter on its way, better make sure your car heater is functioning properly.

Often passengers in the front seat are comfortable but those in the back seat are cold. You turn up the heat, but it doesn't seem to make it to the back. The hot get hotter and the cold stay cold.

One reason for this may be a clutter under-seat. Generally, the heat flow is designed to travel under the front seat to the rear compartment.

Dirty battery terminals can cause 'won't starts'

Ever wonder why sometimes during starting, your car's battery sounds like it's dying — then suddenly kicks off? A major source of the problem could be dirty battery terminals or loose connections.

Open the hood of your car. Are the battery terminals covered with what looks like a green moss? If not, are they loose? The green substance is acid build-up.

When it reaches a saturation point of covering the lead terminals, energy transmission is impaired and starting becomes a problem.

In advance stages of acid build-up, not enough energy is transmitted to even turn the engine over once!

Corroded or loose battery terminals are easy for your local service station mechanic to fix.

The investment will be nominal and you'll be free all season long from this "won't start" cause.

Double trouble

A 2 per cent incidence of spark plug misfire can more than double the rate of hydrocarbon emissions from a car's engine, according to Champion Spark Plug Co.

Correct V-belt faults

If the V-belt on our car is squealing or appears to be slipping, it's time to do something about it. But, the answer is not to apply belt dressing.

The maker of one major V belt line advises against belt dressing. For one good reason. All belt dressings contain an oil base penetrant which ultimately softens the belt and shortens belt life.

Their advice is to look for the cause. If a belt slips, forget the dressing and have the belt tensioned to manufacturer's specifications. The result will be longer lasting and the belt won't be damaged.

If the V-belt is noisy, belt dressing may provide some relief but it will be short-lived and belt damage can result.

Noise is usually caused by dirt, dust, rusty water and/or anti-freeze. The solution is as simple as thoroughly cleaning the belt and pulleys, or re-aligning pulleys and re-tensioning belt.

Don't use any dressings! Find the cause... and have your mechanic correct it.

Take a look

It's a good idea to check all around your car before starting.

Make sure that there are no glass or obstructions around your tires.

Protective locks deter joy riders, but not pros

By ROBERT W. IRVIN

One of every 100 cars and trucks in the United States was stolen last year. Or, to put it another way, almost one million vehicles were stolen in a year when new car sales totaled 8.3 million.

I seems like a contradiction, but these thefts — which are at a record high — come at a time when all new cars are being equipped with anti-theft devices to lock the steering column, transmission and ignition.

However, these devices have only been on cars for the last few years. There are probably still 90 million vehicles on the road without them.

So, it will likely be some years before it can be determined how much the new devices will cut thefts.

Nationwide, car thefts are still on the increase. In 1968, some 777,800 cars were stolen; in 1969, 871,900. The FBI has not yet released most recent figures, but they are expected to show another increase to well over 900,000, perhaps one million.

The anti-theft locks are not stopping the professional car thief, according to officials from industry and government. The pro knows how to defeat the lock — in some cases by physically removing it.

San Francisco police recently reported to the Automobile Manufacturers Association (AMA) that many professional car thieves operating in their city were towing the new cars away.

Instead of trying to break the lock on the street, they haul the car to a garage.

However, towing the new cars can be a problem for both thieves and police because the devices lock both the transmission and steering column. With the conventional rear-drive American car, you can't pick up the front wheels and tow it because the transmission keeps the back wheels locked.

You can pick up the rear end and tow the car, providing the front wheels are locked in a straight ahead position. But you can't tow it this way if the front wheels were turned when the column was locked.

The only recourse then, is to put dollies under the wheels to tow the car. Obviously, no juvenile is going to go to this trouble just for kicks.

But Robert L. Wilson, secretary of the AMA's vehicle security committee, said the device "definitely has an effect on the joy riding kids. The juveniles are stealing a lower percentage of new cars. And that was our main thrust with the device."

The only available statistics show that about 40 per cent of the cars stolen had the keys left in the ignition. This, of course, defeats the purpose of the triple-locking system.

To remind people to remove their keys, cars for the last couple of years have had a buzzer which sounds if the driver's door is opened with the key still in the ignition.

In an effort to make it easier for police to identify a stolen car and to make it tougher for thieves, Vehicle Identification Numbers (VIN) are now mounted permanently on the instrument panel.

New cars have had to have the triple lock since Jan. 1, 1970 under a federal safety regulation adopted because stolen cars are 200 times more likely to be involved in a traffic accident.

Thus, if you cut down the number of car thefts, you should cut down the number of accidents.

Recreational vehicles, trucks now valuable targets for theft

Officials also note a rising number of stolen trucks and recreational vehicles.

"The thieves are moving into this field as these vehicles become more popular," one auto spokesman said. "It's very tough to identify them too, because there are so many manufacturers."

About 84 per cent of stolen cars are now recovered, down from 92 per cent (of the 283,300 cars stolen) recovered in 1959.

Thus, as a larger percentage of the thefts are by pros, the percentage of cars recovered will probably continue to drop.

While the locks apparently won't stop a professional thief, the warning devices which are available as accessories may stall him.

One auto man said, "A warning system individually tailored to a car can be successful. But if the warning system is installed on a production line, then the thieves know how to beat it."

"They will go to junk yards and buy wrecked cars just to 'operate' on them — like a school for thieves."

NEW YORK City is called, among other things, the stolen car capital of the world. Chicago is running second. One auto executive theorizes, "I know there are a lot of organized groups in New York and Chicago who steal cars — make a business out of this."

"In my opinion, the most technologically sharp individuals come out of Chicago. The car thief there is like a frustrated engineer. He seems to know all the fine ways of doing things — a real sharp cookie, good with a hammer and a torch."

Why does your car need Tune-Up No. 2 now?

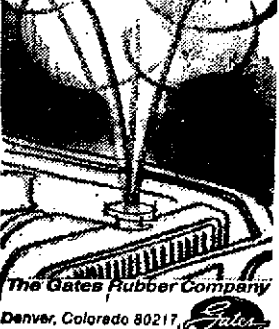

Engines generate heat. Lots of it. Only a properly operating cooling system can remove that excess heat, keep your engine at the proper temperature.

Drive with a worn V-belt, faulty radiator cap or thermostat, or a leaking hose and you're asking for trouble; overheating, inconvenience, road breakdowns, possible expensive repairs.

You can avoid trouble with a Tune-Up No. 2...a thorough check of the entire cooling system plus replacement of worn or defective parts.

CLEAN AIR CLINIC

A key ingredient of Champion Spark Plug Co.'s Cleaner Air Clinics is an exhaust analyzer which measures hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions produced by car engines.

Three vital adjustments cut pollution drastically

By DAVID L. WALKER
Director, Technical Services,
Champion Spark Plug Co.

Good things — or bad things — come in threes." Three is the number of key tune-up adjustments that can convert an average car from a polluter to a relatively pollution-free vehicle.

The basic steps in reducing air pollution involve correcting spark plug misfire, maintaining correct fuel/air mixture and making sure timing is set correctly.

Through a series of Cleaner Air Clinics, Champion Spark Plug Co. is instructing auto technicians throughout the nation in how to recognize and correct these flaws. The clinics will reach more than 60,000 technicians with the latest information on controlling air pollution from automobiles.

SPARK PLUG MISFIRE — A 2 per cent rate of misfire can more than double the amount of unburned hydrocarbons.

The 2 per cent misfire is critical since the average motorist cannot detect that his engine is acting up with that rate of malfunction. So he is not aware there's anything wrong, let alone the fact that his car is polluting excessively. Causes of spark plug misfire include worn, out spark plugs, deficiencies in other ignition components, such as points, distributor caps rotors or cables.

OVERRICH FUEL SUPPLY — The function of the carburetor is to mix the gasoline with air and feed the mixture to the combustion chamber. An overrich mixture can result in 200 to 300 per cent increased unburned hydrocarbons.

Typical causes of an overrich fuel mixture include clogged air filters restricting the supply of air, improperly adjusted idle mixture and a carburetor in need of servicing.

TIMING — With the new anti-pollution devices on cars, some motorists complain about loss of power.

Some auto service technicians will try to compensate for this condition by advancing the timing settings beyond what car makers recommend. As a result the production of unburned hydrocarbons can increase from 10 to 30 per cent. In addition, the over-advanced timing can shorten spark plug life and damage the engine, thus increasing pollution even further.

Other incidents of neglected maintenance can increase air pollution, these include using spark plugs of incorrect heat range, use of improper fuel for the engine and failure to keep anti-pollution devices in good working condition.

Correct usage tips for coin car washes

Coin-operated car washes must be used correctly to protect paint surfaces from serious damage, according to E. J. Hartmann, president of Ziebart Process Corp. Hartmann said, "A number of people have complained to us recently that the paint on their automobiles is not retaining its brilliance and, in some cases, that it is actually pitting and deteriorating. On further investigation, we have found that these people are frequent users of coin-operated car washes.

"Questioning these complainants, we have found that they have the habit of trying to get in and out of the coin-operated washes as quickly as possible in order to save spending an extra coin for additional minutes of wash time.

"The result," said Hartmann, "is that they may have saved an additional quarter but they leave the wash without completing the job. Rather than spend the money needed to do the job right, they will try to squeeze a complete job in the metered wash time purchased with one or two coins.

"Often when they leave, their cars carry with them a layer of filmy soap. This remains on the cars and dries, only to liquefy later with rain.

"The soap solutions used in these car washes are fine to clean away road film, but they are not meant to be left on the paint surface. I would warn motorists that they should use the coin-operated washes correctly. Take several coins with you and spend what is needed to do the job right," Hartmann said.

No 'idle' rumor

According to a University of Michigan engineering school study, hydrocarbon emission from an automobile engine is reduced an average of 55 per cent at idle after a tune-up.

Follow advice, learn starting on 1909 car!

AUTOMOBILE DRIVING SELF-TAUGHT, by Thomas H. Russell and ENGELMAN'S AUTO-CRAFT by Roy A. Engelman, Chilton Book Company.

Do you expect starting trouble this winter? Then try this procedure: Flood carburetor. Close air intake with cloth. Prime cylinders with a half teaspoon of gasoline. Advance spark little more than usual because of lag in ignition. Soak cloth with gasoline and put in air intake so gas can be drawn into cylinders. Keep throttle well open. Warm carburetor, being sure no water gets into air intake.

This advice, which should serve you well if you drive a 1909 model car, is contained in a fascinating volume, "Automobile Driving Self-Taught." Along with "Engelman's Autocraft," the book has been re-issued by Chilton Book Company as a contribution to the nostalgia craze which is sweeping the country.

Originally published in 1909, the Russell book predated the time of strict auto licensing and of reliable and universally available repair service. Each intrepid motorist was his own driving teacher and often his own mechanic.

The vagaries of the old-time car made the job of the novice driver difficult indeed. Russell advised that "the garage should have a large door at each end to save a lot of time and trouble reversing."

In addition, owners were plagued by constant tire trouble, the necessity of advancing or retarding the spark frequently and maneuvering the car along muddy or rutted roadways.

Yet some of the advice offered in the two volumes would benefit today's car owner.

Engelman writes, "Much of the satisfaction that an automobile gives depends on the driver. If he neglects his automobile, if he does not lubricate it, or if he tinkers with it too much, he is bound to receive unsatisfactory service."

He continues, "Your satisfaction will be greatly increased if you will learn the details of your automobile." Since the motorist of earlier times was considered more of a sportsman than, say, a young mother shepherding the kids to the Brownie meeting, rules of the road were important.

ENGELMAN admonished, "Don't curse police officers. It is your duty as a citizen to understand the rules of street traffic, rules which the police help enforce."

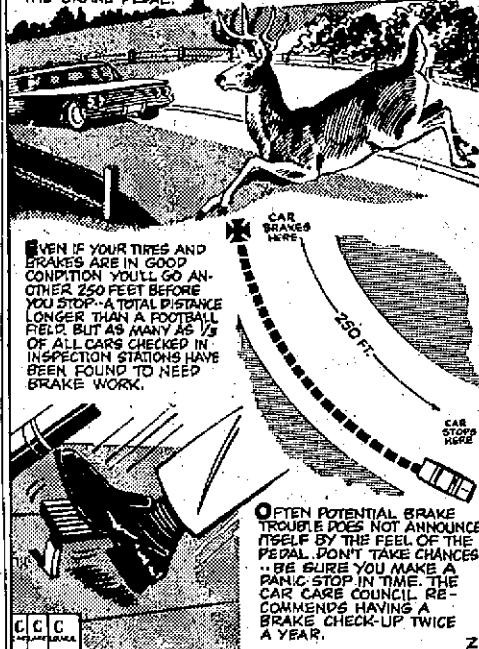

Of course, dealing with horses and "sommambulant" pedestrians also plagued the motorist of the early years. Warnings were issued that while city horses were becoming accustomed to automobiles, their rural counterparts were still car-shy. So caution was urged.

Both of these volumes are valuable additions to any car buff's library. Even if your buffery is lukewarm you'll find much to instruct and amuse in these two Chilton volumes.

AUTO FACTS

BRAKES

AT 65 MPH YOU'LL GO 70 FEET FROM THE TIME YOU DISCOVER YOU HAVE TO STOP UNTIL YOUR FOOT HITS THE BRAKE PEDAL.

EVEN IF YOUR TIRES AND BRAKES ARE IN GOOD CONDITION YOU'LL GO ANOTHER 250 FEET BEFORE YOU STOP—A TOTAL DISTANCE LONGER THAN A FOOTBALL FIELD. BUT AS MANY AS 1/3 OF ALL CARS CHECKED IN INSPECTION STATIONS HAVE BEEN FOUND TO NEED BRAKE WORK.

OFTEN POTENTIAL BRAKE TROUBLE DOES NOT ANNOUNCE ITSELF BY THE FEEL OF THE PEDAL. DON'T TAKE CHANCES. BE SURE YOU MAKE A PAMC STOP IN TIME. THE CAR CARE COUNCIL RECOMMENDS HAVING A BRAKE CHECK-UP TWICE A YEAR.

Jumper cables, not rope can prove lifesavers...

Back in the good old days, whenever they or towing by novices to were, the wise motorist always carried a rope in his car — especially if it was subject to fits of stubbornness.

More than one driver, cloaked in duster and goggles, has been seen tying the rope to his front bumper so he could haul the car out of the mire.

Later, man learned about pushing one car with another — mainly to get the faulty one started. But car makers recommend against pushing or towing by novices to were, the wise motorist always carried a rope in his car — especially if it was subject to fits of stubbornness.

In addition to the distinct danger of damaging your automatic transmission, it is altogether possible that your particular car cannot be started with a push. So today's emergency measure, other than the nearest telephone, is jumper cables — long cables that permit you to transfer current from the strong battery in one car to a weakened one in another.

Freeways prove good investment for you

Freeways may not be free, technically, but they are among the best investments the average citizen makes with his money.

According to the Highway Users Federation for Safety and Mobility, for every dollar expended from the U.S. Highway Trust Fund on the Interstate system, about $2.90 is returned in direct users benefit.

Taxes raised from gasoline, tires and trucks are building the most efficient and safe highway system the U.S. has ever enjoyed.

This year the Highway Trust Fund is observing its 15th Anniversary.

Some of the highlights of the fund's benefits to the car owners are listed below:

- The Federal-Aid Primary system accounts for less than 10 per cent of all U.S. roads but carries about half of all motor vehicle travel.

- The 42,500-mile Interstate Highway system, to be completed by 1978, is nearly twice as safe as other roads and streets. In recent years the fatality record on the Interstate was 2.99 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles traveled vs. 5.62 miles for other roads. The Interstate system is saving 8,000 lives per year.

SOVIET AMBASSADOR Jacob Malik, speaking to the U.N. General Assembly, charges that Peking has posed as a defender of smaller countries while using as its theme an attack on the superpowers — the U.S.S.R. and the United States — in order to gain superpower stature itself. At bottom, Communist Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua laughs while listening to a translation of the attack. (See story on Page A-8.)

Youth slays 4, himself

LANCASTER — A teen-ager fatally shot his former girlfriend, her new suitor, her mother and stepfather and then himself Friday, witnesses said.

Four, including the gun-wielding youth died at the home of the stepfather, who died on the way to the hospital, authorities said.

A 14-year-old girl escaped by diving through a window, neighbors told newsmen, and was later taken to the hospital with cuts on her arms.

Sheriff's deputies investigating the shootings declined to disclose any information, but neighbors who were the first on the scene agreed on this account:

Gary Logan, 18, raced up to the Welch home in east Lancaster on his motorcycle, jumped off and ran inside the house with a pistol.

Inside, he shot his former girlfriend, Lori Roskam, 15, and her companion, Rockey Holcomb, 17. He also shot Doris Welch, the mother, and her husband, Jack Welch. Then he shot himself.

Witnesses said 14-year-old Susan Roskam, Lori's sister, jumped through a closed window.

Welch was a laboratory supervisor at Antelope Valley Hospital where he was dead on arrival with gunshot wounds in the chest at 4:52 p.m., hospital officials said.

"I heard shots, then screaming and glass flying," said Forrest Sadler, 38, a neighbor who was working in his garage at the time. "I was afraid to move at first."

Janet Howard, 18, who was babysitting for neighbors across the street, said:

"One girl leaped through the front window of the house and she was shouting, 'He's dead, He's dead.' " The babysitter referred to Susan Roskam.

Fog, rain and holiday traffic on the freeways teamed up to push the state's highway fatalities to at least 26 for the Thanksgiving weekend.

Motorists headed for weekend vacation spots on rain-slick roads in the north and on fog-shrouded freeways in the south.

In spite of foul weather and four separate collisions which killed 13 people on Thursday and Friday, the death toll was running well below last year's record of 88 on the 4½-day holiday weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Nationally, 271 persons had died in traffic accidents since the start of the holiday period at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 620 and 720 persons would be killed on the nation's highways during the 102-hour holiday period ending at midnight Sunday.

The dense fog which has persisted in sections of Long Beach and along the Southern California coast this week contributed to the death of five persons Friday, authorities said.

Four people lost their lives in a head-on collision on Highway 65, 50 miles north of Bakersfield. Highway patrolmen identified them as Hubert Lindsey, 53, of Oakland; Thomas E. McDowell, 16, Downey; Randy Evensen, 16, South Gate, and Darrell Smith, 17, of Brea.

The fifth victim was identified as Albert Brittain, 21, of 1328 Cypress Ave., Santa Ana. The victim was stationed at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station. His small foreign car overturned on the fog-covered Santa Ana freeway near Los Angeles.

An 18-year-old Woodland Hills girl was killed Friday night when her car collided head-on with a truck on Las Virgenes Canyon Road two miles south of the Ventura Freeway.

The victim was identified as Ann Dettman of 24130 Mariano St.

The driver of the truck, Charles Augustan, 24, of 2712 W. 182nd St., Redondo Beach, was reported in serious condition. He was booked on suspicion of felony drunken driving.

Long Beach police reported no fatalities, but three persons were injured in accidents Thursday.

More fog and low clouds were forecast for Long Beach, but U.S. Weather Bureau officials predicted "some improvement" in late night-early morning weather by Sunday.

Dockers ordered to work

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal judges, responding to President Nixon's use of the Taft-Hartley Act, ordered striking longshoremen back to work in scattered seaport cities Friday, halting a strike which has tied up Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports for 57 days.

Temporary restraining orders were signed in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Mobile.

The Justice Department filed suits in 12 cities after President Nixon invoked the Taft-Hartley Act

Thursday providing for an 80-day "cooling off" period allowing longshoremen to return to work while negotiations continued.

A union official said some longshoremen are expected to return to work today but a New York Record foreign trade deficit blamed on dock strike.

On Wednesday, U.S. District Judge Jack M. Gordon in New Orleans signed an injunction ordering dockworkers to return to work but stayed his ruling pending notice of appeal by the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA).

Union attorneys said Friday they would appeal the judge's decision but it would "serve no useful purpose" to request another stay since Nixon invoked the Taft-Hartley Act.

Meanwhile, the dockworkers in New Orleans were filtering back to the docks for assignments.

In New York, where 69 ships are tied up as the result of the walkout by 24,000 longshoremen, District Judge Dudley F. Borsal ordered the men to return to work at the same pay and fringe benefits they received when the contract expired on Oct. 1.

In Baltimore, U.S. District Judge Herbert F. Murray issued a similar order, sending that city's 5,000 longshoremen back to work today. U.S. District Judge Charles

Weiner also ordered Philadelphia's 5,000 workers to return to work today.

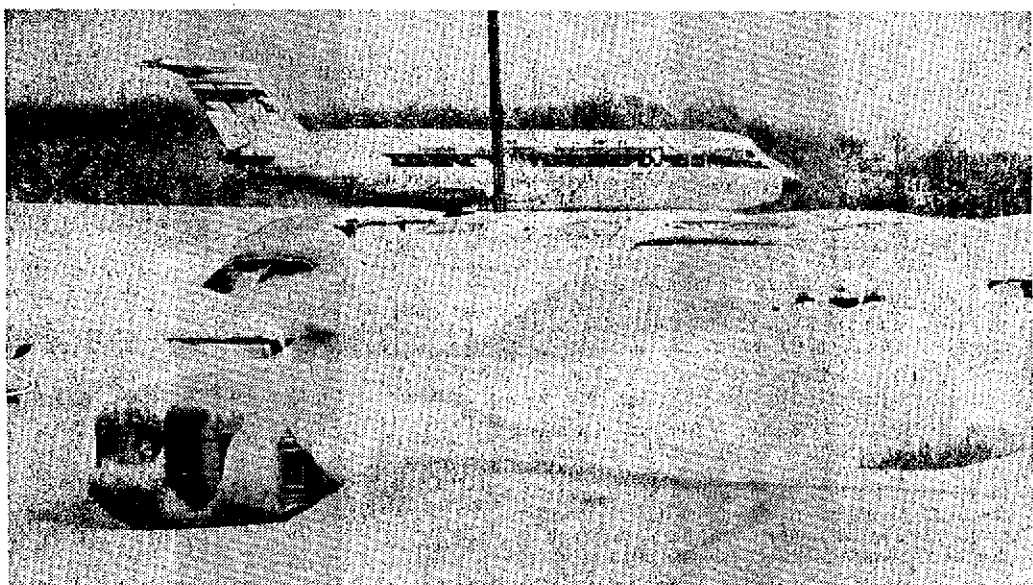

Hearings will be held Dec. 2 and Dec. 3 to determine if the temporary return-to-work orders should be made permanent.

The suits, which were prepared and coordinated by the Justice Department, claimed the United States would "suffer immediate and irreparable injury" unless the courts handed down temporary restraining orders halting the strike for 80 days.

Chief target of the suits was the International Longshoremen's Association.

Backing up the request of the Justice Department was a raft of affidavits submitted by federal departments attesting to the dangers facing the country if the ports do not reopen soon.

Paul W. McCracken, outgoing chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, summarized the affidavits with (Turn to Back Page, Col. 1)

Biggest request (23.9%) of Phase 2 Mail rate increase asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service, seeking to make up for a rate increase sidetracked during the freeze, told the Price Commission Friday it wanted to raise third class mail rates by 23.9 per cent.

It was by far the largest price increase requested by any firm since Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic stabilization program began two weeks ago.

The request, which must be reviewed by the seven-member commission before it can go into effect, would cover advertising circulars and other "occupant" type mail. First class and air mail rates would not be raised.

The Postal Service's request is nearly ten times larger than the 2.5 per cent economy-wide yardstick laid down by the commission for post-freeze price increases.

At the same time, the Commerce Department's composite index of leading economic indicators moved up 1.2 per cent in October, a sharp rise over the 0.2 per cent increase in September.

The index is considered a good barometer of future business trends and Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold Passer said the latest figures showed "a decisive up trend ... consistent with private forecasts

of a vigorous expansion of the economy in 1972."

In its first denial of a request for a price increase, the Price Commission turned down a 1.8-per cent boost sought by the Bassett Furniture Co., Bassett, Va. The commission said the company had not supplied information on productivity with its application. The company said such figures were impossible to compute for the furniture industry.

The request by the Postal Service was one of 36 received Friday by the commission, including 13 from coal companies and four from steel firms. So far, 143 companies have asked to boost prices since the freeze ended Nov. 14.

The Postal Service filed its request under a rule which allows companies to seek increases that were announced before the freeze was imposed Aug. 15.

The present bulk rate for third class mail is $42 per 1,000 pieces. The Postal Service wants to raise this to $50 per 1,000.

John Daly, a spokesman for the Direct Mail Advertising Association, said the higher rates would force many small businessmen to stop using the mail to

SST revival seen for U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administrator John H. Shaffer Friday predicted that the United States will resurrect its supersonic transport program and have "a production model by 1982."

Shaffer said the nation is beginning to realize that it made a mistake when it allowed the $1.4-billion SST program to die earlier this year for lack of congressional appropriations.

In an interview, Shaffer said he felt that the growth of foreign aviation is scaling down the size of the American share of the market, and damaging this nation's economy through rising unemployment and falling sales in the aerospace market.

"A lot of people are beginning to realize that we didn't do the right thing" when Congress voted to scrap the 1,800-mile-an-hour American SST, Shaffer said.

The move left the market to the British-French Concorde and the Soviet TU 144 supersonic transports. Shaffer, who returned this week from a tour of the FAA's worldwide installations, said the French expected to sell three Concorde's, a smaller, and slower version of the defunct American version, to the Chinese Communists. Shaffer also said the Romanian delegation would arrive in the United States shortly in an attempt to work out an agreement for the purchase of several used American jetliners.

Romania needs planes for use on internal air routes as well as for air links to Communist China.

Shaffer said he was concerned by the surge of foreign manufacturers to capture a large share of the world market from American aerospace firms, who, in the case of the SST, do not have a product to keep them in competition.

Easy way out rejected by Angela

Angela Davis found Cuba inspiring, but she didn't seriously consider staying there.

"I feel we have to achieve in this country what the Cubans achieved in Cuba. I had to come back and work towards that and not take the easy way out."

High school survey

Alcohol, sex, Demos preferred

CHICAGO (UPI) — A survey of 23,000 high school student leaders showed they prefer alcohol to marijuana, Democrats to Republicans and, while half of them thought sex before marriage was okay, 35 per cent thought it was not.

The survey was conducted by Merit Publishing Co. last summer and drew 23,000 responses from student leaders in 18,000 of the nation's public private and parochial high schools. The questions were complied by nine high school leaders at an April seminar in the Chicago area.

The survey showed that "drinking is a heck of a lot more prevalent than the use of drugs," according to Merit President Paul Krouse. Thirty-nine per cent of the respondents said they did not use hard liquor, but 78 per cent said they had never smoked pot and 90 per cent said they never used hard drugs.

Of the 24 per cent who said they tried marijuana, only six per cent said they used it more than once or twice. Sixty per cent opposed use of pot and 30 per cent approved it. Only 34 per cent said they never drank beer.

On politics, 34 per cent said they identified "most closely" with the Democrats and 34 per cent said they were independents. Only 20 per cent put themselves in the Republican column.

In a choice of presidential candidates, President Nixon lost to Sen. Edmund Muskie D-Me., 57 per cent to 28 per cent. In sample ballots listing Democratic Senators Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; George McGovern, D-S.D.; Muskie and Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., only Humphrey lost to the President.

On parents, 51 per cent said their parents understand them about half the time and 31 per cent said all the time. And 80 per cent thought their parents were "about right" on discipline.

The students said the things that made them most proud of the nation were the moon landing, the 18-year-old vote and the attack on pollution. They listed as top national priorities an end to the war in Southeast Asia, pollution control and the war on poverty.

Krouse said 80 per cent of the students surveyed were seniors and 20 per cent juniors. He said 96 per cent are college bound and 90 per cent have a B average or better.

Merit, located in Northfield, Ill., features student leaders in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

N. Viet supply buildup seen

Combined News Services

SAIGON — South Vietnamese forces looking for enemy bases pursued an elusive foe in eastern Cambodia Friday amid reports of a big North Vietnamese supply buildup on the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos. Informants said sensors planted along the 3,000-mile rail network are registering 150 to 200 truck movements a day, compared to only 10 daily during the monsoon season that ended last month. Road-building squads also are at work despite daily U.S. air strikes.

It would take 90 days for these supplies to reach three North Vietnamese divisions hiding in rubber plantation country along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon, meaning they cannot be resupplied until February. This could be one of the reasons why the enemy has avoided contact so far with 25,000-man South Vietnamese force maneuvering around Krek, a Cambodian town near the border.

It is known that two of the North Vietnamese divisions headquartered in the area, the 5th and 7th, used up a lot of food and ammunition in an abortive offensive in the border region last month. Hanoi's 9th Division has used up supplies in battling Cambodian troops closer to Phnom Penh, Cambodia's capital.

Midwest pelted by new storm

CHICAGO — The nation's northern midlands were being pelted with snow Friday while the Northeast had as much as 2 feet of snow to remind it of a Thanksgiving Day storm termed by the National Weather Service in New Hampshire as the worst in 20 years. In the far West, still another storm was lashing the seaboard of Washington and Oregon with wind and rain, and pushing snow inland to the northern Rocky Mountains.

The Midwest storm, centered over Iowa, spread snow from Nebraska through the Dakotas, northern Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin to Upper Michigan, and rain to the south as far as Arkansas. Sisseton, S. D., got a foot of snow, western Minnesota only a little less, and western Wisconsin several inches. Weather Service warnings said 4 inches more may fall in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Nightfall chill was expected to turn rain to snow farther south into Illinois.

The Northeast dug out of snow cover as deep as 2 feet as the storm that left it moved out over the ocean still flinging a mixture of rain and snow at eastern Maine. The storm area extended from the mountains of the Virginias northward and eastward to central New England. It forced uncounted thousands of travelers to spend Thanksgiving Day in their stranded cars or among hospitable strangers. Probably because of relatively mild temperatures, no directly storm-related deaths were reported.

Rupe denies Kent State role

RAVENNA, Ohio—Jerry Rupe, on trial for participation in the Kent State campus disorders of May, 1970, testified Friday he did not set fire to a campus ROTC building that burned to the ground the night of May 2. He also denied striking firemen who were hampered in fighting the blaze by antiwar demonstrators who flooded the campus after President Nixon announced a day earlier he was sending troops into Cambodia. After Rupe's testimony, the defense rested its case and final arguments were presented by both sides.

Gangland slaying feared

CLEVELAND—Michael Frato, 37, the former owner of a rubbish hauling firm who was the target of a bombing plot earlier this month was found shot to death Friday in what police described as a "shooting with possible gangland implications."

Mideast debate set Friday

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The United Nations announced that the General Assembly's debate on the Middle East would begin next Friday. A U.N. spokesman Friday held out the possibility that Gunnar V. Nixon-Heath talk set

Combined News Services

President Nixon will meet Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain Dec. 20-21 in the resort islands of Bermuda as part of a series of consultations with allies prior to his journeys to Peking and Moscow, the Western White House in San Clemente announced Friday.

The session with Heath was scheduled for one week after Nixon's meeting in the Azores with French President Georges Pompidou.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said both pre-Christmas meetings on sunny islands in the Atlantic will be "strictly business."

In addition, informed sources said the President was expected to arrange a meeting with Premier Eisaku Sato of Japan in the mid-Pacific in late December or early January to discuss the China trip.

The President plans to announce by Wednesday the date for his trip to Peking which will symbolically end more than 20 years of icy hostility between the U.S. and China's Communist leaders.

Nixon said earlier he would visit Peking before May 1. He is scheduled to go to Moscow to meet Soviet leaders in the last half of May.

Bermuda is a self-governing British colony about 600 miles east of the North Carolina coast. Its seven main islands comprise about 20 square miles.

A conference with Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany is likely but no date has been set.

Nixon will be accompanied both to the Azores and to Bermuda by his national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Connally's presence suggests the talks will also cover the international monetary crisis touched off Aug. 15 when Nixon unilaterally suspended the convertibility of the dollar into gold.

The announcement of the Bermuda trip came on the second full day of Nixon's working holiday at his oceanside villa. The White House has not announced when he plans to return to Washington.

Nixon is scheduled to fly by helicopter to Palm Desert today to participate in dedication ceremonies for the $7.5 million Eisenhower Memorial Hospital.

'Just fine'

AFL-CIO President George Meany was described Friday as "just fine" although an official said he would remain at least two more days in an intensive care unit in George Washington University Hospital.

Meany was admitted to the hospital Thursday after suffering chest pains.

Jobs aboard?

My friend and I are planning a trip to Europe this summer. We have heard of a company called Students Overseas Services of Santa Barbara that guarantees passage to Luxembourg, job orientation and job placement for $304. We would like to be sure that this is a solid offer. I was a member of a European tour group which folded last summer, and I can't afford another financial failure. L.B. and E.R., Long Beach.

The company has been listed with the Santa Barbara Better Business Bureau since November, 1970 and there have been no complaints filed. The company was incorporated in Luxembourg in 1960. A spokesman for Students Overseas Services said that transportation to Europe no longer is included in the total price. For $183, the company locates a summer job for the applicant, obtains the necessary work permits and offers a five-day job orientation and counseling program. For more information, call the company at (805) 969-5356. A BBB spokesman warned that individuals should make sure that they know what they're paying for. Some companies promise only to look for jobs and others guarantee placement. A representative from the International Programs department at Cal State Long Beach told ACTION LINE that although he had not heard anything about this particular company, he often discourages students from becoming involved with some of the companies that promise to find jobs in Europe.

Tight spot

In June I gave $97 to a salesman from XERB for spot commercials on their radio station. I was supposed to be able to tape an advertisement for my restaurant and it would be played over the air. I heard nothing further and wasn't able to reach the salesman. Since then the station has been sold. Is there anything ACTION LINE can do to help me? H.H., Long Beach.

A spokesman for the station's new owners promised to give you the air time you paid for. He should have been in contact with you to arrange it, by now.

Discussion

Could you explain how records are chosen to be played on AM and FM radio stations? Is it up to the disc jockeys to play what records they want? R.S., Long Beach.

Radio stations vary in methods of selecting records to be played. Selections may be made by a disc-jockey, program director, music director, or a committee which listens to the records sent by distributors for promotion. Sometimes record charts in national trade publications such as "Billboard," "Record World," and "Cash Box" are used as a basis for picking records. One station's music director said they won't play a record unless it either appeared on the national charts or is by a major artist with many previous hits. Methods run the gamut from careful selection by group consensus and pre-taping entire record shows to a disc jockey picking a record, according to how he feels, just before it is played.

Unbonded

I joined the Marine Corps in January, 1968 and in February signed to have deductions taken from my paychecks for savings bonds. When I was discharged in July, 1970, I should have had 9 or 10 $25 bonds to my credit. I wrote to the Marine Corps Finance Center, Kansas City, Mo., asking for my bonds. Someone from the center wrote saying they had no record of my deductions. I have lost my copy of the original bond agreement. Can ACTION LINE help? W.A.C., Garden Grove.

No, ACTION LINE contacted Capt. L.W. Walter of the examination division of the Claims and Separation branch of the Marine Corps Finance Center who said your pay records do not show any deductions for bonds. Unless you can come up with some proof that these deductions were made, you're out of luck.

Old oak

Can ACTION LINE tell me if the public library of the school district ever sells their old, sturdy, wood furniture? I am especially curious about what happens to the wooden bookcases when they are replaced with metal ones. K.E.K., Long Beach.

Excess furniture and equipment from the Long Beach Library and the Long Beach Unified School District are sold at separate auctions through sealed bids. Your name has been added to their mailing lists and you will be notified of future sales. Others can have their names added to these two mailing lists by calling the city's Central Services Division, 438-9041 and by writing the Purchasing Department, Long Beach Unified School District, 701 Locust Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90813. The sales for the school district are advertised in the L.P.T. The School Days Equipment Co. at 973 N. Main St. in Los Angeles buys some school furniture from other school districts and libraries. Prices for the tablet arm chairs start at $8.95 and $15.95 for old row desks. They have no used bookcases, said salesman George Page, because bookcases are hard to get.

Portions of L.A. hit by temblor

Portions of Los Angeles were jarred by a minor earthquake Friday but no damage was reported, officials said.

The temblor, recorded at 3.0 magnitude on the Richter scale by Caltech seismologists, occurred at 9:16 a.m. and was centered in the Inglewood suburb, Caltech officials said.

Police said they received some 75 telephone calls — mostly from Los Angeles' Wilshire district — but no damage was reported.

Eugene Raleigh, information officer for the PUC, said $54 million of the yearly increase would probably be canceled retroactively to July 22 when the $143 million increase went into effect.

City of Long Beach will fight General Telephone rate hike. Page B-1.

The $54 million, he said, represents the amount of the increase earmarked to pay the tax that the court claimed was unnecessary.

However, Raleigh said the PUC's legal staff is studying the decision and "we don't know what the full ramifications of the court's action are yet."

"We'll advise the commission what the options are" after the study, he said.

PT&T said in a news release that "the recent order — the $143-million increase — in June 1971 was not under review in this case."

"The company is studying today's decision by the Supreme Court to determine what its next action will be," the statement said.

The court's decision, the company said, referred to the PUC's 1970 decision permitting PT&T to use "straight line" rather than "accelerated depreciation."

A company official said that the counting procedure that the court said would cut tax payments would only defer tax payments and would not necessarily realize a savings for the utility.

Cal. files $100,000 vote suit

A $100,000 suit was filed Friday by the state against a computer firm which the state alleges violated citizens' privacy by using an official list of registered voters to make commercial mailings.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., who filed the Superior Court suit against Computing and Software, Inc., of Los Angeles, said the suit was the first ever aimed at enforcing the invasion-of-privacy section of the California election code.

THE CODE prohibits the use of voter lists except for "election and governmental" purposes, he said.

"On at least two occasions this company used a computer tape containing the names of 4.5 million voters," Brown said.

According to the suit, Software was "specifically informed that these tapes were not to be used for commercial purposes" and that Software officials verbally agreed to erase the tapes after the 1970 general election.

U.S. aides plan L.B. ship rites

Top government officials will attend ceremonies in Long Beach harbor Tuesday celebrating the arrival of a ship returning unused American materials from Southeast Asia.

Officials scheduled to attend the welcoming party were not identified by the federal General Services Administration, but they are expected to be from Washington's highest government ranks.

Ceremonies will mark the arrival at Pier B of the S.S. American Courier at 10:30 a.m. The vessel is carrying more than $6.2-million in materials destined for use by domestic service agencies across America, an administration spokesman said.

THE materials are being returned under Project Home Run, which parallels the removal of American ground forces in Indochina, said the spokesman.

Jury weighs penalties for Manson

A Superior Court jury began its deliberations Friday on the penalty phase of Charles Manson' second murder trial.

Manson, who was found guilty last Nov. 2 in the 1969 murders of musician Gary Hinman and stuntman Donald "Shorty" Shea, already is under a death sentence along with three female members of his hippie-style clan for the murder of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

The jury must now decide whether the 37-year-old Manson should die in the gas chamber or be imprisoned for life for the Inman-Shea slayings.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Choate instructed the jurors before they began their deliberations.

A Manson cultist, Steve Grogan, 20, is to be sentenced Monday after another jury convicted and recommended death for his part in the Shea killing.

Bruce Davis, 28, another Manson follower, will go on trial Monday before Judge Choate in connection with the murders.

Mexican-American pickets at Nixon home ask jobs

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — A group of placard-carrying demonstrators, claiming that Mexican-Americans don't have equal employment opportunity in the federal government, picketed outside the Western White House Friday.

Five of the demonstrators met briefly with a presidential aide.

The demonstration, on a chill, foggy morning, was peaceful. Representatives of eight Mexican-American organizations from throughout California arrived carrying signs with such declarations as "Phase 3 Should be a Freeze on Unemployment," and "Put the Freeze on Greed."

The group, estimated by newsmen at about 50 persons, was stopped several hundred yards away from the Western White House compound by authorities, but five delegates were allowed to walk to the gate, where they presented a petition to Secret Service men.

About 10 minutes later, Alex Butterfield, a deputy assistant to the President, arrived at the gate, and told the group he personally would see that the petition was delivered to Nixon.

"We realize we're not a football team," said Percy Duran, a young Mexican-American law student from Los Angeles. "But we've come here with some serious grievances."

The petition accepted by Butterfield asked Nixon to issue an executive order by June 1, 1972, that would require population parity in federal-civilian employment for all minorities by January 1974.

It said Spanish-speaking Americans constitute 10 per cent of all military casualties in the Vietnam war, but are not equally employed by the government in the United States.

"We fail to understand how the government believes we are qualified to sit in a cockpit over Vietnam and unqualified to sit behind a desk in Washington," said Antonio Gallegos, a demonstration leader.

Gallegos, of predominantly Mexican-American East Los Angeles, said he was president of a statewide Mexican-American group called the American GI Forum.

Chace indicated he will now serve out his term due to end December, 1972 adding, "I'm enjoying my work, my health is good."

He said because of this and the fact that there were "a lot of good candidates coming out" he had been persuaded to abandon the appointment idea and give everyone an even chance for $33,396-a-year post.

His decision ended speculation that Republican Assemblyman Jim Hayes of Long Beach or Bob Beverly of Redondo Beach had been tipped as the front runners in the proposed appointment deal.

Chance denied that his decision was influenced by criticism from one of the leading candidates for the fourth district seat, Los Angeles City Councilman Marvin Braude.

Braude had termed the reported deal a "blatant and cynical manipulation."

Rubella cases said declining

ATLANTA (UPI) — Rubella, the mild childhood disease that causes complications in pregnancies and was blamed for thousands of birth defects six years ago, appears to be declining, the Center for Disease Control reported Friday.

The CDC said earlier patterns had suggested a peak of rubella, commonly known as German measles, in the early 1970s. However, no such rise has occurred and the number of cases actually decreased during the last year, the CDC said.

THERE WERE 44,050 cases reported during the past year, 20.4 per cent less than a year earlier, and 9.6 per cent less than the average reported for three years before rubella vaccine was licensed in 1969.

The decrease, the CDC said, was the first since rubella was added to the list of notifiable diseases in January, 1968.

Voluntary reporting by some states prior to 1968 suggested a cyclical pattern of high rubella activity every 6 to 8 years, the CDC said. The last epidemic occurred in 1964-65.

Between June 1, 1969 and Aug. 31, 1971, a total of 32,413,055 doses of rubella vaccine was distributed in the United States. The CDC said about 50 per cent of the entire "target population," children aged one to 12, have been vaccinated.

The center said evidence shows rubella "has been markedly reduced in areas that conducted effective vaccination programs compared with areas where vaccine usage has been less comprehensive."

Panama called drugs center

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has charged that "apathy, ignorance and collusion" by high Panamanian government officials has turned that country into one of the world's key centers of the illegal narcotics traffic.

"Panama is one of the most significant countries for the transshipment of narcotics drugs (heroin and cocaine) to the United States," according to a Justice Department report obtained Friday by UPI.

"It is clear that the Republic of Panama has not and is not applying sufficient attention to narcotic enforcement activities to achieve noticeable results," the report added. "This may be due to high level apathy, ignorance and/or collusion."

THE SIX-PAGE report specifically mentioned "the chief of air traffic control at Tocumen Airport," Panama's main international air terminal. This official, who was not identified, "utilized his official position to facilitate shipments of narcotic drugs through Panama," the report said.

The report was prepared Nov. 5 by the Bureau of

Disney World closes; parking lot filled up

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Walt Disney World closed its Magic Kingdom Friday, turning away hundreds of holiday visitors who sat hours in bumper to bumper traffic that clogged a superhighway for 30 miles.

"It was one heck of a mess," said Florida Highway Patrol dispatcher Harvey Gunn.

"Our parking lot just couldn't hold any more cars," Truman Myers, a Disney spokesman, said at noon Friday.

Traffic was reported at a standstill, backed up from the turnstile at the $400-million amusement center into three central Florida counties along Interstate 4.

Wreckers were called to clear three accidents stalled in the congestion.

There were no reports of serious injuries. "How can someone get hurt when motorists are creeping along at one-half mile an hour?" a trooper asked.

Drivers pulled out into shoulder lanes, creating more havoc. Police sent out pleas to use alternate routes.

The congestion spread into Orlando city limits on the east; and through Osceola and into Polk County on the west.

"There's never been anything before like this that I know of," said Gunn.

Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD) for the House subcommittee on the Panama Canal, headed by John M. Murphy, D-N.Y.

The subcommittee is scheduled to begin a series of hearings on the Canal Zone next week. Witnesses include the secretaries of State and Defense and the attorney general.

A spokesman for Murphy's office confirmed the existence of the report and said the subcommittee will deal in great detail with the narcotics problem as it affects Panama and the United States.

THE BNDD report said that "unless the Republic of Panama is sincerely willing to put forth the necessary effort to combat the traffic, Panama will continue to serve as a conduit through which vast amounts of illicit drugs are funneled en route to the United States."

The report said that during the past 12 months U.S. authorities have intercepted 814 pounds of heroin which came from Europe via Panama. "In one case, the son of a Panamanian ambassador and his bodyguard were arrested attempting to smuggle 156 pounds of heroin into John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York," the report noted.

"As South America is the origin of all the illicit cocaine in the United States, it is believed that the transshipment of cocaine through Panama may be even more significant than heroin," the BNDD report said.

Woman has more turkeys than guests

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Mrs. Ann Sprinkle of Bellefonte, Del., had an overabundance of turkeys for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Sprinkle bought a turkey this week and it seemed adequate for the Thanksgiving gathering of 10 she had planned.

Then it started to rain turkeys.

A bird, unaddressed but bearing greetings from real estate man Leon Welner, arrived at the Sprinkle home.

Mrs. Sprinkle called Welner and learned the turkey was meant for a former occupant of the house. She then telephoned the former occupant, who wished her a happy Thanksgiving and told her to keep the turkey.

Then another turkey arrived. It was from Welner, with a note thanking Mrs. Sprinkle for her phone call and her honesty.

Asian flu winter outbreak feared

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Center for Disease Control warned Friday that outbreaks of Asian or Hong Kong flu are likely this winter in America.

Although the CDC's first telephone survey of the states showed no significant activity yet, flu epidemics or outbreaks have already been reported in Europe and the Caribbean.

The CDC said the prediction arose because few cases of influenza were reported during the winter of 1970-71 and that generally, the flu bug is more prone to strike in communities and regions which recorded few, if any, cases last winter.

The CDC said its survey showed a slight increase in influenza-like illness in a few states and laboratory evidence of flu activity in sporadic cases.

Connecticut reported one isolation of the Asian flu virus and the District of Columbia recorded laboratory evidence of infection. The CDC said Georgia, Kentucky, Hawaii, Kansas, Montana and South Carolina noted some increase in flu-like illness. But it said there had been no specific laboratory confirmation in those states.

"Although the location and extent of outbreaks are difficult to foresee, regional influenza outbreaks appear more likely than nationwide involvement," the CDC said.

The CDC reported an outbreak of respiratory illness on Saipan, a United States trust territory in the Pacific, affecting 15,000 persons and with an attack rate of 60 per cent. One strain of flu was isolated in several patients. The illness appeared to affect children more frequently than adults, the CDC said.

The CDC said the World Health Organization (WHO) had been notified of widespread influenza activity in Eastern Europe. Romania reported widespread influenza-like illness in mid-September with a marked increase noted there since mid-October. Some 24 strains of a virus similar to the Hong Kong version were isolated.

Epidemic influenza in Bulgaria was noted in early October in Sofia and 55 strains of Hong Kong flu were identified. Widespread illness was also reported in early November in Hungary where the Hong Kong strain was isolated, the CDC said.

Influenza activity was also reported in Western Europe in The Netherlands and Spain where sporadic cases of Hong Kong flu were identified.

Hong Kong flu was documented in Trinidad and Tobago, but that epidemic was reported on the decline in late October, the CDC said.

Policing ban on risky playthings

Youthful sleuths purge toys

FLINT, Mich. (UPI) — Thousands of dangerous toys were removed from store shelves here in the past week because of 69 young volunteer investigators, Genesee County Prosecutor Robert F. Leonard said Friday.

All the toys had been banned by the Bureau of Product Safety of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Leonard said.

Some toys included

sharp wires, other faulty squeakers that could come off and choke a child, he said. Others had sharp prongs, pins, and stuffed animals had eyes that could come off and be swallowed, he said.

The 60 investigators — students from the University of Michigan Flint branch, General Motors Institute and Genesee County Community College serving on a special Consumers Protection Council — entered stores throughout the county in search of dangerous toys, Leonard said.

"In every case we met with quick cooperation and in most cases amazement that such an order existed," Leonard said. "The main problem in the dangerous toy situation is the lack of communication between the federal government and the retailers."

"They ban the toys, but don't tell the people who sell them," he said. "We felt after checking the situation, that it was our duty to get to the point of sale and ask that they be removed from the shelves."

It was the second assignment for the unpaid volunteers. Leonard said they had previously checked more than 300 stores and succeeded in getting mislabeled vitamin C pills that would have been dangerous to persons with heart conditions or those on salt-free or low-salt diets removed from the shelves.

Santas gather for briefing on 'Ho! Ho!' conduct code

NEW YORK (UPI) — Forty white-bearded, red-suited Santa Clauses gathered in Times Square Friday to learn the "do's and don'ts" of the St. Nicholas code of conduct.

The Santas were briefed by Col. Walter Nash of the Volunteers of America before taking their stations in front of downtown department stores to collect donations from Christmas shoppers.

The "do's" included being patient with young children, answering all questions courteously and wishing all passersby a "Merry Christmas." Among the "don'ts" were drinking, smoking and "becoming overly familiar with children or adults."

It was the start of the 75th annual Christmas charity drive of the VOA, which runs shelters on skid rows of major American cities and operates day care centers and homes for the aged.

The Santas, some of whom were derelicts rehabilitated in VOA programs, will collect donations throughout the Christmas season.

But one member of the corps gave up on the code

even before the opening ceremonies were ended. As the other Santas paraded for news photographers, ringing their bells and shouting, "Ho, Ho, Ho," he approached a reporter and, heard slightly askew, whispered: "Got a cigarette?"

U.S. recalls lot of French cheese

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New York importer has recalled 200 cases of French-produced Camembert cheese suspected of causing stomach ailments, the Food and Drug Administration said Friday.

The FDA said Anco Cheese Imports Inc. issued the recall order after being notified by the FDA that "the cheese was implicated in three different outbreaks of gastrointestinal illness."

The FDA said it has samples of the product under bacteriological examination.

The recall applies to eight-ounce packages of Le Roitelet brand cheese. The packages are stamped on the bottom with the number 3169.

The packages had been shipped to 15 consignees in New York, seven in Connecticut, six in New Jersey, three in Massachusetts and one each in Southfield, Mich., Denver, Atlanta, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Seattle, Cheverly, Md., Wayne Pa., and Washington.

The cheese is sold primarily through specialty shops.

The labels say, "Camembert Soft Ripened Cheese Le Roitelet, Manufactured by S.A.F.R., 44 R. Louis Blanc, Paris, France Fromage Camembert Cheese."

The FDA recommended that consumers not eat cheese from the suspect batch and said the packages should be returned to the stores where purchased.

Northwest electric power crisis feared this winter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission said Friday there is an adequate reserve of electric power for winter's peaks loads, in most sections of the country, but some plants are low on fuel, and a severe winter could cause a crisis in the Pacific Northwest.

The power crisis could be worse than originally projected, the FPC said, because its report, based on statistics gathered in August, did not take into account the effects of the coal strike or a recent court ruling requiring the Atomic Energy Commission to review the environmental effects of numerous atomic plants.

The commission noted a general improvement in generating capacity in all of the six general regions of the country except the East Central, which nonetheless maintained an adequate winter reserve.

Winter weather produces the greatest demand on power companies in most of the country when heating systems are in constant operation.

The FPC measures reserves in terms of the amount of generating capacity compared with the estimated peak winter load. The Northeast region, for example, has a reserve of 29.5 per cent, meaning it could generate 29.5 per cent more electricity than its expected peak need. The extra reserve is needed to compensate for equipment breakdowns and errors in computing demand.

Reserves for other regions are: East Central 21.1 per cent, Southeast 18.6 per cent, West Central 27.8 per cent, South Central 64.8 per cent, and West 19.2 per cent. The overall figure for the country, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, was 27.2 per cent.

Individual power systems within these regions may have inadequate reserves, but most systems are hooked into power grids that allow them to automatically draw current from other nearby systems.

The commission said it was not likely there would be a repeat of the 1965 power blackout in the East. The New York power pool has a reserve of 28.8 per cent, "a more than adequate reserve for the 1971-72 winter peak despite the limited interconnection facilities with adjacent systems and the company's inability to bring new base load generating capacity into service."

The picture is not so bright in the Pacific Northwest. The FPC said the Northwest "is considered a critical area" during the winter. It said the Bonneville Power Administration would not have enough capacity to meet peak loads and would have to borrow power from other systems.

The FPC said the shortage of reserves "could precipitate a serious electric power emergency if severe winter conditions should be experienced or major interconnections to the Pacific Southwest should be disrupted at a time of need."

Fueled by dock strike

Foreign trade deficit hits all-time high

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Effects of the prolonged dock strikes were a major contributing factor to the record $821-million trade deficit announced Friday by the federal government. The figures do not necessarily mean a failure of U.S. efforts to counter the trade imbalance.

Some observers believe that President Nixon's move for a court-ordered halt to the longshoremen's strike on the East and Gulf coasts is due to the trade figures, which showed the greatest deficit since World War II.

Much of America's exports are bulk products — grain to Europe, for instance, and coal to Japan. Such heavy low-value exports must go by ship. With the East and Gulf coasts strike on since Oct. 1, the flow of these dollar-earning goods has been cut off.

But this is not true of imports into this country. America buys such high value goods as radios and television receivers from Japan, cameras from Japan and Germany, gloves from Italy. Such low-bulk products can be brought in by air cargo and the import figures show they were imported that way. So America can import the goods she wants, by air, but cannot export the bulk goods which must go by ship.

The shipping strike is not the only reason for the balance of trade deficit, of course. The same factors which brought about the Aug. 15 efforts to reduce imports are still effective.

Even though the dollar has been effectively devalued, making United States goods cheaper overseas, the devaluation has not been enough to turn around the balance of trade. United States authorities say they must increase their trade by $13 billion to correct the imbalance. Instead, this year, the deficit has been increasing.

The seasonally adjusted October figures were $2.71 billion in exported goods against $3.53 billion in imports.

Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said East Coast shippers exported heavily in September in anticipation of the walkout by longshoremen from Maine to Texas. This was reflected, he said, in a $265 million trade surplus in September.

On the West Coast, where dock workers have returned to their jobs after a three-month walkout, Passer said there were so many ships waiting to be unloaded that exports were dramatically limited.

Pacific ports tend to carry more U.S. import trade than exports anyway, he said.

Another factor, he said, was an increase in the importation of crude oil, natural gas and iron ore, which was not affected by the coastal tieups.

Other figures released on U.S. trade show that foreign exporters continued to believe they can sell their goods at a profit in the United States despite the surcharge.

"October collections of $112 million indicate that perhaps two-thirds of that month's dutiable imports were covered by the surcharge," Passer said in a statement.

For the first 10 months of 1971, the United States has recorded a trade deficit of $1.5 billion, compared to a $2.6 billion surplus for the comparable period in 1970.

During the same period U.S. exports have increased 3 per cent while imports have gone up 15 per cent.

The Commerce Department began compiling seasonally adjusted figures on international trade in 1948. The previous record deficit was $406 million in February 1969, during an earlier dock strike.

In addition to the resort to court action on the dock strike to get exports moving again, the government has shown its concern over trade by an attempt to get trade as well as money discussed at next week's meeting of the 10 major industrial countries, the so-called "Group of 10".

Finance ministers of these are meeting in a long-scheduled session in Rome beginning Tuesday. Unexpectedly on Friday, the United States proposed that trade and farm ministers attend as well as the finance officials.

This indicated that the United States is attempting to push a solution to the trade imbalance. It has shown no great anxiety to get talks moving on a new schedule of money values with other countries, but the effort to bring in trade next week shows worry about this situation.

The efforts, however, met a certain coolness from the European industrialized countries. Several of them said they wanted to settle the money question before they turned to trade talks.

Russians, U.S. take first step to trade accord

By STEPHENS BROENING

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans has been talking trade with the Russians as a first step toward a possible Soviet-American economic agreement that would crown President for its unveiling would be the Nixon visit.

To start with, the Russians have shown a passion in their diplomatic dealings for putting things in writing. In the past year they have gotten the signatures of Egypt and India on treaties of friendship, and they unsuccessfully tried to obtain those of Yugoslavia and France.

Secondly, informants said the Stans mission had been accumulating the kind of data that could go into a trade agreement with the Russians.

THEY SAID the Russians had suggested that at some point they would like any final understanding to be formalized, not necessarily in a trade treaty, but in a protocol or joint declaration that would serve the same purpose.

According to one source's timetable, Stans will report to the President on the broad possibilities of expanding trade, and a new followup mission early next year will negotiate details covering credits, trade levels, terms of trade and goods to be traded. Only then will a draft agreement be possible.

The choice of the Nixon visit as the time for concluding the agreement — whatever its form — makes diplomatic sense. Both sides will want some tangible evidence that the visit — the first to Russia by an American president in office has been a success.

The area of Soviet-American relations most susceptible to progress is the long-neglected real of trade and investment, diplomats say.

Lawmen just guessing

Area combed for hijacker

WOODLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Deputies went from house to house in this western Washington area Friday trying to turn up a lead to the hijacker who commandeered an airliner and escaped by parachute with 10,000 $20 bills stuffed in a white cloth bag.

Other searchers slogged through fog and rain in the muddy foothills of the Cascade Mountains.

But there was no trace of the swarthy middle-aged man dressed in black who hijacked the jetliner Wednesday by brandishing a "bomb," collected $200,000 ransom in $20 bills and parachuted into the night somewhere between Seattle and Reno.

Law officers conducting the house-to-house investigation said they were not checking every residence, but picking them at random and asking residents if they heard anything unusual.

"IT IS A terrible routine and seems endless," said Deputy Len Holzman.

Meanwhile, crew members of the hijacked jetliner disclosed that the $200,000 ransom the hijacker secured at Seattle-Tacoma Airport Wednesday night was delivered in a white cloth bag, like a laundry bag, without a drawstring or fastener.

They said they did not know how he managed to parachute without losing the bulky bundle.

In Seattle, the Air Force revealed that as many as eight military planes were shadowing the hijacked jet at various times on its flight to Reno, but that none of the pilots saw the hijacker parachute.

FIVE MILITARY jets, including F106 fighter-interceptors trailed the plane over northern parts of the route, and three in the south, the Air Force said.

The ground and air search started near Woodland Friday but FBI officials said the site was selected on "pure conjecture" since that was the last time four crew members who remained on the commandeered Northwest Airlines 727 jet had communicated with the hijacker.

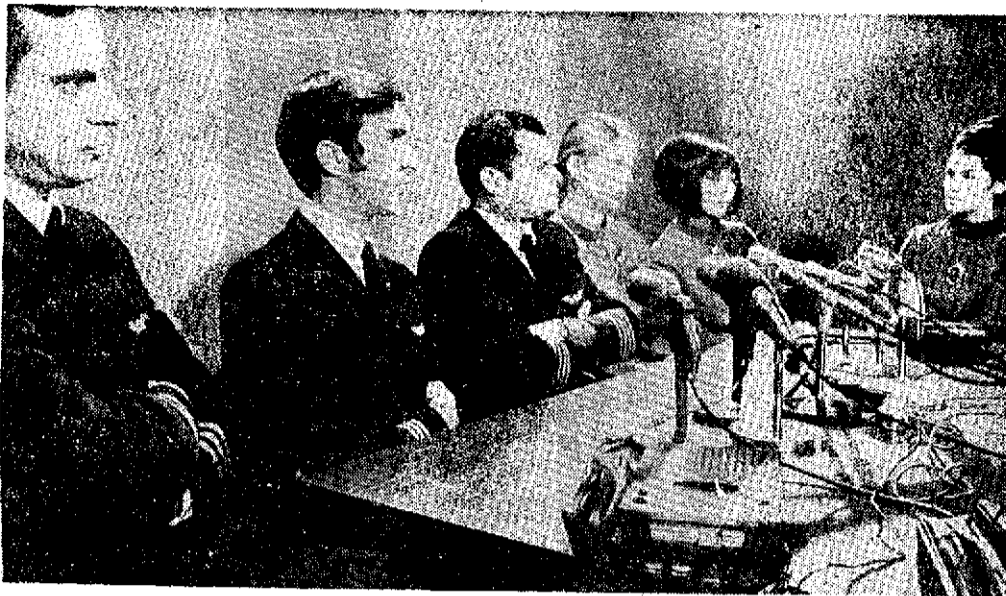

They spent the rest of the trip to Reno locked in the forward cabin.

The FBI said the hijacker could have plunged out into the night anywhere in a huge area along the plane's flight path from Woodland down Oregon's Willamette Valley to Medford, Ore., and then to Reno — a distance of 500 miles.

IT WAS not known exactly when he jumped, only that it was some time between 7:37 p.m. when the plane left Seattle, and 11 p.m., when it arrived at Reno.

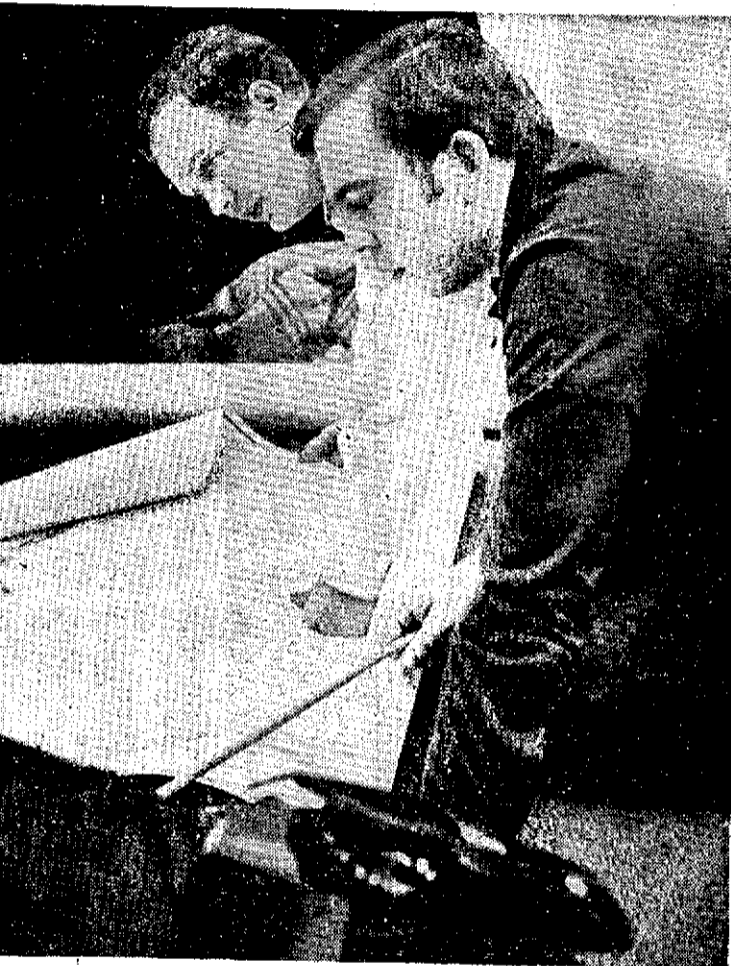

The airliner flew at very low speeds — around 200 mph — and at about 10,000 feet altitudes, officials said. The altitude may have varied considerably because of mountains along the path, including 14,162-foot Mt. Shasta, which lies almost directly between Medford and Reno.

At Northwest's Minneapolis headquarters, the airline broke its two-day silence on the incident at a news conference in which pilot William Scott disclosed the crew was as surprised as anyone when the plane landed at Reno and the hijacker was gone.

"I stepped into the cabin and asked if there were any more instructions, but there was no answer," Scott said. "I looked around the curtain and determined he was not there."

Stewardess Tina Mucklow, 22, of Richfield Minn., said she sat with the hijacker for some time on his orders but was ordered forward with the rest of the crew on the way to Reno, after the ransom was paid in Seattle.

"He was not nervous," she said. "He seemed rather nice, and he was never cruel or nasty."

"Right after the takeoff he said, 'go to the cabin, pull the curtain, and don't come back,'" Miss Mucklow said.

Miss Mucklow, Scott and flight officers William Rataczak and H. E. Anderson stayed on the plane to Reno after 36 passengers and two other stewardesses, Florence Shaffner and Alice Hancock, were allowed to get off at Seattle.

Miss Shaffner, 23, said the hijacking began a few minutes out of Portland, when the man handed her a note.

She put it in her purse, she said, because she thought he was "hustling me" for a date and the hijacker had to call her over and insist that she look at it.

It read, "I have a bomb."

On the way to the Seattle airport, she said, "he told me to sit by him, and I did."

The search centered around the tiny community of View, Wash. Headquarters were set up nearby at Woodland.

"Actually, he could be anywhere between there and Reno," said J. Earl Milnes, FBI special agent in charge at Seattle.

About 40 law officers took part in the ground search over an area 15 to 20 miles long.

Helicopters were also sent up but sheriff's officers said they were hampered by an 800-foot cloud cover.

The "bomb," a device with red cylinders and wires, was missing when the plane landed at Reno,

2nd headless body; fear maniac loose

HOUSTON (UPI) — The bodies of four teen-aged girls — two of them beheaded and two drowned — have been found during the last two weeks and the county sheriff said Friday all four may have been killed by the same homicidal maniac.

The second headless torso was found and identified Friday.

"There's no doubt about it, we're dealing with a homicidal maniac, who may be the same person or persons that killed the two Galveston girls," Harris County Sheriff C.V. "Buster" Kern said.

The headless remains of Colette Anise Wilson, 13, were found Friday near a reservoir less than 200-feet from where the decapitated body of Gloria Gonzalez, 19, was found Tuesday.

The Wilson girl was identified by her father, a dentist, who said he did all the dental work on the teeth in her lower jaw. He also said he recognized a ring found on the body.

She disappeared June 17 while waiting for her mother to pick her up following band practice. Her band instructor dropped her off at a rural highway intersection where she was supposed to meet her mother.

A young man hunting for buried treasure Tuesday found the torso of the Gonzalez girl with a chord tied around its neck. The girl was reported missing Oct. 23. Her head and a tooth were found 50 feet away.

But investigators said the tooth did not match the other teeth in the skull so they searched for a second victim. The only part of the Wilson girl's head that was found was the lower jaw. Authorities figured animals carried off the rest of the skull.

The bodies of two 15-year-old girls were found floating last week in a bayou south of Houston. The girls, Debbie Ackerman and Marie Johnson, were nude from the waist down, their hands and their feet were bound and they were both shot through the head.

Officials say they planned to storm Rahway Prison

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — State officials said Friday they had decided to storm Thanksgiving morning to free hostages held by rebellious inmates but the plan was put aside in hopes negotiations could end the insurrection.

Col. David B. Kelly, state commissioner of institutions and agencies, said the recommendation to retake the prison by force came from Kelly, with Kott's concurrence.

BUT KOTT, the state's top corrections official, said he changed his mind because of the possible cost in lives and the hope negotiations could end the insurrection.

The insurrection ended peacefully Thanksgiving night when the inmates freed the hostages under an agreement in which state officials promised no reprisals.

Kelly said he agreed with a later decision by Kott to delay the maneuver. Both men said that at no time did Gov. William T. Cahill attempt to interfere with their decisions. Kott said the governor "suggested" they not make the assault.

"I want to make this clear," Kott said. "At no time did the governor not order us to go in." Spokesmen for Cahill said, however, they felt the governor would have made the final decision on an assault.

The commissioner said the inmates were warned over the prison public address system that "there was a real possibility" of a state police assault.

KELLY said he thought the uprising was "spontaneous and not that well organized." But he said the inmates became better organized as time passed.

Although the decision was to retake the prison by force, Kelly said "the time of the assault had not been decided."

mendation, he had other conversations with corrections officials at the prison, with members of Cahill's staff, with the governor himself.

The inmates themselves did not know exactly what they wanted, Kott said. "Their demands were not finalized and we thought it was possible to achieve what we wanted through negotiations."

Kelly and Kott said Cahill was concerned about the lives of hostages, including prison superintendent U. Samuel Vukcevic, the troopers who would have made the assault, the correction officers, and the inmates themselves.

Bizarre plot to kidnap Army general, steal payroll told

FT. STEWART, Ga. (UPI) — A bizarre plot allegedly involving military police to "forcibly seize" the commanding general and other officers at this East Georgia Army base as hostage for part of the November payroll was disclosed Friday.

Brig. Gen. Eugene M. Lynch, the commanding general, told a news conference the plot involved "a small group of personnel assigned to the military police," believed to have already stolen more than $20,000.

Lynch said no charges had been brought, but a soldier hospitalized at Punta Gorda, Fla., after a shootout with police there Monday was "a key figure in the fraud and conspiracy plot." Robert Earl Ward, 32, was shot five times when he fired on officers who attempted to charge him with defrauding the government.

Lynch told newsmen both he and his deputy, Col. J. W. Harrington, were subjects of the alleged kidnaping plot which was believed to have been planned for a staff meeting Friday, but which never came off.

A base spokesman said the amount of cash which might be available at the time was "impossible" to determine because the Army mails some checks directly to officers. Ft. Stewart, located near Savannah, Ga., has about 3,500 officers and men and their payroll for two weeks would be about $1 million.

Lynch said the investigation had been underway "for some time concerning suspected criminal activities involving military personnel" and as a result, special security precautions were taken this week.

"The evidence available at this point in time indicates that a small group of personnel assigned to the military police were involved in repeated instances of larceny and fraud and falsification of finance documents," Lynch said. "While the exact amount is yet to be ascertained, it appears that the magnitude of such thefts will exceed $20,000."

Navy ignores nonhostile losses

SAIGON (AP) — A number of U.S. Navy warplanes lost in the Vietnam war from operational failures were not reported lost by the U.S. Command, spokesmen confirmed Friday.

Navy officials responding to queries said they had not reported the loss of seven planes in the past three months from what they termed nonhostile causes such as mechanical failures or pilot disorientation. Four pilots have been killed.

The disclosure suggests that additional aircraft have been lost but have not been reported by the Navy in the six years its planes have been flying mission from 7th Fleet carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Spokesmen said Navy combat losses are reported as the occur but planes lost to nonhostile causes are not listed in the U.S. Command's weekly status report because of "different operating channels."

Officials said the Navy generally reports so-called "nonhostile" losses only when queried, even though the planes may be going to or returning from a combat mission when they crash.

There are exceptions when the Navy on its own initiative will disclose operational losses, particularly if there is a heavy loss of life.

Navy spokesmen said they have no figures available in Saigon on the number of planes lost to nonhostile causes during the past six years.

"We have different operating channels," said one Navy officer, "and are not considered a part of the U.S. Command's assets."

Despite this, the Command's weekly status report leaves the clear impression that it is all-inclusive. It does not specify that Navy planes lost to operational causes are not included.

The latest report lists 3,358 fixed-wing planes from all branches of the service lost to both enemy action and nonhostile causes in Indochina since Jan. 1, 1961.

Five of the planes lost during the past three months were A7s. The Navy also lost an A6 fighter and an RA5C photo-reconnaissance plane.

All sank in the Tonkin Gulf and none was recovered. Most of the aircraft were either taking off for or returning from bombing mission in Laos. Their total value was put at about $20 million.

After the fifth A7 jet crashed on take-off from the carrier Oriskany on Nov. 1, the Navy grounded all of its 75 A7s in the 7th Fleet, pending an investigation.

The trouble was traced to the nose wheel assemblies and corrected.

The Navy said the A7s are now back in action.

Pakistan sites reported taken by Indian troops

The Associated Press

Indian troops occupy positions at three places inside East Pakistan and heavy fighting was underway Friday, Pakistan's eastern command headquarters in Dacca reported.

India said earlier Friday that its troops crossed into East Pakistan, inflicted about 80 casualties and destroyed a tank. It said the raid followed a Pakistani artillery attack on Indian territory, but gave no exact date.

BORDER clashes between India and Pakistan have intensified in recent weeks, bringing the two countries to the brink of war over civil strife in East Pakistan that has sent millions of refugees fleeing to India.

The Pakistan eastern command said at least 10 Indian divisions, totalling between 180,000 and 200,000 men were engaged in the East Pakistan conflict.

Brigadier G. M. D. Siddiqui, the army chief of staff, said Pakistani forces had knocked out 20 Indian tanks since the start of the fighting last week.

Siddiqui said the heaviest fighting was at the Benalia Bulge, a salient in the India-Pakistan border 70 miles northwest of the East Pakistan port of Chittagong.

ANOTHER Indian attack was launched at Chaugach, 65 miles northeast of Calcutta, Siddiqui said. "We hit seven tanks on the first day and they withdrew. On the second day they lost six tanks and they lost two more last night."

He said the Indians had launched five major attacks, including one towards Hilli on the north-west border.

An Indian Defense Ministry communique Friday said Indian troops crossed into East Pakistan about 200 miles north of Calcutta. It was the second incursion India announced this week. The first was Sunday.

The communique said the action was taken after Pakistani artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire had pounded Indian territory for more than 24 hours.

Siddiqui said the Pakistani army also was trying to dislodge Indian forces (the Zakigani) salient on the border with India's Assam State.

PAKISTAN has accused India of aiding East Pakistani rebels in their fight for independence from West Pakistan. The two wings of Pakistan are separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory.

India has demanded that Pakistan make a political settlement with the rebels so that an estimated nine million East Pakistani refugees in India can go home.

East Pakistan's military commander, Lt. Gen. A. K. Niazi, said Friday he was not worried that his forces were outnumbered 3-1 by India's.

"As far as I am concerned we are at war and they have thrown everything they have against me," Niazi said. "The 3-1 ratio doesn't worry me; if not the best in the world, my troops are second to none."

In Calcutta, an Indian army spokesman said large areas of East Pakistan have fallen under the control of insurgent forces following the concentration of the Pakistani army on the frontier with India.

5 Southeast Asian nations in neutrality agreement

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI)

Five Southeast Asian nations, four of them with military ties to western powers, Friday declared their region should be made neutral and kept free of foreign interference.

Foreign ministers from Indonesia, the Philippines, Thailand, Malaysia and Singapore — the member states of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — reached agreement on neutrality after negotiations by lower-ranking diplomats at one point had bogged down.

But in the end a smiling Malaysian Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak, ASEAN's prime mover for neutrality, told newsmen all five ministers had agreed to sign a "declaration of peace, freedom and neutrality" today.

He called the declaration, full details of which will be disclosed at the signing, "a significant initiative by the five countries to show the world they can take care of themselves."

Philippine Foreign Secretary Carlos Romulo, representing the most skeptical of the ASEAN governments toward neutrality, said the concept can at most be applied only in general terms.

But he added, "I think we are agreed on a common aspiration — to be left alone in peace by the great powers, and to be able to pursue our ways without the interference of any of them."

Thieves get rifles from high school

PONCA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Thieves broke into a Ponca City High School building early Friday and took 45 rifles belonging to the school's Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps program.

The rifles, valued at more than $5,000, are used for drill purposes by the cadets.

Pakistan military ruler curbs foes

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — Faced with the threat of war with India over East Pakistan, military ruler Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan Friday moved to settle internal political problems.

He banned one major party, jailed one political leader and initiated a series of talks with a second political figure who has been demanding a return of power to civilians.

YAHYA outlawed the National Awami Party (NAP) and charged that some of its factions worked with the enemy. He ordered the detention of some party leaders.

The NPA held majorities in assemblies of the north-west frontier and Baluchistan, smallest of the West Pakistani provinces.

No NAP leaders were detained but authorities arrested another frontier politician, Master Khan Gul, a vice president of the outlawed Awami League, as he got off a plane. The Awami League has no connection with the NAP.

Gul was charged with making objectionable remarks about Yahya and martial law authorities during a news conference.

Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto, leader of the Pakistan Peoples party, met the president nearly four hours. He demanded the military rulers turn over the government to civilians. Yahya and Bhutto planned to confer again over the weekend.

Bhutto, who led an official mission to Peking this month, said the Chinese would provide "everything we would need . . . in case of war with India."

Referring to a report Soviet-built tanks used by India were damaged in fighting, he added, "If Russia can come in with tanks, the Chinese can come in with feet."

Big pay hikes OK'd for building trades

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel appointed by President Nixon to hold down wage increases in the construction industry approved Friday scores of new contracts far exceeding the 5.5 per cent annual increase the Pay Board has set as a guideline.

The Construction Industry Stabilization Committee made public 48 contracts it has okayed for bricklayers, plumbers, painters, sheet metal workers and pipe layers across the country.

It was the first set of approvals disclosed since the wage-price freeze ended Nov. 14.

Typical was a contract won by Glaziers Local 260 of Great Falls, Mont., which will pay a 16 per cent increase over a year's contract. The glaziers now earn $5.11 an hour.

The Pay Board gave the stabilization committee responsibility for approval or disapproval of the construction contracts because the committee has been reviewing such contracts since last March.

A committee source said the contracts were negotiated before the wage-price freeze Aug. 15 and therefore will pay retroactively.

He said the committee apparently has not decided what to do about contracts negotiated during the freeze. The Pay Board has set a general policy of refusing retroactive pay boosts for those contracts, but it has said there can be a few exceptions.

A few examples of contracts approved by the committee:

- A 20 per cent increase over a year for Sheet Metal Workers Local 45 which covers 30 counties in Central Iowa and is headquartered in Des Moines.
- A 24 per cent increase over 11.5 months for Plasterers Local 23 in Wichita, Kan.
- A 6 per cent hike from $7.30 to $7.75 hourly for Bricklayers Locals 23, 33, 34, 36, 38, and 39 in the Upper Peninsula region of Michigan.

Most of the contracts cost employers more than 10 per cent annually in increased wages and benefits.

In some cases, the committee said it had ordered contracts renegotiated, then later approved the new agreement.

MAIL RATE BOOST

advertise their products. He also said he doubted the Postal Service had the legal power to raise its own rates, power he said rightfully had been given to an independent postal rate commission responsive to Congress.

Asked at a news conference if the postal rate increase would endanger the administration's inflation-fighting strategy, director Donald Rumsfeld of the Cost of Living Council said: "clearly, if excessive increases are given ... there's a danger that the public would get the impression that there is an uneven application" of the government's guidelines.

He added: "I'm encouraged that what we've seen so far does not pose a threat to reaching our goal" of cutting inflation in half by the end of next year.

Rumsfeld said it was misleading to assume from the size of the postal request and an estimated 15 per cent wage increase for coal miners approved by the Pay Board that the Phase 2 guidelines were being ignored from the start.

Of 64 requests by large companies for price increases analyzed by the commission staff, the increases average 3.3 per cent, slightly over the 2.5 per cent guideline, Rumsfeld said. DOCK STRIKE OFF this concluding statement in his own affidavit.

"The long-term impairment of the U.S. trade position resulting from continuation of the dock strike will weaken the ability of the United States to pursue its national security objectives in the world and to maintain prosperity in the domestic economy. Accordingly, it is my belief that continuation of the strike would endanger the national health and safety."

Although longshoremen have continued to handle cargo moved through military ports during the 57-day-old strike, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said the Pentagon was still feeling the effects of the strike because many private ships are no longer available to move certain military shipments.

"I believe that since the United States merchant marine is essential to the movement of defense cargo, in support of this nation's and its allies' military commitments in Europe, Southeast Asia and elsewhere in the world, the national defense is jeopardized by having a substantial segment of the U.S. merchant marine rendered inoperative by continuing the current suspension of cargo handling and consequent immobilization of vessels at East and Gulf Coast ports," Laird declared.

Acting Commerce Secretary James T. Lynn dwelt on the effects a prolonged strike would have on the domestic economy and American foreign trade.

The national economy said Lynn, depended to a large extent on the availability of transportation and contended that the longshoremen's strike had impaired that stability.

Merchants, farmers, shippers, sugar refiners and others were hard hit by the walkout, maintained Lynn, while the economy missed the wages that longshoremen have lost as a result of the strike between Oct. 1 and Nov. 22, said Lynn, the strikers, their families and their local economies have lost nearly $49 million. Others affected by the strike were also losing pay, he said.

Lynn and McCracken hammered away at the impact of the strike on the U.S. balance of payments.

Lynn also warned that if the strike continues much longer foreigners who have temporarily shifted to buying from non-U.S. sources may be permanently lost as a market for American exports.

Under normal procedure the federal courts could order members of the ILA back to work on Monday after holding show cause hearings.

Longshoremen returned to work earlier in seven southern ports under temporary restraining orders issued by federal courts. The ports were in Tampa and Jacksonville, Fla., Wilmington and Morehead City, N.C., Charleston and Georgetown, S.C., and Savannah, Ga.

It was only the second time Nixon has invoked the 80-day cooling off provision of the Taft-Hartley Law.

Most of the contracts cost employers more than 10 per cent annually in increased wages and benefits.

In some cases, the committee said it had ordered contracts renegotiated, then later approved the new agreement.

Liberals convene-Spock mentioned for presidency

DALLAS (UPI) — Baby doctor - activist Benjamin Spock may emerge as the presidential nominee of a group of liberal parties that are considering hoisting a single banner in 1972.

The mention of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who is considering a rerun of his 1968 presidential campaign, brought groans from an audience of some 200 persons Thursday night at the opening session of "the coalition" convention.

Marcus Raskin, director of Washington's Institute for Policy Studies and a liberal polemicist, said McCarthy has said he would consider taking a nomination of the groups as an endorsement, but would continue to seek the nomination of the Democratic Party.

RASKIN said he favored McCarthy because he felt that the former Minnesota senator or Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., could pick up 10 to 15 per cent of the popular vote in 1972, but that Spock could get only about 5 per cent.

Spock said he had talked with Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., and she said she would consider the nomination of the coalition if she failed to get that of the Democrats.

Delegates indicated they were interested in a candidate who would work full-time as a fourth-party nominee and not accept the title to complement his status with one of the established parties.

The convention may decide it does not want to nominate a real candidate, but just a stand-in who could be replaced with someone else, possibly McCarthy, after the Democratic National Convention.

C. T. Weber, convention organizer and vice chairman of the California Peace and Freedom Party, had said before the convention opened that he felt Spock might be used as a stand-in.

Ford will cut 3,200 employees

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. announced Friday it is laying off 3,200 employees at its Dearborn assembly plant all of next week because of dwindling sales of the Ford Mustang and Mercury Cougar.

Chrysler Corp. said it was temporarily laying off between 250 and 300 hourly rated and salaried employees at its tank plant in suburban Warren due to a strike by a supplier.

Ford's new car sales have been running at record rates since the start of the 1972 model year, but the sport compact models have declined in popularity. The Dearborn assembly plant produces only the Mustang and Cougar.

The Chrysler layoff stemmed from a nine-week-old strike at the Blaw-Knox Co., of Pittsburgh, which makes hull and turret castings for the tank plant, a Chrysler spokesman said. The tank plant employs 800 persons.

MARINER 9 TOOK this photograph of the Martian moon Deimos Friday from a distance of 5,300 miles and transmitted it to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, via the Deep Space Station in Spain. The moon is estimated at 5 1/2 miles high and 7 1/2 miles across, requiring extreme accuracy in aiming the spacecraft's narrow-angle camera to capture the picture.

Mariner sends back closeup of Mars moon

PASADENA (AP) — Mariner 9 sent back a historic closeup photograph of the Martian moon, Deimos, Friday, picturing an irregular object with a dark smudge scientists said almost certainly was a surface feature.

The experts set to work at once studying the photograph for clues to Deimos' origin and perhaps a better understanding of the origin of Mars and the solar system.

"THIS is a historic first — the first time man has ever seen the disc of Deimos," said Dr. Bradford Smith of New Mexico State University after the first photograph was transmitted to the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

Deimos appeared as a lumpy half disc, a little larger than a quarter on television monitors at JPL. The picture was snapped by a telephoto camera aboard Mariner 9 from 5,300 miles away. Mariner 9 has been orbiting Mars twice each day since it was rocketed into orbit Nov. 13.

Smith said it was too early to tell what the "dusky marketing" on Deimos might be.

"We are not sure what we are seeing on the surface at this point, but we're hopeful the computer enhancement will bring out more details," he said.

Mariner 9 photographs are scanned by computers at JPL that heighten contrast and often bring out hidden detail. It no doubt will take scientists several weeks to understand all they are seeing in photographs.

BUT SMITH speculated that the marking might be either a topographic feature, such as a hill or crater casting a shadow, or a zone where materials of different chemical composition meet.

Deimos is about five miles in diameter, astronomers estimate, and orbits Mars about 12,000 miles from the planet's surface.

It has a companion, Phobos, which is about 10 miles in diameter and orbits Mars about 3,700 miles from the surface.

Earth's moon is slightly more than 2,000 miles in diameter and an average of about 239,000 miles away.

Martian moons were discovered by an astronomer at the U.S. Naval Observatory in 1897 but through even the most powerful earth telescopes, they've never appeared larger than a pinpoint of light.

Phobos was photographed from 79,000 miles by Mariner 6 and 7 in 1969. It appeared as a potato-shaped object but was too far away to see surface detail.

Deimos appeared to be somewhat oval-shaped and Smith said that its irregular appearance had been expected.

Mars and other large objects in the solar system are globe-shaped because strong gravitational forces push them into that shape. But the tiny moons, with much smaller gravity fields, can assume other shapes.

SCIENTISTS hope studying the two moons will give them clues to their origin and a better understanding of how Mars and the solar system evolved. The experts speculate Deimos and Phobos might be asteroids captured by Martian gravity or chunks of primordial rock left over from the creation of Mars.

Scientists hope for an even better look Saturday at Phobos. Mariner 9 will pass within 4,200 miles of Phobos, and ground controllers will attempt to photograph it because the spacecraft will be a thousand miles closer and Phobos is about twice as large as Deimos.

China, Soviet trade insults

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Communist China lashed out at the Soviet Union Friday, accusing the Russians of "social-imperialism" and of encouraging "India to launch 'bare-faced aggression against Pakistan.'"

Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua addressed the 131-nation General Assembly shortly after the United States had joined Peking in urging that a Soviet plan for a world disarmament conference be shelved.

are not worth refuting," Chiao asserted. "Who, after all, is singing a duet with U.S. imperialism?"

HE SAID Soviet forces were stationed in Mongolia, to the north of China, while the United States maintains military bases in Japan.

"Is this not a kind of duet?" he asked.

Chiao said China has had long experience with Soviet chauvinism and social-imperialism.

"The Chinese people do not buy such stuff of yours," he added. "Your baton no longer works. The days are gone when the superpowers could dominate the world."

Chiao said he would not participate in the voting on the Soviet proposal "and will assume no obligation as a result of the voting."

Ambassador Christopher H. Phillips told the assembly the question of a world arms conference should be approached "in a deliberate and cautious manner" and that a further exchange of views is needed before a decision is taken.

SOVIET Ambassador Jacob A. Malik struck back with charges that Peking had developed as its theme an attack on the superpowers — the Soviet Union and the United States — while posing as a defender of the smaller countries.

Malik charged that China was attacking the superpowers to cover up its own aim for leadership of the Third World "as a springboard to becoming a superpower."

"Such false theories," he said, "will not help the Chinese delegation to strengthen its position here."

In a speech reminiscent of the worst days of the cold war, Chiao noted that Malik on Wednesday had spoken of a Chinese-American "duet of negativism" because of their opposition to the proposed arms conference.

"There are cheap and demagogic words, which

Jury out in Ohta mass killing trial

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — John Linley Frazier sat reading George Orwell's "1984" Friday as a judge instructed jurors and then sent them out to deliberate Frazier's guilt or innocence in the murder of wealthy eye surgeon Dr. Victor Ohta and four others.

Superior Court Judge Charles S. Franich told the eight women and four men jurors they could return any one of five different verdicts in each of the five slayings—innocent, guilty of murder in the first degree, guilty of murder in the second degree, guilty of voluntary manslaughter or guilty of involuntary manslaughter.

Throughout Franich's 46-minute presentation, the bearded Frazier sat reading the book facing a small court of spectators in the court. He did not look at either the judge or jury.

Frazier, 25, has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to the Oct. 19, 1970 murders of Ohta, his wife, two sons and secretary in the family's $250,000 hilltop mansion near Santa Cruz.

After deliberating five hours and 45 minutes Friday, the jury was dismissed for the night and taken to a motel.

Judge Franich told them to resume deliberations at 9:30 a.m. today.

L.B. fights telephone rate hike

The City of Long Beach, through its Bureau of Franchises, petitioned the State Public Utilities Commission Friday for a rehearing and stay of its decision to grant a $16.8-million rate increase to General Telephone Co.

The increase, if put into effect, is expected to boost the monthly telephone bill for Long Beach subscribers by 95 cents. Business users would pay an additional $2 a month.

LOUIS Possner, chief engineer of the Long Beach Bureau of Franchises, said the decision by the Public Utilities Commission was made without a public hearing, and thus denied ratepayers "due process."

"The honorable commission failed to hold a hearing, adduce any evidence, on appropriate depreciation allowances for the test year 1970, and has therefore failed to hold evidentiary hearings required by law," the Long Beach petition asserted.

"It follows that the conclusions reached as to operating results for intra-state California business of General Telephone Co. have been made without any evidence or finding on multi-million dollar depreciation practices," the petition charged.

The rate increase, which would go into effect in December, is the third approved by the PUC for General Telephone Co. within the past year. Last December, the commission granted the firm a $7.1 million increase on an interim basis, pending completion of public hearings on a company application for $60 million, and last July, General received a $16.3 million increase as a result of a decision involving Pacific Telephone Co.

The new hike would raise the basic, one-party residential service from $4.80 to $5.75 a month, and would boost one-party business service from $10.60 to $12.60 a month.

Widow sues Edison over mate's death

The widow and seven children of a Long Beach farm worker filed a $500,000 wrongful death suit against the Southern California Edison Co. Friday in Superior Court as a result of the worker's electrocution a year ago.

Mrs. Mercedes Villicana of 2624 Madison Ave., and her children, ages 4 to 16, claim the death of Gabriel Villicana was due the negligence of the company and 20 John Doe codefendants.

The victim, a field hand harvesting crops for Atlas Farms, died Nov. 29, 1970 while working in an area near Alameda and Dominguez Streets where high voltage lines are located.

Judge Charles C. Stratton signed an order making Mrs. Villicana guardian-at-law for the children for the purposes of the suit.

Attorney Robert R. Wyatt filed the action which seeks $500,000 general damages because the family has been deprived of the father and will not have "future financial and other support" from him.

ROOKIES NO MORE

A dozen recruits in the Long Beach Fire Department graduated this week and staged a demonstration of their skills at the department's training center. Here they're using the sliding life line, putting out a car fire, leaping into the life net, shooting streams of water into a simulated refinery fire and — last but not least — standing

Long Beach will host more than 8,000 high school students in 75 bands which will perform along Ocean Boulevard when the 31st annual All-Western Band Review begins at noon today.

For nearly four hours 73 high school bands, drum majors, majorettes and

Awards will be presented at the Long Beach Arena

Today's parade will start at noon at Falcon Avenue and Ocean Boulevard. Bands will march 1.05 miles along Ocean past the reviewing stands at Atlantic Avenue and end at Cedar Avenue near the Civic Center.

Marching units will vie for points and a chance to win the sweepstakes prize — the Mayor's Trophy to be presented by Long Beach Vice Mayor Bert Bond.

Loara High School of Anaheim and Long Beach's Polytechnic High will march near the front of the parade on a non-competitive basis. Loara is a three-time winner of the trophy and will appear as Honor Band. Poly will march as the host band representing the city.

REVIEW director Don Gill says 18 California counties will be represented in the parade. Nearly 300 buses will bring 16 bands from Northern California, 12 from the central part of the state, 11 from Orange County, 14 from San Diego County and 15 from Los Angeles County.

They will compete in six divisions based on the size of the school's enrollment. Bands will be rated on musicianship, showmanship, precision and general appearance by a panel of California band instructors and program directors. The judges and the reviewing stands will be located at Atlantic Avenue and Ocean Boulevard. Trophies will be awarded to each of the winners in the six divisions.

Awards will be presented at the Long Beach Arena

The parade begins with the host division including the Long Beach Police department motorcycle squad, the U.S. Marine Corps Color Guard, Vice Mayor and Mrs. Bond, "Miss Welcome to Long Beach," Miss Carol Vogen, the Poly and Loara bands.

THE SIX competing divisions will follow in what one city official termed the biggest event of its type in the world.

The West Arcadia Band Review was held last weekend as a preview to the Long Beach event. Loara High was picked as honor band during that competition.

Three other bands in today's parade won class awards at Arcadia. Montebello High was Class A winner, Glendora Class B champion and Temple City and Alta Loma High schools of San Bernardino County tied for Class C prizes.

Hike in water rates slated

Water bills to 27,000 Orange County customers and another 2,000 customers in Bellflower, Lakewood and Paramount will be increased by two utilities on Dec. 17.

The Southern California Water Co. will boost its rates to average customers from $2.20 to $2.40. Residents of Seal Beach, Los Alamitos and nine other Orange County communities will be affected, according to the Public Utilities Commission.

The Lakewood area customers of Peerless Water Co. face an average monthly rate increase of 16 cents, a 2.6 per cent boost, said a commission spokesman. Both increases have been granted by the PUC.

The Southern California Water Co. had sought an 18.8 per cent increase. The increase granted by the PUC is 7.8 per cent, said the spokesman.

Authorization for the increases is "consistent in purpose with the federal government's economic stabilization program," he said.

Some residents of Anaheim, Cypress, Garden Grove, La Palma, Westminster, Santa Ana, Stanton, Placentia and Yorba Linda also will be affected by the Southern California Water Co. rate increase, the spokesman said.

The increase will boost the utility's annual income by $187,950, he said.

Accepting the go-ahead to increase its rates for the first time since July, 1968, the Orange County company also obligated itself to rectify problems with its service which were questioned at a public hearing in Los Alamitos last July, the commission official said.

New equipment will be installed, the official said, to alleviate dirty water and low pressure troubling at least seven Orange County customers who complained at the hearing.

Lakewood park opening date set

A five-acre park adjacent to Palms Elementary School in East Lakewood may be ready for use by June, a Lakewood official said.

The Lakewood City Council has hired Williamson, Morris and Paige, Long Beach architects, to prepare plans and specifications for the park, which will be developed as an extension of a five-acre school playground. The site is on 30th Street east of Norwalk Boulevard.

A total of $100,000 is budgeted for the improvement of what is now undeveloped land.

Detailed plans for development of the five acres, along with an adjoining 11-and-a-half acres which the city also owns, should be presented to the City Council "by early in 1972," G. David Mills, superintendent of Parks and Recreation, said.

"I hope we'll have children out there playing by June," he added.

L.B. gets share of liquor fees

Long Beach has received its six-month, $90,430 share of fees paid by liquor license holders. The State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control made the payment to the city.

Ninety per cent of the fees collected are used by cities and counties to pay for government services, such as police and fire protection, and 10 per cent goes into the state general fund, officials said.

CAN I SEE SANTA YET?
Mark Romens, 3, asks a dancing bear outside Santa's Animal Fair, 121 Pine Ave., if Santa's arrived. Santa Claus is scheduled to arrive at the fair — where he'll appear daily until Christmas eve — at noon today. His transportation won't be a sleigh, but a Candy-Cane-colored Bus. Youngsters will be able to visit Santa — and receive a free gift — and wander through the fair, peering at dozens of animated animals and a four-foot-high railroad train. Fair decorations were created by Jack Oehlert, a nationally-known decorator. Children also will be able to meet "Mr. Truthful," a new creation from Downtown Long Beach Associates, sponsors of the fair. "Mr. Truthful" will flash colored lights at children who step on his toes. Parents will be able to monitor their youngsters' private conversations with Santa by closed circuit TV, and will find a special mail box for children's letters to Santa. Letters must be accompanied by a stamped return-addressed envelope and 10 cents, the DLBA said.

Pinball machine controversy rages—is it or isn't it?

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

A police expert and a distributor of coin-operated "table games" disputed Friday in Long Beach Municipal Court whether an amusement device known as "Bally's Big Valley" is a pinball machine.

Administrative Investigator Lt. Harry Welch told Judge Elsworth M. Beam that the machine, seized from Forty Niners Tavern, 5860 E. Pacific Coast Highway, is in the pinball class because it uses a plunger, steel balls and has pins and bumpers under glass.

However, defense expert witness Dennis Glover told the judge games like Big Valley advanced out of the pinball realm after the city passed its antiball machine ordinance in the early 1940s.

"We call them flipper games," testified Glover, operator of Qualified Vending Service and owner of the four-player machine that vice officers seized from the tavern Aug. 5.

Judge Beam convened part of the nonjury trial around the game machine, which was set up in the foyer of the Long Beach city prosecutor's offices, to hear some of the testimony from Glover and Lt. Welch.

The investigator identified Big Valley as the machine he studied in August and defined as fitting the terms of the ordinance that bans pinball outside of the downtown "A Zone" of the Nu-Pike amusement area.

However, Glover, who played his machine briefly, pointed out electronically controlled "thumper bumpers," "flippers," "up posts," "down posts," "go-gopher gates," "fox gates" and other advances that he said have consigned pinball to antiquity.

He told the judge pinball was different "because you couldn't control the ball — the player didn't have any control over the ball except to shoot the ball."

Table game fans can now thump, gate and flip the balls almost entirely by their own skill, and "you can score fantastically on a single ball" in the Chicago-built valley game.

The machine posts electrically on its back-board cumulative scores for up to four players who shoot five balls each in a contest that simulates pursuit of wildlife over an open range. It also posts free games that are won.

Defendants in the action are tavern owners Thorbert Beck and Roger Corbin, who were cited after vice officers visited the premises several times and warned the machine would be seized if it remained.

Judge Beam took the case under submission and ordered the defendants to return to court Dec. 23 when he is scheduled to rule.

MARCHING FOR POLY
These Poly High School band members are getting in form to host bands from throughout the state for the 31st annual All-Western Band Review at noon today. Designed to save money, hospitalization Crisis plan for mentally ill

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors have been asked to approve a tough new program designed to save thousands of dollars by treating the mentally disordered outside of hospitals or drastically reducing hospital stays.

Under the proposed system, the county would set up a network of "crisis evaluation units" — emergency rooms where the emphasis would be on alternate treatment methods "avoiding hospitalization wherever possible."

In a report to the board Friday, Dr. Harry R. Brickman, director of the Department of Mental Health, proposed the first of the crisis units be set up at Metropolitan State Hospital, Norwalk, at a cost of $582,000.

He said the goals of the crisis unit would be to "control the inflow (of mentally ill patients) into hospitals" and to ensure that when hospitalization is prescribed it is because of "medical indicators" and not for lack of alternatives.

The units also would review all available treatment methods and develop new resources if necessary, with the "prime concern of reducing the length of stay" in hospitals, "thus cutting the cost of care to the county," he said.

Doctors at the units would diagnose the disorder, prescribe the initial treatment and work out a follow-up care program, he said.

Patients would be able to remain for observation and medication at the unit for no longer than two shifts. If it is then decided they need to be hospitalized, first consideration must be given to community hospitals working under contract to the county, then county facilities and finally state hospitals.

"Regardless of the diagnosis, all patients will be allowed a maximum of 17 days in-patient care" at whatever facility they are sent to, the report said.

During that time, intensive treatment will be given and plans for discharge and after-care services will be developed.

If a patient has not been released before 17 days it will be incumbent upon the hospital staff "to justify extending the period," and the ultimate decision will rest with the department of mental health physician, the report says.

The department physician "may elect to force the release of the patient and provide alternative care as he feels is medically indicated."

If the unit doctor then allows the patient to stay the system provides for only two further seven-day extensions.

After this, the program envisages an "after-care system" which may involve "discharge in many instances to community rehabilitative and custodial type treatment facilities."

"With this in mind," says the report, "our concern becomes two-fold: That an after-care system be established which will insure rapid discharge and continuity of care following the patient's release as well as taking all steps to insure the patient does not require hospitalization."

Brickman told the board that the state "at this time has indicated approval of the proposal."

When the state earlier this year allocated additional funds for mental health services, he said, officials stressed high priority should be given to programs providing alternatives to inpatient treatment.

By way of an apparent incentive, the state allowed counties to accumulate for their own community programs funds saved by cutting down on the use of state hospitals.

As a result of this his department has come up with a plan for reducing the number of county patients days at state hospitals by five per cent for the 1971-72 year, he said.

If the plan is approved and fully implemented it would result in a return of $720,000 to the county for the current fiscal year, he said.

The $582,000 to set up the Norwalk crisis unit would be drawn from these savings and therefore would not represent an extra cost to the county, he added.

Freeway funds can't be rerouted

Money "saved" by deleting the Long Beach segment of the Pacific Coast Freeway can not be transferred to the Artesia Freeway, but financing for that project already is taken care of, Long Beach councilmen were advised Friday.

When Long Beach councilmen voted Nov. 2 to ask deletion of the Pacific Coast Freeway, they also adopted a motion by Councilman Russell Rubley asking that funds saved be applied to completion of the Artesia Freeway through the city.

Harold A. Richard, assistant secretary for the State Department of Public Works, advised the city by letter that the proposed Pacific Coast Freeway is "still some years away," and has no currently budgeted funds.

"On the other hand, all but the final unfinished portion of the Artesia Freeway in the Long Beach area are currently budgeted, and will be placed under construction as soon as cash can be made available," Richard wrote.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

One of the lesser used shrubs in landscaping or as a specimen container plant is the New Zealand flax, Phormium tenax. They tolerate cold from 30 degrees down to 20 degrees above zero.

The interesting, long, sword-like leafage of green, with a green and white or bronze margin is strong and tenacious as the name tenax implies.

They grow poorly if planted too deep. A plant eventually dies if water stands in the central area of the crown below the soil line. That's why it is so important to plant the top of the root ball at ground level.

We've seen these plants growing 10 to 12 feet high and in vast numbers in New Zealand. The tough foliage is used as fiber cordage there. The tallest we've seen in the Southland is about seven feet. Here they're not grown for their tall spikes with red-yellow small blossoms, but for their interesting landscape design use. The plants usually don't bloom until they're about five years old — in the ground.

Flower arrangers effectively use the interesting foliage in certain types of arrangements.

New Zealand flax are attractive when used with junipers or in sub-tropical plantings with other shrubs. They're used in shrubbery planting, or close to the house in front of a picture window, or as a filler shrub to break the blankness of a bare wall. We don't recall seeing any pests that infest these plants. But we have seen scale on citrus, gardenias, oleanders and some other plants. We're spraying our citrus (lemon) this month.

We still like to use a horticultural oil spray for scale control. Some plants won't tolerate such a spray. For instance, ferns, cacti, and succulents, to name a few, should not be sprayed with an oil spray. Gardeners should read the label on the bottle.

A wise gardener never sprays plants to control pests, or uses a soil conditioner, or feeds plants or lawns without first stopping to think, "are the plants thirsty." If thirsty, they are thoroughly watered, then a short time later they are sprayed for pests, fertilized, or soil treated with a soil conditioner. (Lawns are not fertilized till the leaves are dry, the lawn having been watered earlier). Gardener that thoughtlessly does one of the three above mentioned jobs to thirsty plants might burn the plant roots, thereby, set back the plant growth temporarily.

Continuing the pests discussion, a gardener friend of our's wanted to have his zinnia bed soil tested. Some of the plants grew stunted and poorly, also a few of them died. We knew what the trouble was as soon as we looked at those zinnias. They were borer infested! Took us 25 minutes to find one, then shortly two more. Systemic type of spray or granular form doesn't affect those pests. Only thing a gardener can do is to treat the soil with a chewing-pests type of dust insecticide.

We've never heard of Pacific hybrid delphiniums becoming borer infested, but we do know for sure, gardeners that set out these plants in a sunny flower bed as background plants will have the tallest, showiest, gorgeous spikes of flower of blue, purple, white, or lavender, come spring.

the following directions carefully. Clay, hard-packed soil takes more water volume to soak and much longer to do it than loamy or sandy soil. Take a pound coffee can, place in on the lawn halfway between the tree trunk and where the irrigation ditch will be and put a sprinkler on the garden hose. Sprinkler should not revolve but be like a fountain. The can should be three feet away from the sprinkler head. Check to see how long it takes the sprinkler water to fill an inch of water in the can. An inch of water in the can, probably won't soak in more than an inch deep in clay, four to six inches in loamy soil and maybe 10 inches in sandy-porous soil. A mature tree needs to be watered down to four feet which means 48 inches. Depending on the season and the weather, roughly a mature tree in clay needs to be watered about a month to six week intervals... loamy soil maybe two to three week intervals... sandy-porous soil at about 10 day intervals.

Q. — Our apricot tree has an abundance of fruit. For the past two years in a row, the apricots get half ripe then the skins get deep crevices in them and shrivel. The crevices do not break open. Those that remain and don't shrivel are small and dry inside. The tree is planted where there is lawn. We have watered a lot and also tried watering very little. There is no trench around the base of the tree. Would it help to build up a mound of dirt about 12 inches from the base of the tree then deep water? If so how often should it be watered? The tree is at the south end of the lot, so it gets sun. It was pruned last year. Should a lot of the branches be thinned out so that the apricots will ripen better? Mrs. Wm. R. Raines.

A. — First of all, a fruit tree should never be planted in a lawn or a lawn on one side of it. Neither should it be planted in a sunny flower bed where flowers have to be watered much more frequently than the tree. The crevices and shriveling can be due to sudden weather changes and possible erratic watering. No, don't thin out the branches until late December or January, then if they are closely together, thin them out. No, don't build up a mound of dirt around the tree trunk! Not having mentioned the age of the tree it is hard for me to advise you how often to water. Besides you didn't mention whether the soil is clay and hard or sandy and porous. If the tree is five years or older, dig a circular trench 10 inches deep and at least two feet beyond the drip line of the tree. Irrigate, continuing to soak into soil but not overrunning the trench. Not knowing the soil I can't tell you how long to run it. Now, read

SERMON ANALYZES 'SUPERSTAR'

The verdict: Negative

Because of continuing reader interest on the merits of "Jesus Christ Superstar," we present today a shortened version of a sermon preached on the subject by Rev. Donald P. Shoemaker, pastor of Los Altos Brethren Church of Long Beach.

By REV. D. P. SHOEMAKER

"Jesus Christ, Jesus Christ, who are you?" His disciples once reviewed for him the many suggestions that people had: John the Baptist, Elijah, Jeremiah or one of the prophets.

Jesus knew that men would always debate this issue, and so he warned, "If any man shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there; believe it not." Yet, he himself provided an escape from the labyrinth of confusion, for he told his disciple Peter that only God the Father could enable a person to say of Jesus, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

This remains ever the basic confession of genuine Christianity. As Christ, He is God's Anointed One who was sent to die for the sins of men. As son of God he is Deity.

WE THINK it not strange that the person of Jesus Christ should continue to be clouded today. In "Jesus Christ Superstar" he is not God in flesh, of whom the Bible speaks. The skeleton of the opera may appear Biblical, but its flesh and sinews are fabrications. This we can see.

First, it is Judas, and not Jesus, who emerges as the real hero. Judas has the shrewd mind, the piercing insights, even the highest motives. He did not betray for money, but to save a cause that had gotten out of hand. One might contrast this with Matthew 26:14-16 and John 12:2-8.

Jesus in contrast stands confused at the purpose of his life and the value of his death. "I'm not so sure as when we started. Then I was inspired, now I'm sad and tired." The most blasphemous section of the opera depicts him praying to God the Father in the Garden of Gethsemane, "Can you show me now that I will not be killed in vain? Show me just a little of your omnipresent brain. Show me there's a reason for your wanting me to die. You're far too keen on where and how and not so hot on why."

OPPOSED to this is the creedal statement of the Apostle Paul (1 Cor. 15:3), "Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures," and of John the Baptist (John 1:29), "Behold the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world." The opera concludes with the death of Christ in history, but in a sub-Christian fashion leaves its significance a puzzle.

Second, this opera degrades the ministry and witness of the Apostles. Christianity is in a rather precarious position if the body of literature it has accepted as its anchor of truth was the ambitious scheme of a bunch who boasted while drowning their troubles in volatile liquid, "Always hoped I'd be an apostle, knew that I would make it if I tried. Then when we retire, we can write the gospels, so they'll all talk about us when we've died." The Romans saw to it that they should not reach retirement.

Furthermore, Peter said of the Biblical writers, "prophecy came not in old time by the will of man (that is, through designs of ambitious apostles!) but holy men of God (not drunks) spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit" (II Peter 1:21). It was always the Apostles' conviction that they did not deserve their high office, not that they had earned it. The Apostle Paul confessed, "I am not fit to be called an apostle... but by the grace of God I am what I am."

Finally, with its omission of Christ's resurrection, the opera nullifies Christ's teaching (which was laced with references to his coming resurrection), and robs the Christian faith of all meaning, for if Christ is not risen our faith is empty and we are yet in our sins (I Cor. 15:17).

The realization of the true Christian must be that this production presents both an inadequate and perverted view of his Savior.

Presbyterians tell of self help allotments

Grants made to community self-development programs by the United Presbyterian Fund for the Self-Development of People now exceed $1,600,000, the agency announced this week.

The total includes $1,194,387 made available to 17 projects in the United States and $495,000 granted to self-help programs in other countries.

The 30-member national committee which administers the fund is drawing on contributions to the 1971 One Great Hour of Sharing for world relief and emergency service and the self-development of People in the United States and world-wide. Nearly $4.5 million has been received so far in 1971.

Among grants validated is $300,000 for the largely black United Presbyterian Synod of Catawba in Southern Virginia and North Carolina. This is to be used as "seed money" for a $25 million project known as the Catawba Design — an elaborate plan to upgrade living conditions of areas in the synod's constituency.

California rebukes national board Teen integration art fuels So. Baptist row

By LES RODNEY

A sharp difference of opinion among Southern Baptists has surfaced over the propriety of a Sunday School publication illustration involving Negroes and whites.

California Southern Baptists meeting last week in Sacramento, in an unprecedented action formally rebuked the national Southern Baptist Sunday School Board for withdrawing the disputed publication from circulation.

The quarterly publication, named "Becoming," contained an illustration which depicted a trio of teenagers chatting outside a church building. The young man was a Negro, and the two young women, standing together some distance away from the young man, were white. There was nothing unusual about the picture, except, as seen by the Sunday School Board, for the color of the young people shown.

THE SUNDAY School Board, after what was reported to be extensive debate, ordered the offending publication withdrawn on the grounds that it was

"improper promotion of integration."

The California convention adopted a resolution expressing displeasure with the withdrawal of the publication, and asking the Sunday School Board to explain its action and to publicly state its position on race relations and integration.

As though to underscore its displeasure with the Board's action, and its belief that the action might hurt Baptist evangelism, the California convention for the first time in its history elected a black minister to a key office.

The Southern Baptist General Convention of California is the annual convocation of Southern Baptists in the state. The Sunday School Board, headquartered in Nashville, Tenn., is the publishing establishment for the nationwide Southern Baptist Convention, which is the largest single Protestant denomination in the country with more than 11 million members in all 50 states.

Steering clear of "social action," and stressing Bible-centered evangelism, the Southern Baptists until recent years had escaped the controversies which have wracked most other Christian denominations. In recent years, however, there have been big hassles over Bible literalism and allegedly "liberal" Southern Baptist theologians, and professors at Baptist-affiliated colleges.

ORIGINALLY breaking with the "northern Baptists" before the Civil War over the question of slavery, the Southern Baptists have been attempting to live down the "white only" image, with some success in various areas. Most famous Southern Baptist is Billy Graham, though the evangelist is non-denominational in his crusades. Graham, often accused in the past of being evasive on the great civil rights issues, has in recent years spoken more about Christian responsibility against racism.

Here is the text of the resolution passed by the California convention:

"Whereas on October 31, 1971 it was reported in national news media and the Baptist Press the Baptist Sunday School Board had withheld distribution of the quarterlies and teaching guides, Becoming, allegedly because of the photograph and text which could have been construed to be improper promotion of integration of our church,

"Whereas as California Southern Baptists we believe in integration of our churches and convention staff, and are committed to being Christian in the area of race relations, and whereas the work of God in minority areas has been hindered, Be it resolved that we express displeasure over the effect of this action and that this convention appeal to the Sunday School Board for a public explanation of this action, and to publicize its position on race relations and its belief on integration."

The convention elected Rev. Jesse Davis, black pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church of Oakland, as second vice president.

In another action, the California convention reasserted a traditional emphasis when it adopted a resolution commending the California State Board of Education for its adoption of a textbook which teaches the Bible account of creation as well as the evolution theory. It urged widespread use of the new text.

Help 'House of Zacchaeus'

The House of Zacchaeus, a Christian coffee house reaching out to lonely young people, will be the subject of the monthly forum of Church Women United to be held Friday starting with 9:30 a.m. coffee in St. Thomas of Canterbury Episcopal Church, 5306 Arbor Road.

A musical program will be presented by young people of the House of Zacchaeus. They will tell something of the work under the guidance of Inner City Ministries.

The Christmas Project offering of the churchwomen will be dedicated Friday, one-half going to the House, and the other to "Project Food," to be distributed through neighborhood centers to those in need.

Matt. 25:31-45 is the text for these projects.

A Christmas worship service has been prepared by Mrs. George Higgins, Spiritual Life chairman. All are welcomed.

Humbard to appear

Rex Humbard, called "North America's TV pastor," will come to Long Beach Municipal Auditorium for a television rally on Friday, Jan. 14.

DR. PREUS
New enthusiasm

Lutheran Synod leader optimistic

The president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, Dr. J. A. O. Preus, sees a bright future ahead for his church.

In Southern California this week for the dedication of the new Zion Church in Anaheim, and feted at a dinner in his honor at the Convention Center in Anaheim, he expressed himself in optimistic tones, as he reviewed the bankruptcy of much religious expression throughout the country these past several years. "When even theologians announced that 'God is dead,' and like Mark Twain reflected about his own printed obituary, 'it was grossly exaggerated,'" he said.

New enthusiasm, new witnessing to the power of Jesus Christ in the life of individuals is being expressed "everywhere I go," said the church leader. He spoke of conversations on planes and Amtrak, fellow passengers who spelled out they had found new life in Jesus Christ, and the theologian observed: "This is the very message of our church."

Dr. Preus outlined how

Confident living Do worry lines change your face?

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

The little girl came bouncing downstairs that morning happy and filled with life. The mother, getting breakfast, had a face full of dark clouds.

"Mommy," asked the little girl, "aren't you happy?"

"Why certainly, I'm happy," snapped the worried mother.

"Well," commented the child, "you haven't told your face yet."

This charming little story was told me by Dale Evans Rogers who herself has a happy face, so much so that all worry lines have been erased. Her secret, as she will tell you, is to trust God, love people and be joyful.

Isn't it something how so many people spend great sums of money as well as time trying to look younger and more beautiful, when the real answer is in their own psychology. The actress Claudette Colbert said, "It matters more what's in a woman's face than what's on it."

I GUESS that goes for men too! Lines in the face that indicate age and tiredness do not come, primarily from either time or toll, but rather from unhealthy thinking, tension and worry.

On a bus or train have you ever studied faces? They are often as legible as books. It's easy to tell the happy ones from those who are nervous and uptight. Actually every human being more or less carries his life in his face. It's not too difficult when a person's guard is down to know what he is thinking without his saying a word.

The Scottish poet, Alexander Smith, once said, "On our features the fine chisels of thought and emotion are eternally at work." Even as a sculptor makes lines in the marble with a chisel, so do habitual thoughts carve telltale lines in the face. The more you let minor irritations keep you agitated, the more you will contract your brows and screw up your face in worry.

I once asked a man who had complained of constantly feeling tired and grumpy to write down all the incidents that got on his nerves in a single day. The list he brought me went on for several pages and included these items: the honking of the horn of a car held up in traffic... a telephone call cut off in the middle of a sentence... a favorite tie he couldn't find... a garage door which wouldn't open... his bridge fame criticized by his wife... a bus conductor refusing to change a five-dollar bill... his favorite dessert crossed off the menu... children screaming in the street outside his window... overcooked eggs at breakfast... the car out of gas after use by his son... The television blaring with his children's programs... a salesman too busy to wait on him... a friend coming a half-hour late... and so on.

Although this man was no crank, just an ordinary human being, the unhappy list went on and on. But as he looked at it he had to smile, a little ruefully. He was amazed to discover that in a day he was so often exasperated by something which was really quite petty.

OCCULTISM

Mrs. Camille Svensson will speak Sunday, 3 p.m. at the Theosophical Society, 602 Pacific Ave., on "Hints on Occultism from H. P. Blavatsky." Recently retired from the Los Angeles City School District, where she taught visually handicapped children, she teaches classes in occult philosophy. She has translated from Spanish, Latin, Greek and Sanskrit.

that in a day he was so often exasperated by something which was really quite petty.

HE WAS letting all kinds of little things bother him and naturally he walked around with an unhappy face. And when he really had something to worry about, he became a real sour puss! When he changed to a positive mental attitude he stopped being tired and worried. And of course his face was more pleasant to look at, too!

Change thinking from negative to positive and learn to relax. Expect good things to happen. Anticipate and be joyful and good things will really happen. Never expect evil things to happen. When trouble does come, it will either care for itself or you will know how to deal with it. Practice filling the mind with faith thoughts and worry thoughts will be eliminated. Such practice of dynamic thoughts of faith and happiness will keep the worry lines out of your face.

Southland's 1st Episcopal crusade set in Downey

The first Episcopal crusade ever held in Southern California will begin Sunday at 7:45 p.m. in St. Mark's Episcopal Church, 10354 Downey Ave., Downey.

Speaker each evening will be Rev. Marney Patterson, Anglican evangelist from Toronto, Canada.

Talks will be of a non-denominational Christian evangelistic nature.

Combined choirs of the sponsoring churches of St. Clement's, Huntington Park; St. Margaret's, South Gate; St. Mark's, Downey; St. Anne's, Lynwood; and St. Bartholomew's, Pico-Rivera, augmented by choir members of other churches, will sing each evening.

The Crusade's "Youth Night" on Saturday, Dec. 4, will feature a Christian musical presentation entitled "LIFE" presented by First Baptist Church of Downey.

St. Mark's church has been converted into a Crusade center for the event. The sanctuary will house early arrivals and those with delegation tickets from various churches. The parish hall will be equipped with closed-circuit television and sound equipment for the overflow.

A team of 40 volunteer counsellors will meet with individuals making commitments to Jesus Christ during the Crusade while a like number of men will act as ushers in both locations.

On Tuesday, the Rt. Rev. Francis Eric Bloy, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Los Angeles — largest segment in the Anglican church around the world, will speak.

Father Patterson, 44, has conducted crusades in various Canadian provinces, in Japan and in the Arctic regions among the Eskimos.

He is also lecturer in Evangelism at Wycliffe Theological College in Toronto. He served as a delegate to the World Congress on Evangelism in Berlin, Germany, in 1966.

Viet moral issues stressed by clerics

A nationwide interreligious movement "of witness concerning the moral issues in the Indochina war" will be initiated Sunday morning with prayers for peace and justice in front of the White House and in churches across the land.

Called "An Ecumenical Witness," it is sponsored by 125 Protestant, Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Jewish leaders. It is designed to "stimulate thought and action in

Theologian sees anti-Semitism

Dr. Franklin Littell, theology professor at Temple University, has blamed a large part of "the anti-Israel feeling in some segments of the Christian church" on a long harbored feeling of cultural anti-Semitism.

"Few Christians will admit to the existence of this problem, and fewer still fully understand its nature," said Dr. Littell. "The church must take full recognition of the questions that are raised by the modern State of Israel in terms of Christian theology. For too long we have been operating under the myth that the Jews or the people of Israel ceased to exist with the advent of Christianity. Obviously, this is a dangerous misconception to labor under."

America's religious communities with regard to the moral issues of the Indochina conflict," according to the Rev. Dr. Robert S. Bilheimer, executive director of the National Council of Churches' Department of International Affairs, who is the coordinator of the campaign.

Ordained at age 59

Gave away 2 million and became Benedictine monk

MISSION, B.C. 18 —To retire at age 34 after earning more than $1 million — that was a thrill. To give away $2 million at age 53 and enter a monastery — that was a more profound experience.

It happened to the Rev. Bede Reynolds, 79, once a Protestant civil engineer, who struck it rich in the oil fields in the 1920s and today is a senior Benedictine monk at the Westminster Abbey Seminary of Christ the King near this Canadian town.

When Father Reynolds, born in Michigan as Kenyon Llewellyn Reynolds, met the woman who would become his wife it was the beginning of a spiritual odyssey which eventually would lead him to monastic life.

THE FIRST week he knew his wife-to-be he made a discovery:

"I learned that she was a Roman Catholic. What a blow it was for me. If she were a cripple or an invalid, that could be cured. But if she was anything like my brother Graham, a fervent Catholic then at a seminary, what was the chance of cure for Catholicism?"

They were married, notwithstanding. Later, it was Reynolds who was converted.

He was married at 23 and at 28 used his civil engineering skill to build a $1 million plant to extract gasoline from natural gas in Texas.

Reynolds was part of Pacific Gasoline Co., a little company which sold only to wholesalers. But Standard Oil of California didn't consider Pacific Gasoline Co. so small — it handed over $20 million to buy the partners out.

"I was vice president of our company at the time, and my share came to a little over a million dollars," Father Reynolds recalled.

"And don't forget, that was in 1926. The transaction left me, at the age of 34, with more money than

FATHER REYNOLDS
Rebel from riches

I ever expected to own. I had three checks sent to me for my three stock certificates and deposited them in the bank — and if you don't think that it is a thrill, try it some time."

FOR THE next 15 years, Reynolds and his wife lived at ease. They traveled around the world. They bought a summer home at McKenzie Bridge, on the McKenzie River in Oregon.

Reynolds kept up with his hobbies: hybridizing daffodils, angling and archery.

It was during this time that he became a Catholic.

"I observed the tactics of a Catholic saint of a wife for 18 years," he said. "This is how I found my way into the church. The last seven years before my wife died, we were daily communicants."

"We had a chapel at our summer home, and a chaplain there who was a Benedictine from Mount Angel Abbey, 100 miles away. So this is how I eventually came to the order."

Reynolds volunteered his services in the U.S. Petroleum Administration during the Second World War, and just before the war ended, his wife died of cancer.

"As a married man, I figured that as God had given me the faith while I was married, it wasn't expected of me to break up my family to become a priest," Father Reynolds said. "But my wife and I both knew that I wanted to be a priest, when we knew that she had only a short time to live."

It took him three years to dispose of his assets — which had grown to some $2 million by this time.

"The money was distributed high, wide and handsome," Mount Angel Abbey was establishing a daughter priory in British Columbia and by the time he was ordained a priest in 1951, he had moved north.

FATHER REYNOLDS contributed $500,000 and his skills as a civil engineer when the $1.5 million abbey was built in 1953-54.

At 79, he is 15 years older than anyone else at the monastery, and is second in rank among the monks.

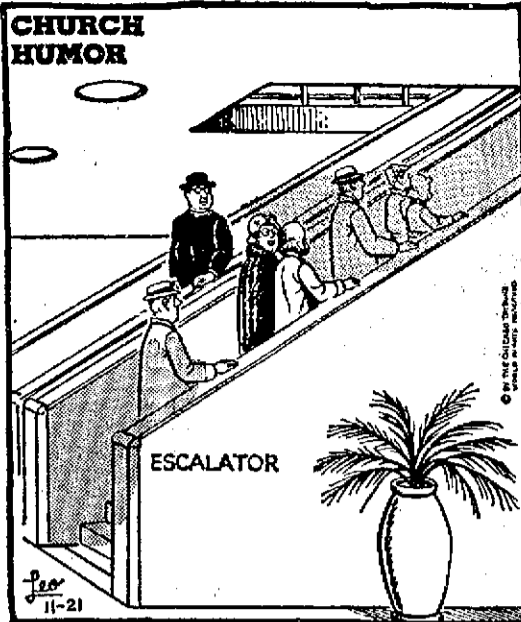

He has written a book about his life entitled "A Rebel From Riches."

"I wouldn't trade places with anybody in the world — not so much because I'm well satisfied with my own doings, but because it is what God has evidently mapped out for me to do," he said.

Belgian chaplains didn't like Synod

LOUVAIN, Belgium (AP) — A group of chaplains at Louvain University Friday accused the recent Roman Catholic Synod of Bishops in Rome of "blinding mediocrity."

The chaplains said in a communique that the synod "gave the world the image of a polite hierarchy incapable of moving." It added: "We greatly fear its possible consequences: withdrawal from Church institutions of laymen willing to promote justice in the world, maintaining women in a status of inferiority within the Church and more and more priests giving up the ministry and celibacy."

"I always say—it makes no difference what church you belong to, we're all trying to get to the same place."

Church cites plight of Jerusalem Palestinians

The future of Jerusalem must be settled by the people directly involved: the Israelis and Palestinian Arabs, according to a policy statement released by the overseas mission board of the two-million-member United Church of Christ.

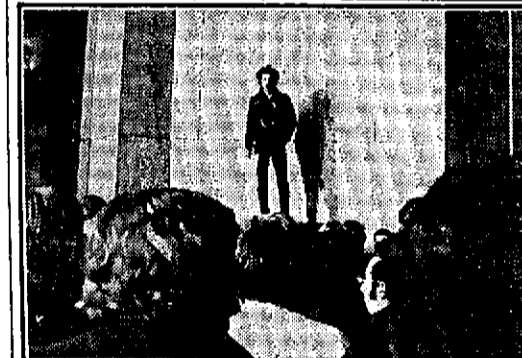

Special attention was called to the "voiceless and powerless" Palestinian Arabs in its "Statement on the Future Status of Jerusalem." Copies of the document were sent to members of the House of Representatives Committee on Foreign Affairs and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, at their request.

"In order that Jerusalem may once again become a City of Peace, as its name suggests, it must be a city in which all inhabitants, Jewish, Christian, or Muslim, feel at home in a milieu of cultural, religious and ethnic pluralism."

In the present situation in Jerusalem, the Palestinian Arabs are an oppressed minority, the statement indicated. A "just resolution" of their situation is "essential to an overall peace in the area."

"However, we see our task as providing a voice to the voiceless and empowerment of those who otherwise are powerless and who . . . cannot under present conditions engage in discussion or negotiation of their own future." area."

Is violence the answer?

No. It doesn't solve anything. Neither is it inevitable.

It is no part of God, or of the man He made.

When people turn to divine intelligence for guidance, they find solutions without violence and replace anger with love.

If you want to do something about building a world based on divine Love, join us on Sunday. Visit our classes for young people up to the age of 20.

FROM THE PULPIT

Dr. Frank Collins

Students of prophecy are eyeing the Egypt-Israel situation with real concern. Bible students know that this is the very core of all world conflicts in relation to the culmination of this age.

There have been so many false cries concerning the end time until people have come to disregard these cries, like the proverbial cry of "wolf" until no one expects the wolf any more. But be assured that the Bible is not in error concerning this great climatic event of the ages, and Egypt and Israel are the two main players in this drama.

To have these things come to pass before our eyes should surprise no informed student of Scripture. The real problem of the world and the Church in the world is that we do not, in fact, REALLY believe that God's Word is accurate, infallible and without contradiction in all things, including prophecy.

"And when ye see these things come to pass, lift up your heads for your redemption draweth nigh."

Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Aside from a few abrupt incidents, your life and daily living follow pretty much the groove you've chosen to create for yourself thus far. Today's natives can talk themselves into and out of all kinds of extreme situations.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Do what your community expects of you, and promptly. Then set away and back to your own affairs.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Put aside critical or cynical attitudes. Those around you have more than their own share of unusual problems.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take your time, relax, see this Sunday as a vacation of special dispensation.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): Get out of your rut, far from whatever you'd thought would be the easiest course to follow. Seek new contacts.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 22): You should find a diversity of views among associates and neighbors, with some common agreement on fundamental issues. The differences are local and/or personal.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accept an olive branch this Sunday, or better, offer one. Your sincere graciousness makes all the real difference.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Life shows itself in subtle variety on a normal day such as this. If you're not reasonably happy, then you're not on the best path.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sudden activity may find you unprepared. Give everybody the right to be themselves, and claim the same for yourself.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Systematic revisions of plans seem indicated today as the basis for your program shifts from forces beyond your control. Carry on the best of humor.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's just as well now that you feel like keeping others at a little distance. Divulge nothing of your intentions for the time being.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be of good cheer and even better manners while you keep your eye on the ball. There's something special to be gained.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The appeal of exotic people and places is more or less a mirage. Stay where you are and work out the issues on their merits.

'Superstar' a hit in L.B., too

So after you've read the "Good Book" and listened to the record, there doesn't seem much point in a "concert" version of the rock-opera, "Jesus Christ Superstar," presented Thursday at the Long Beach Arena.

Outside of Time magazine and top-40 radio, it appeared the majority of the three-fourths full house (mostly over-30 boppers) weren't all that familiar anyway with the much publicized and slightly irreverent musical based on the seven last days of Christ.

And as surprises go, they loved it — even if it was performed without costumes and staging, the concert production came off as one helluva mimic of the original cast record album, which was a hard act to follow and even harder to duplicate without the aid of studio techniques.

FREELY adapted from the writings of apostles Matthew, Mark and Luke, the no-intermission, hour-and-a-half operetta was composed by 23-year-old Andrew Lloyd Webber and lyricist Tim Rice, 26.

Although initially jarring, the content doesn't seem to offend. Superstar neither hurls disbeliefs (unlike Leonard Bernstein's "Kaddish") or keeps a safe, academic distance (unlike Nikos Kazantzakis' "Last Temptation of Christ," a probable springboard for Superstar).

Refreshing in its innocence, Rice and Webber's Superstar makes the all-too-human, self projection into an ordeal of rise and fall from superstardom, betrayal by friends and public crucifixion — as suffered by a mortal man.

The score itself draws from every contemporary form and could hardly be called "show music." Highly stylized, it is swiftly paced and merely rock-flavored.

Rice and Webber seem to have discovered that delicate blend of rock and classic, attempted most recently by the Deep Purple rock group which features as lead singer Ian Gillan, who recorded as Superstar's first Jesus.

I wrote about the album almost a year and a half ago, before the production came to the stage. After the $9.98, two-record set proved a success, producer Robert Stigwood formed Superstar touring companies but the score had already been bootlegged by everyone from ex-Hair troupes to church groups.

Former Long Beach resident Tom Westerman, who sang the title role recently at the Hollywood Bowl, reportedly left the show due to the growing number of production companies and resultant common key roles.

A LONG Beach amateur production, staged last summer at Covenant Presbyterian Church, outshone the Thursday's "official" version in a few points — one of imagination.

The musical itself was without flaws. Stage personnel, which included a 17-piece orchestra, the six-member Travis Justis rock group and 16 vocalists, were expertly orchestrated by conductor Stanley Lebowitz.

With few exceptions, as little an attempt was made to breathe distinction into the overall program as into any individual characters: all with great, polished voices but empty, due to a seeming lack of feeling or an overload of technicality.

Most notable and consequently, noticeable performers were Edie Walker,

ROBERT CORFF "Jesus"

(Mary Magdalene) who lent a crowing, country ballad style to the role in contrast with the classic-oriented, Yvonne Elliman's recorded version.

Show stoppers like: "I Don't Know How to Love Him," "Gethsemane," "Herod's Song" and the Superstar theme, are sure-fire winners (the kind preceded by lengthy stage blackouts) but hardly a show in themselves.

SUPERSTAR isn't as young or as novel as it used to be. With a delightful musical "Godspell," kind of a cross between Federico Fellini and Marcel Marceau, running a close second in its debut at the Mark Taper Forum, the competition's pretty stiff.

The Broadway Superstar is an extravaganza right out of Cecil B. de Mille, staged by former Hair director Tom O'Horgan.

Robert Corff (Jesus) the only costumed member of the cast, brought the first standing ovation of the evening with the melodramatic, "Gethsemane."

From the Los Angeles cast of Hair, 24-year old Corff deviated from the squealing, screaming Jesus portrayed by Gillan but neglected to substitute the squeals with much else.

Reggie Mack provided the closest thing to visual theatre with a soulful rendition of "King Herod's Song," a campy cakewalk and stage presence rare to the Superstar cast.

The show's big production number, "Jesus Christ Superstar," was performed by Patrick Jude (Judas) with a full-rock beat, fully-lit stage, revolving mirror balls of the '30s and gyrating chorus group.

'And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little'

By ROBERT C. WYLDER

If Miss Reardon does indeed drink a little, it's no wonder. Given her situation, it's amazing that she ever draws a sober breath.

For instance, there is Mama, recently deceased after a lingering illness but obviously still inserting the dead hand of the past into the present. Papa has been gone for years, so the three daughters have had to make do with one parent. One was enough.

And then there's Ceil, now a successful school administrator who has stolen and married sister Catherine Reardon's boyfriend (Catherine is the Reardon who drinks) and who has more or less grabbed all the goodies at Mama's demise and subsequently almost abandoned her teacher sisters.

FINALLY, there is Anna Reardon. She collects stray cats, eats no meat, believes she has recovered from rabies, disapproves of fur and leather and anything else that implies killing an animal, exists on a health-food vegetarian diet, and is presently recovering, clearly incompletely, from a nervous breakdown of sorts brought about in part by a sexual encounter of some kind she has initiated with a high school boy in her chemistry class.

That's the raw material for a comedy? Well, it's the raw material for Paul Zindel's "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," and most of the time the product is very funny. It opened a four-week run at the Huntington Hartford this week with a top-flight cast.

Kim Hunter is the drinking Reardon sister. As Catherine, she starts the first act stone sober and progresses to a fine state of inebriation by the final curtain, but she never slurs a word or wastes a line. Her sense of timing gives every bit of dialogue far more effect than it really deserves. No matter what she says, listening to her is a lesson in stage delivery.

JULIE Harris is Anna, the sister who lives with Catherine and helps to drive her to drink. She creates a poor little sick girl food nut bitch with a vengeance, switching from mood to mood as easily as from soft to loud. She can't make complete sense in her part, for the play doesn't, but she never loses the power to rivet attention on herself.

Yet she and Miss Hunter complement each other beautifully. Actresses both, they know that the ensemble is what counts, and what an ensemble! Also contributing to it are DeAnn Mears, the third sister, and Jo Flores Chase and Bill Macy as friends of the sisters. The way all in the cast work together makes the play they are in seem to be a lot better than it is.

It is, in fact, a weak, incoherent, opportunistic play with several funny and a few moving moments but no semblance of logic or unity. It is not structured but patched together and makes no psychological sense. In the hands of a lesser cast it would show its flaws embarrassingly. Thanks to H and H, though, it comes off rather well. Heaven help it when it gets onto the amateur circuit. Then we'll all have to drink a little.

Suits resolved without judges

A new way of settling civil suits — with lawyers, not judges, doing the settling — is expected to sharply reduce a backlog of some 50,000 Superior Court civil suits in Los Angeles, court officials said Friday.

The new system, in which an unpaid volunteer lawyer serves as an arbitrator, was inaugurated Thursday and settled an auto accident case that probably wouldn't have come up for trial with a judge until January 1974, officials said.

A Superior Court spokesman said the system is a first both for Los Angeles County and the entire state.

The judgeless system requires that both parties in a suit agree to accept voluntary arbitration without right of appeal and that any damage settlement won't exceed $7,500.

It was developed with the cooperation of the Superior Court by the Los Angeles Trial Lawyers Association and the Association of Southern California Defense Counsel.

The arbitrators participating in the new system are picked from a list of 100 volunteer attorneys selected by the two groups and approved by the court.

The spokesman said the new system would be particularly effective in settling simple cases where the facts are not complicated and only two parties are involved.

He said about half the backlog in Los Angeles County consists of accident suits and three-fourths of these concerned traffic accidents.

In Thursday's inaugural case, David Segal, 35, a warehouse foreman from Sepulveda, was awarded $2,354 for injuries he suffered April 29, 1970 when his car was involved in a rear-end collision with a truck owned by Utility Trailer Sales Co. of Fresno.

Segal had sued originally for $25,000 but accepted the voluntary arbitration limit of $7,500. The case was heard by attorney-arbitrator William Kurlander of Los Angeles.

Arbitration hearings are scheduled at present from 6 to 10 p.m. weekdays and Saturday mornings when the court facilities aren't in use, but the court spokesman said daytime hearings can be arranged if needed.

Merrick rites set Monday

Services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in Mottell's Chapel for Jack P. Merrick, prominent Long Beach realtor and appraiser for the past 40 years. Mr. Merrick, who was also an active community leader, died Wednesday at the age of 61.

A native of Seattle, he came here in 1923, graduated from Wilson High, attended USC and began his career as a realtor. During World War II, he served in the real estate branch of the War Department. Following the war, he owned and operated the Cinderella Ballroom in addition to his real estate activities.

Mr. Merrick was chairman of the appraisal division of the California Real Estate Association, and secretary of the Southern California chapter of the Society of Industrial Realtors.

He served on the advisory boards of St. Mary's Hospital and the Long Beach Assistance League, was a director of the Chamber of Commerce, secretary-treasurer of the Rotary Club, and member of Downtown Long Beach Associates, Alamitos Bay Yacht Club, Southern California Tuna Club, International City Club, Palos Verdes Masonic Lodge, Long Beach Board of Realtors, California Real Estate Association and National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Surviving are his wife, Marjorie; son, Thomas; daughter, Mrs. Richard Van Der Laan; brother, Harry; and sister, Mrs. Richard L. Russell, of Long Beach, and another sister, Mrs. Charles S. Benson, of Berkeley.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society.

Dr. Riggins services set for Monday

Services for Long Beach physician Winston C. Riggins, killed this week in a light plane crash near Big Bear, will be conducted at 12:30 p.m. Monday in the Dilday Family Mortuary's Lakewood Chapel.

Interment will be private.

Dr. Riggins, a Southland physician and surgeon for more than 20 years, was killed Wednesday while trying to land his single-engine plane about half a mile east of Big Bear City Airport, sheriff's deputies reported. He was 63.

Dr. Riggins maintained offices in the Woodruff Medical Arts Building, at 3740 Woodruff Ave.

He established his Long Beach practice in June, 1953, after practicing surgery in San Pedro and industrial surgery in Wilmington.

While practicing in Long Beach, Dr. Riggins was affiliated with Elks Lodge 888 and the Los Angeles County Medical Association.

A native of Waldo, Ark., Dr. Riggins graduated from the University of Arkansas medical school in Fayetteville and later studied at the Physicians and Surgeons College of Columbia University in New York.

He is survived by his wife, Rhoda.

Prothro likes Ram chances

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

The way Tommy Prothro has figured, the Rams will be playing football on Christmas, or the day after.

"Regardless of what San Francisco does, if we win our last three games, it's 1,000-1 we'll be in the playoffs," the Rams coach said Friday as he enjoyed a rare day off following Thursday's Turkey Day game in Dallas. Dallas got the bird, 28-21.

Prothro, who is a card-carrying "stat-rat," mapped out the NFL's game of "Rozelle Roulette."

"Assuming the 49ers win their last four games, they would win our division with a 10-4 record. But we stand an excellent chance of finishing with the second best record in the National Conference (at 9-4-1) and would enter the playoffs as the fourth qualifier. "If Washington wins three of its last four games

Only Chicago has a chance to beat us out should they win their last four games, which would give them a 10-4 record. But they have to play Miami, Green Bay, Denver and Minnesota. and I'm not sure they can

'ROZELLE ROULETTE' A COMPLICATED GAME

He's assuming the Rams will pin the tail on George Allen, we'd be tied with Washington. Since we'd have beaten them, they would be out.

"If Detroit loses to San Francisco, the best they could finish would be 9-4-1 and we've beaten them.

beat Miami and Minnesota.

"When we lost to Dallas, we put ourselves in the position where we have to win our last three games (New Orleans, Washington, Pittsburgh)."

The divisional matchups in the AFC and NFC playoffs on Dec. 25 and 26 go this way:

The Eastern Division champion plays at the Central Division champion and the wild card team plays at the Western Division champion, unless the fourth qualifier is from the West. In that case, the pairings change to the wild card meeting the Central Division champion, and the Eastern champ plays at the Western Division camp.

That means if the Rams were to win their division, they would host the wild card team, unless the 49ers were the fourth qualifier. In that case they would engage the Eastern champ at the Coliseum. Should the Rams finish as

Tide, Tigers in 'Battle of South,' suh

Combined News Services

Following a one-day intermission for cold turkey sandwiches and a respite for weary orbs, the nation's football fans move in front of their television sets again today.

While the menu is a tasty one, it'll have to go some to equal Thursday's program.

The show starts innocently enough with the 72nd meeting between Army and Navy, a game that will attract some 100,000 to Philadelphia's John F. Kennedy Stadium and a handful or two more to the TV sets (Channel 7, 10 a.m. PST).

It's strictly a warmup for the TV fans, who'll no doubt have the lawn mowed and the bushes trimmed by the time Auburn and Alabama battle for Southern supremacy (Channel 7, 1 p.m. PST).

THURSDAY NEBRASKA settled the issue of who's No. 1 by beating Oklahoma 35-31, and now will await the outcome of the Alabama-Auburn game to see about another meeting of unbeaten in the Orange Bowl Jan. 1. Third-ranked Alabama can provide the Orange Bowl with the only game involving perfect records by getting past Auburn.

But the Tigers, already committed to the Sugar Bowl and with Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan at the controls, also are undefeated.

Sullivan and his favorite receiver, Terry Beasley, are all set to foil Alabama's hopes. The Crimson Tide, though, has troubles. Alabama, another of the wishbone powers, is concerned about the condition of its star runner, Johnny Musso, who was injured two weeks ago against LSU and didn't play last week against Miami. He'll play today but how much — or how effectively — isn't known.

ODDSMAKERS HAVE MADE Alabama a six-point favorite over the Tigers.

At Philadelphia, it'll be the usual pomp and circumstance before, during and after the Army-Navy battle which finds the Cadets (5-4) favored by six points over the Middies (3-7). Army holds a 34-31 edge in victories in the long series. Six games have ended in ties.

Rumors persist that Navy needs to win in order to preserve coach Rick Forzano's job. Forzano won last year, 11-7, but in his three years at the helm Navy is 5-26.

Both clubs operate with sophomore quarterbacks. Fred Stuvek leads Navy, and Army's quarterback is J.

San Jose, UCLA vie for title

By ROBERT BOHLE
Staff Writer

The favorites, UCLA and San Jose State, will meet tonight for the title in the third NCAA Water Polo Championships at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool.

UCLA, the Pacific-8 champion demolished Washington, 37-2, and Cal State Long Beach, 10-1, Friday. San Jose, the PCAA champion and the only undefeated team in the nation, topped Stanford, 10-4, and squeezed past scrappy Cal State Fullerton, 10-9.

The Bruins polished up their shooting game against Washington, which doesn't compete in the Pac-8 in water polo. The Bruin subs were exposed to three quarters of playoff action in the game in which every player except goalie Kevin Craig scored.

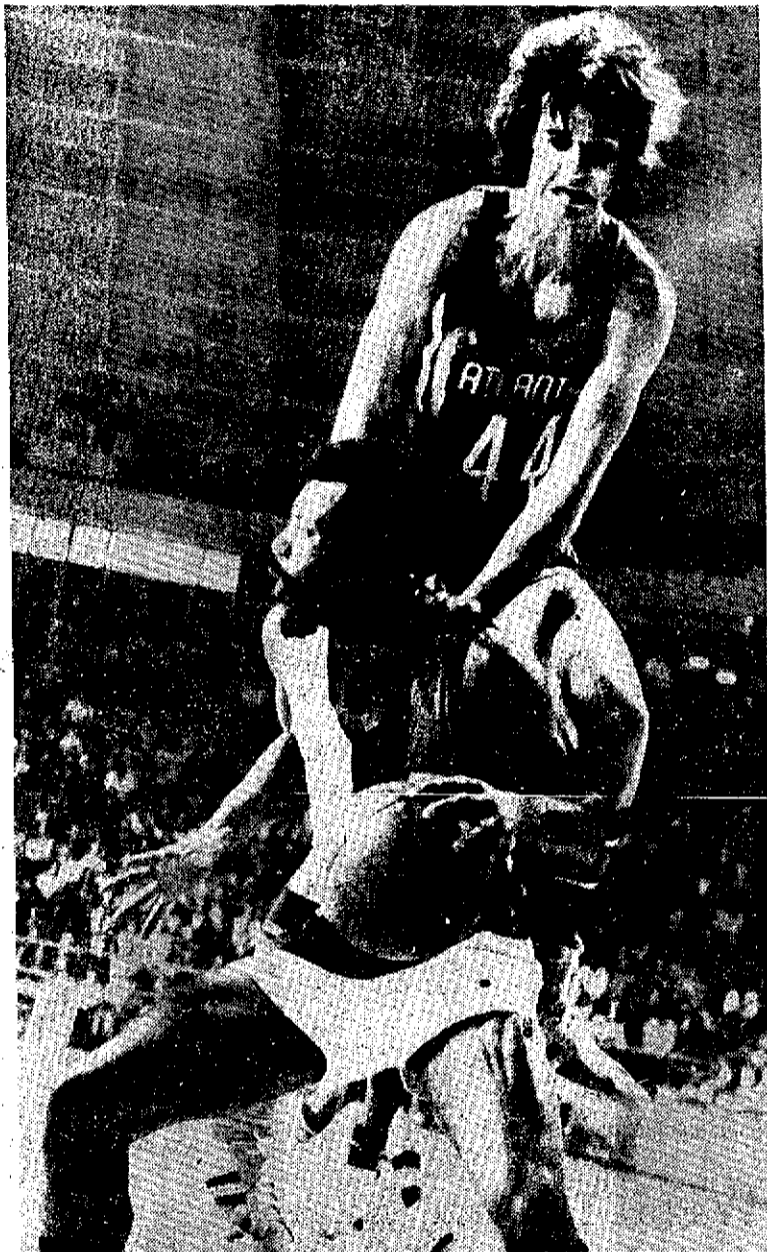

San Jose had no trouble with Pac-8 runnerup Stanford, but it wasn't ready for the hustling Titans, who had upset defending champion UC Irvine, 5-4, in a morning game.

The Titans made many errors in the first period, falling behind 5-1. In the final three quarters, though, Fullerton outscored the Spartans, 8-5.

With less than a minute gone in the final period, the Titans tied the score at 8-8, but a penalty shot and a bad pass cost Fullerton two goals and a berth in the title game. Jim Waska led the Titan scoring with five goals, and played a good defensive game.

Sinda, an Olympic Games champion, ran up an amateur record of 55-1 with 40 knockouts in his native Congo. Since coming to the United States, Cesar is unbeaten with 10 consecutive wins and a 16-2 over-all mark. The program begins at 8 o'clock.

Wilt riddles Detroit 132-113

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Victory came easy for the Lakers again Friday night and left 17,101 Forum fans wondering if the NBA win streak of 20 is safe.

The Detroit Pistons were the latest to crumble under the Laker powerhouse, falling 132-113 as Wilt Chamberlain showed the way with 31 rebounds and 31 points.

The victory was the Lakers' 13th in succession. Nine of them have been by margins from 10 to 40 points. It has been rare in any of the Lakers' 19 wins that a team has forced them to play all-out to the final buzzer.

ALL OF the regulars took their customary seats on the bench early in the fourth quarter and watched the subs mop up. The reserves have displayed enough pride not to squander away any part of the huge lead the first-teamers have piled up.

Milwaukee owns the NBA record, set last year. For the Lakers to tie it they would have to beat Seattle, Boston, Philadelphia, Portland, Houston, Golden State and Phoenix.

Except for the Boston game, which is on the road, that lineup doesn't look impossible to surmount. The Lakers insist they aren't thinking about a record, but there is some mention of it as the possibility draws closer.

"I keep thinking we'll have a letdown sometime," says coach Bill Sharman, "but we seem to get up for every game. There is a lot of pride in the way we are playing now."

Sharman says Chamberlain gives more pre-game pep talks than he does, and it is obvious from watching Wilt perform on the court that he is thoroughly enjoying the game as much as anytime in his 12-year career.

THE BIG MAN intimidated the Pistons just as he has everyone else this year. No team can sustain an offense when it has to rely only on outside shooting.

Chamberlain hasn't tried to score much this season, but when Detroit center Bob Lanier got into foul trouble, Wilt went to the basket and rammed home one "stuff" shot after another to account for his season high in points.

The 31 rebounds was one less than his season high, and he could have had that easily had he not come out of the game with six minutes remaining. He also had six blocked shots.

Jerry West added 18 as-side and 25 points, and Gail Goodrich matched his average with 24 points, all in the first three periods. Happy Hairston pulled down 14 rebounds to continue his splendid play. Flynn Robinson made his only free throw to tie West and Elgin Baylor's Laker record of 35 in a row. Sharman hopes his NBA mark of 56 falls to the reserve guard. For the season, Flynn is shooting a phenomenal 96 per cent — 54 of 56.

The Lakers fell behind 16-8, but they just kept running and forcing the Detroiters into mistakes to pull ahead 34-30 at the quarter.

The lead was 13 at the half, 21 after three quarters. At no time did the Lakers' relentless fast-break ease up on the Pistons, who admitted later they were impressed by the way "they kept coming at us."

New Pistons' coach Earl Lloyd singled out Chamberlain as the difference.

"He starts the fast-break with his passes and he lets the defense gamble," says Lloyd. "It must be comforting for the other Lakers to know they can try for a steal and not get burned because Wilt is backing them up."

Detroit sadly lacks the guidance of Dave Bing, its talented guard who will remain sidelined at least another month. Jimmy Walker makes far too many mistakes to be a playmaker.

Lanier continues to be effective on offense (29 points) but a liability on defense. Rookie Curtis Rowe from UCLA shows promise and he apparently has earned a starting berth. He scored 16 points.

GRAMBLING HEAVY FAVORITE TODAY

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

A year ago Cal State Fullerton extended heavily-favored Grambling to the final three seconds before losing on a 42-yard field goal, 34-31.

Grambling lost virtually all its starters, offensively and defensively, from the 1970 team, with 14 of the Tigers snapped up by the pros.

Despite the heavy losses, Grambling is a top-heavy favorite again today when the clubs meet for the second time in the Coliseum. Kickoff is at 1:30, with an expected turnout of 45,000.

"In looking at their films, they've got a half dozen or more pro prospects," said Dick Coury, the Fullerton coach who still is in shock from the tragic plane crash two weeks ago that took three of his assistant coaches, Dallas Moon, Joe O'Hara and Bill Hannah.

The Titans were denied in their request to the NCAA to play a Mercy Bowl game, hopeful of obtaining funds for the 11 children left fatherless by the tragedy.

Today's game will serve as a source for the funds. Grambling has volunteered to turn back a portion of the proceeds from the game to the deceased coaches' families.

"Everyone at Grambling, from the president to the football coaches, have been so thoughtful," Coury said.

Grambling is heavily favored today because of an 8-2 record and Southwest Athletic Conference championship, as well as the memory of the 1970 game with Fullerton.

"I think we might have surprised them a little," Coury said. "Maybe they didn't know us then but they do now."

Much is made of Grambling's high-scoring offense but the defense hasn't exactly been lacking either.

The Tigers, who gained sole possession of its sixth SAC title Thursday when rival Alcorn A&M lost to Jackson State, hasn't permitted a touchdown in two weeks. Grambling roared over Norfolk State, 55-0, two weeks ago and last week flattened Southern University, 31-3.

John Mendenhall, a 6-2, 250-pound defensive end, is listed by coach Eddie Robinson as among his best.

Texas-El Paso last 49er hurdle to Pasadena

By JIM MCCORMACK
Staff Writer

EL PASO — "Nice guy" coaching may not be dead. Cal State L.A.'s Foster Anderson gave it a whirl earlier this year, but when his team lost seven of its first nine games, the coach decided "no more Mr. Nice Guy."

Unfortunately for Anderson, turning nasty wasn't the answer, either. The Diablos lost their season finale, 31-7.

While the pal approach to coaching was dying at L.A., it was blossoming at Cal State Long Beach.

"Coach (Jim) Stangeland told us that if we played well at Hawaii, he'd give us some free time while we were in the Islands early in the week," reports John Kahler.

The 49ers, who expected to be down after four tough victories in a row—three on the way to a Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. record of 5-1—routed the Rainbows, 48-21.

"That's one of the reasons we played so well," says Kahler, "because of the coach's promise. He kept it, too. We had a fabulous time."

The good guy policy worked so well that the 49ers have used it this week while preparing for tonight's opponent, Texas-El Paso.

The incentive tonight won't be a holiday in El Paso. Or in Juarez.

A win tonight could mean a trip to Pasadena for the 49ers.

Normally, they might choose El Paso. But this trip to Pasadena includes participation in the Pasadena Bowl.

"It will be difficult to get ready for the game because of the week we've had," acknowledges Kahler, "but we all know what we have to do if we want to go back to the bowl."

The conference executive committee, consisting of the athletic director and faculty representative of the seven schools, will vote Sunday on the PCAA's representative in the Pasadena Bowl.

The 49ers (5-1 in league, 8-3 over all) and San Jose State (3-1 in league and 4-5-1 over-all) are the leading candidates.

San Jose concludes its regular season this afternoon at UC Santa Barbara. If the Spartans win, the 49ers will need a good effort tonight.

If San Jose loses, the 49ers will be under less pressure.

Texas-El Paso may

prove to be a difficult opponent.

The Flying Miners of Bobby Dobbs are struggling. They have lost six of 10 games, and in a 24-7 setback to Colorado State last weekend drew only 7,000 partisans.

About the only thing the Miners can do at this point, is stick a needle in the 49ers' bowl balloon.

49ER FOOTNOTES: The 49ers stayed in Hawaii for five days. After he had rushed for 368 yards and scored five times in the 49ers' 46-21 victory over Hawaii, tailback Turvey Metcalf went out on the town and won a dance contest. Metcalf (26) needs three touchdowns tonight to set an NCAA, college division record. He also needs 151 yards to beat Leon Burps' single-season CSLB rushing mark of 1,658.

The 49ers had an informal practice Tuesday at Keewi Beach in Hawaii. The highlight of a casual touch game was equipment man W. J. Kraemer's TD reception over trainer Tom Oley. The pass was thrown by the team's Samoan bus driver.

Cal State flew back to Long Beach Wednesday and didn't practice. The 49ers worked out for an hour, then were home in time for the Nebraska-Oklahoma game on TV. Friday the club flew to El Paso so the "nice guy" policy is really going to get a test tonight.

the fourth qualifier, they'd play in the Central Division's ice box, most likely Minnesota.

The four division playoff winners will play in the NFC and AFC conference championship games on Sunday, Jan. 2. The two conference champs then qualify for Super Bowl VI, to be played Sunday, Jan. 18, in New Orleans.

It's fortunate that Prothro has an analytical mind, developed by playing bridge since age four. Devising the playoff system didn't come easy for the NFL.

"ASKED IF" he was second-guessing himself for gambling on the fake field goal Thursday while leading 14-7 in the second quarter, Prothro said, "No, I thought it would work. We could have punted and probably gotten 20 or 30 more yards, but the touchdown pass to Bob Hayes (51 yards) would have gone for 100 yards if not be."

Prothro said the unbalanced goal-line offense the Rams installed on two occasions when he inserted a third tackle (Joe Carroll) and two tight ends was "something we put in special this week. We call it rock and log. If we line up strong to the left, it's log, and if we line up with two of our three tackles strong-side right, it's rock."

The Rams scored both times they employed their "bull-elephant line." The first time Larry Smith leaped over the one, and the second time Roman Gabriel fired a two-yard scoring pass to Pat (Captain Marvel) Curran.

THE RAMS, almost to a man, complained about the artificial turf in Texas Stadium, which they described as "too slippery, too hard, the worst I've ever seen."

Lance Rentzel, a former Cowboy, said he "felt sorry" for his ex-teammates who have to play on it.

Because tackle Harry Schuh stayed back to visit his parents in Memphis, the Rams won't know the condition of his right knee until the team gathers Monday to begin preparation for the battle of New Orleans in the Coliseum. The same is true of Les Josephson, who is visiting relatives in Houston. He re-injured his shoulder.

Marlu Pride skips to record harness mile

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM-S-5
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., Nov. 27, 1971

Marlu Pride, gaining the lead at the head of the stretch, held off a belated bid by Fresh Yankee to win the $50,000 Pacific Trot Friday night by a neck.

As much as a half-length in front in mid-stretch, Marlu Pride was able to hold off the heavily-favored Fresh Yankee and in so doing lowered the Western Harness mile record for trotters to 1:57 2-5. Fresh Yankee had equaled the old mark of 1:57 3-5 in beating Marlu Pride a week ago.

A four-year-old son of Hickory Pride, Marlu Pride was driven by veteran John Chapman and rewarded his backers in the crowd of 18,200 with a $10 win payoff. He also paid $2.80 to place and $2.40 to show. Fresh Yankee returned $2.20 and $2.10 and Luther Hanover, who rallied for third, paid $2.60. There was a minus show pool of $445.73 on Fresh Yankee.

Joe O'Brien moved scotter than usual with Fresh Yankee, pulling out of third place and taking over the lead before the field had hit the far turn. However, Chapman didn't let him stay in front long.

Chapman followed Fresh Yankee and was right at her throat with Marlu Pride turning into the stretch. The winner slowly edged out to about a half-length lead, but Fresh Yankee was gaining on him with every stride coming in the wire.

Three-year-old Dexter Hanover, a strong fourth earlier this season in the $100,000 L. K. Shapiro Stakes and a two-time victory in sub-two minute miles, figures to rule a solid favorite tonight at Hollywood Park when he tops a field of seven in the $10,000 Manchester Pace.

Four other seasonal "magic" milers are in the Manchester field — Bye Bye Max, Ocean Mouth, Judge and Square Shooter — and the lineup also includes Batman and Isle Of Wight.

Tonight's card, which concludes a long, holiday weekend of harness racing at Hollywood Park, also features the $10,000 California Breeders Stake, for three-year-old pacers.

Purchased for $125,000 as a yearling, Dexter Hanover already has won himself out and has banked more than $100,000 this year. He uncorked his typical strong closing charge to miss catching Rum Customer by a length and one half last week in 1:58 2-5. Prior to that Dexter Hanover has posted back-to-back victories in 1:59 1-5 and 1:58 3-5.

Bye Bye Max was the pace-setter versus Rum Customer last week, leading the field until well into the stretch before fading to fourth. He was closest to Dexter Hanover when the latter won in 1:58 3-5 and led all the way to tally in 1:59 on Nov. 6.

Although he failed to threaten against Rum Customer last week, Isle Of Wight figures close with his best race. He was fourth to Albatross in the American Pacing Classic and his 1971 record includes a 1:58 4-5 win at the Meadows.

All of the other Manchester entrants made their last starts in a race won by Gloria Barmir in 1:59 2-5. Ocean Mouth, who had been close to Kentucky in his best showing this year, was fourth last week, with Square Shooter fifth, Batman sixth and Judge seventh.

Andy's Talent, a recent 3 1/2 length victor in the mud, appears the horse to beat in the California Breeders Stake, which will go as the fifth race of the night.

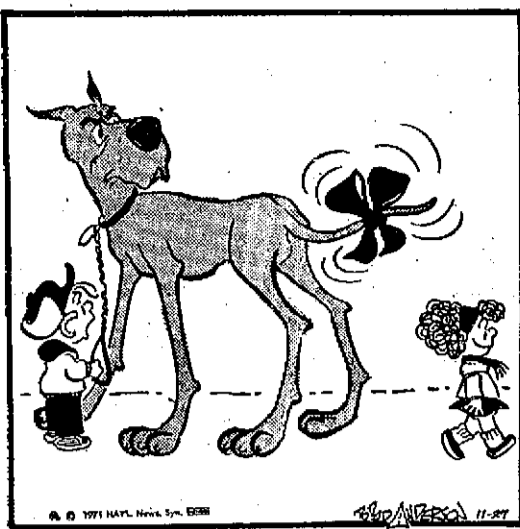

Andy's Tarport, victorious in 2:04 2-5 recently, also looms a strong threat in the California Breeders. He will be part of a three-horse Myron Eichen-owned entry and will have the help of the meet's hottest driver, Joe O'Brien.

The biggest comic strip of all

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

There was a time when some Sunday newspapers were wrapped in the color comic section to boost sales — and some still are.

The newspaper comic strips had their day, and while they still are a factor in publications, they just don't have the appeal they once did — or maybe that's too personal an impression.

The reason isn't too hard to find, if you'll consider that television has become a major purveyor of the comic strip — and I don't mean just on the Saturday morning kid shows or the animated color jobs that come on as specials every once in a while.

THE SITUATION comedy is an enlarged and embellished "Blondie" or "Bringing Up Father"; "Beverly Hillsbillies" was an animated "Dogpatch"; the working females in various shows are up-to-day "Tillie, the Teller"; and there are, of course, the undisguised transfers from the comics to the screen in the likes of "Batman," "Munsters," etc.

But, I guess, the more prevalent comic strips in TV form are variations on the "Dick Tracy" theme.

"Hawaii Five-O," for example, which is one of the top rated shows in the Nielsen, each week brings us figures right out of the comics.

If there ever was a Dick Tracy, I guess the guy has to have been modeled after grim-jawed Steve Mc-

Garret, played by Jack Lord, who without a two-way wrist radio does battle against Fu Manchus, and a variety of thugs and psychopaths who look and act like they came out of the funny papers.

MC GARRET'S latest outing, for example, had such a healthy helping of underworld nicknames for characters that I anticipated "Pruneface" would turn up at any moment.

And as, with the comic strips, there was a dash of right thinking as one of the characters uses terms like "gook" and "chink." McGarret sets him straight immediately about Hawaii being a part of the United States and that we don't use terms like that (except over on another CBS show, "All in the Family," where it is considered comedy).

THEN THERE is the comic page type of character "Cannon" who is occasionally referred to as "Fat Man," in the good old funny paper tradition of gimmick names.

"Steve Ropers" abound — at least, I think it was the comic page's Roper who is always going "undercover."

Of course, the regular characters on TV are not all based on funny paper figures. Some develop their own campy characterizations. Raymond Burr, for example, is beginning to look and sound more and more like Charlie Chan, as he knits his brows and engages in Socratic dialogue with his students.

There are a lot of laughs in the medium — some of them not exactly intended.

SUNDAY night's "60 Minutes" at 6 p.m., Ch. 2, will have a continuation of a previous program on auto repair gyps — this time with some rebuttal as well as extension of remarks on how the innocent motor car owner can be "taken."

Among those scheduled to appear "in rebuttal" is Henry Sorenson of Long Beach, a past president of the Independent Garage Owners of America.

"60 Minutes" also will air a segment featuring Hosea Williams, black American clergyman who talks about his recent meetings with China's Premier Chou En-lai. The segment originally had been scheduled to air on the special Thursday night edition of the show.

Game shows to be analyzed

The game show — its history, packaging and selling, and its place on television — will be discussed by such game show veterans as Chuck Barris, Dennis James, Monty Hall, Jack Barry and Ralph Andrews on The Game Show Show Tuesday at 10 p.m. on KCET, Channel 28.

Hosts Billy Adler and John Margulies will talk with Barris (Dating Game and Newlywed Game) and Andrews (You Don't Say) about the creation of game shows, their packaging and selling to the networks. Andrews will defend the game show against what he considers to have been unfair criticism by TV viewers.

Barry, who created Concentration and Juvenile Jury, will discuss the quiz show scandals of the 1950s, which forced him out of television for nearly 12 years. He then was co-producer and host of 21, one of the shows found guilty.

James and Hall will trace their careers, talking about their shows and how they got into television and the game show business. James has been involved in television since the experimental days in the late 1930s.

Yule giving, toy sales expected to fall under '70 mark

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

ITEM ONE: New York (UPI) — Business Christmas giving will drop off this year for the first time in a decade.

ITEM TWO: New York (UPI) — The toy-games industry, normally recession proof because of Christmas sentimentality, this year expects its first annual sales decline since 1957.

These and other indicators this week point to the Yule season.

Incentive Marketing, a trade magazine that has kept tabs on holiday giving for 20 years, believes the drop in gift-giving will be about 2 per cent from last year's $395 million.

In 1953, when the magazine started keeping score, it estimated the gift total at $250 million. There have been increases every year since then — except for 1956 and 1958 recession periods.

Christmas bonus and gifts by employers to workers is expected to follow much the same pattern as last year, according to Prentice-Hall, Inc., publisher of business and labor information services.

Prentice-Hall recently surveyed 182 firms and found that about half will give either cash bonuses or gifts to workers, with cash the most popular.

Such bonuses will range from $5 up to a full month's salary for workers with more than five years with the firm.

The number of business gifts to customers, suppliers and other associates has increased greatly in recent years. The variety of such gifts also has grown.

Bottles of liquor are "out" this year and foods and other useful gifts are "in," says a spokesman for — of course — Bachman Foods, Inc., Reading, Pa., which dispenses Pennsylvania Dutch Foods.

"Bosh," says Al Durante of the Bourbon Institute. "Useful gifts may be in, but liquor definitely is not out."

Among the most popular business gifts this year, Incentive Marketing reports, will be sporting goods and sports wear, small appliances, portable radios, small power tools, stainless steelware, glassware, luggage and decorative punchons.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Toy Manufacturers Association was heard to say "the general feeling around the industry is that we'll be happy to bring in 1971 — at or slightly under — the $2.28 billion figure of last year."

That's an indication of how deeply the recession has cut into the budgets of Americans who traditionally forget money worries when it comes to buying Christmas gifts for the children.

Since 1955, the toy industry, fueled by the Christmas season, has grown at an annual rate of 8 to 12 per cent.

Total manufacturing sales prices in 1955 hit $592 million, about one fourth of last year's bonanza sales.

Orders so far are down by 1.2 per cent and "unless there's a lot of shipments in a hurry we could be down," the TMA man said.

Naturally, the economic worries are a major reason, but overstocking last Christmas season is another. Many merchants still have such trend items as slot racing cars left over from 1970.

One cheerful note comes from one segment of the industry: games, and they're "doing as well or better than ever."

One observer sees an upsurge in model train business, partly due to the decline of interest in slot racing.

However, the feeling is that most merchants will stock up on the "staples" (Monopoly is one and will sell about 2.7 million copies this year it's estimated) because staples continue to sell after Yule buying ends.

Season for thieves

With the Christmas season comes an upsurge in shoplifting.

Thanks to Roger Griffin, general manager of Commercial Service Systems, Inc., Universal City, the theft picture is taking on better focus.

In his latest report, Griffin has singled out shoplifting in supermarkets and in drug chain stores.

There has been a small "but steady" increase in the number of supermarket thieves turned over to police in the seven years the study has been conducted.

Biggest increase in theft calls, until 1970, was in 1966. And, then, in 1970 the number of cases jumped 2.6 per cent and the supermarket managers went on the alert.

The survey did not include drug chains until 1970, but in that one year after inclusion it was apparent drug chains take a firmer stand than supermarkets in calling police (34.6 per cent as compared to 29.7 per cent).

Fewest drug chain apprehensions (5.7 per cent) were made in January. The largest number (12.4 per cent) was made in December.

This increase appears to be in line with the experience of other retailers who have a significant increase in business during the Christmas season.

December was next to the poorest month, however, for apprehensions in supermarkets. This survey has been consistent in showing that there is not an increase in supermarket shoplifting in December as there is in other stores which do a substantial portion of their yearly volume during the Christmas season.

The significant thing this survey has shown over the past eight years is the even distribution of shoplifting activity the supermarket operator must anticipate throughout the year.

There were most supermarket apprehensions on Thursday and fewest on Sunday. However, Sunday is not the lowest sales volume day in those stores. The amount of shoplifting appears to be correlated with the amount of customer traffic. The relatively small number of Sunday apprehensions seems to result from fewer personnel, both merchandising and security, being on hand to make apprehensions.

Saturday was the most productive day for apprehensions in drug stores with 22.3 per cent being caught on that day. The Saturday drug store figure is weighed by the fact that 25 per cent of all juvenile offenders were caught on Saturday.

INDUSTRY, BUSINESS WEEK

Elation seen evaporating

The elation felt by businessmen when the Nixon Administration took bold charge of the economy in mid-August "has all but evaporated," according to a survey in Business Week Magazine.

"The uncertainty hanging over us is terrible," William R. Lincher, president of Purex Corp., said. "We can't even engage in near-term planning. We want to chart January through March, but we not only do not know the rules of the ball game, we don't even know the shape of the ball field."

To be sure, most of the executives interviewed are optimistic for long term business prospects, and some of them have already seen improvements in their own earnings statements. But there is a feeling that the Administration ought to get on with shaping the next batch of controls so that the thorny problems of labor's demands and foreign trade relations can be tackled.

"Speaking generally," said Robert E. Hunter, chairman of Weatherhead Co., an $80 million Cleveland hard goods manufacturer, "there is no question that the effect of the economic policy to date has been to delay buying decisions. The businessmen with whom we do business are not sure just what they're going to do, and as a result, you find them doing nothing."

"I feel there's no question we'll have better business," Hunter said, "but it's not going to be a boom."

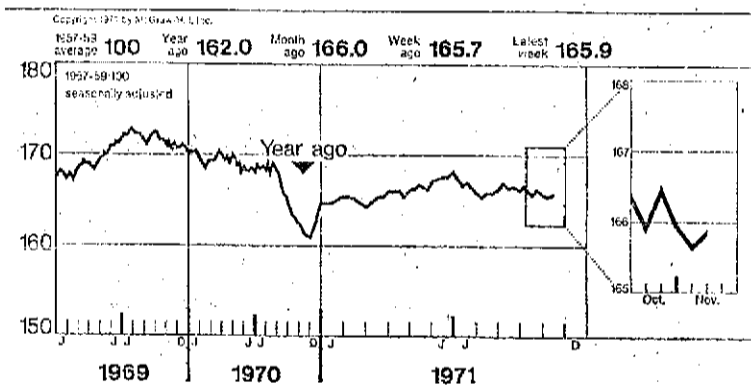

PRICE CONTROLS under Phase II of the new economic program signaled a rocky profit road is ahead for business, Industry Week reported this week.

Higher profits will be hard to come by under the 2.5 per cent price increase guideline and the rule that higher prices cannot be used to increase a business' margin of profit, the magazine for managers said. This means that about the only way companies will be able to boost earnings is by raising their business volume.

In normal times, profits would rise about 15 per cent in a recovery year such as 1972 is expected to be — but industry fears such a gain would be hard to attain with profit margins frozen. Business psychology could be adversely affected, and this could undermine increases in capital spending and put the brakes on the recovery.

Another fear of business leaders is that tight profit controls might dry up the supply of low-cost products and perhaps even result in a tendency to downgrade quality.

"If business can't make a profit at the approved price level, it will stop making the product," an apparel industry executive commented.

The index turned up slightly in the most recent week, reversing the decline in the two previous weeks. Gains were registered in electricity production and intercity truck shipments. Railroad carloadings held steady. Steel production eased after four consecutive weeks of increases. Auto output dropped as only one car plant scheduled overtime last Saturday. Crude oil refinery runs also declined for the second consecutive week.

Broadway-Hale sales 'at new high'

Sales and earnings of Broadway-Hale Stores Inc. reached new highs for the period ended Oct. 30.

Earnings for the quarter rose 19.3 per cent on a sales increase of 10.8 per cent, and earnings for the year to date were up 22.6 per cent while sales increased 10 per cent.

Sales for the most recent 13-week period were $165,053,000 compared with $149,032,000 last year and for the first 39 weeks in the fiscal year reached $469,315,000, up from $426,753,000 in the comparable period a year ago.

Third quarter earnings of $4,996,000, or 40 cents per common share, after dividends on the larger number of preferred shares outstanding this year, compare with $4,187,000, or 36 cents per share last year.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Careful if you skip P.O.

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The turning point, future historians may decide, was the discovery by the Virginia Electric and Power Co. that it could deliver monthly bills to customers cheaper than it could mail them.

The utility said the cost of having its own employees deliver about 450,000 bills in urban areas was less than 5 cents per bill.

Whereas the postal rate, when last seen, was 8 cents.

Thus the company's do-it-yourself project will save about $162,000 a year.

It said businesses all over America had written for details of the delivery system, indicating they planned to by-pass the post office too.

YEAH, but that sort of thing is not a one-way street you know. Before long we may be seeing a series of other frugal enterprises. To wit:

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Postal Service announced today it soon will begin generating its own electricity at post offices throughout the nation.

The service said pilot programs in two cities had shown that electricity could be generated on the premises far cheaper than the commercial rate.

"This money-saving measure was made necessary by the loss of revenue in areas where power companies have taken over mail deliveries," a spokesman explained.

He said inquiries about the program indicated a large number of government agencies and businesses planned to operate their own power plants.

NEW YORK — The International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. is setting up its own diplomatic service around the world and henceforth will make it own foreign policy, it was disclosed today.

The company said its ambassadors could negotiate disarmament treaties and handle other international relations more cheaply and efficiently than the U.S. State Department, where things tend to bog down in channels.

WASHINGTON — The State Department is installing a new communications system to replace the telephone.

A spokesman said diplomats here and abroad were being trained to send smoke signals and to relay secret messages through coded drum beats.

"Recent additional rate increases have made it impossible for us to use the telephone and remain within our budget," a spokesman said.

Telephone service is expected to continue, however, in overseas embassies operated by private corporations.

LUCKY SEAT PROMOTION

ROBERTSHAW CHANGES

Petrolane reveals purchase of Disco

Petrolane, Inc., Long Beach, has announced it has purchased the Disco Drug Co. for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The announcement was made by R. J. Munzer, Petrolane chairman and chief executive officer.

The purchase, according to Munzer, includes all 10 outlets in the Southern California Disco Drug chain.

Disco's president and founder, Frank Stutz, will remain with the company and will serve as president of the newly formed Disco division of Petrolane.

"Disco Drugs," said Munzer, "will enlarge the scope of Petrolane's consumer products division, which currently includes Stater Bros. Markets and the recently announced Brands Department Store. We expect to add four to five new stores a year within the Disco Drug Division."

The Disco stores all are located in Los Angeles County.

BankAmerica Realty buys financial center

BankAmerica Realty Investors, a real estate investment trust, announced this week it has purchased the Del Amo Financial Center, Torrance.

The complex, on Hawthorne Boulevard, includes more than 300,000 square feet of office space and approximately 11 undeveloped acres.

The undeveloped acreage will be improved with additional office facilities to ultimately provide more than one million square feet of office and commercial space.

The trust purchased the property from Great Lakes Properties, a subsidiary of the New York-based Great Lakes Carbon Corporation, or more than $10 million.

Wells Fargo checks to savers 'up'

A total of $23,129,344 has been distributed to more than 106,000 Christmas Club customers, Wells Fargo Bank announced.

The average Christmas Club check will be about $217, up from $211 a year ago.

Last year a total of $22,637,564 in checks was sent to 107,499 California residents.

Aer-O-Lite in contracts

Aer-O-Lite Draperies, Inc., of Garden Grove, has received two contracts involving $1,195 to manufacture and install new draperies in two offices of Security Title Insurance Co. of Panorama City.

The drapery assignment includes approximately 450 yards of various materials in Security Title's branch offices in Stockton and Menlo Park.

AUTHORS SPEAK OUT

Avoid heavier future tax bite

A RICH MAN'S TAX GUIDE, by Ernest R. Field, Hearst Press, $10 (tax deductible).

In 1962, Field (attorney, CPA and lecturer) wrote "Stop Overpaying Your Taxes" and in 1966 his book "How to Make Money in Your Own Business" astonished some merchants with some things they hadn't known.

His latest volume is written specifically for the man who pays more than $4,000 a year in taxes — who would like to reduce that bill.

The book assumes the reader uses an accountant, then provides definite guidelines on how to reap benefits.

The author offers sound advice on ways to set up business affairs now — so as to avoid a heavier tax bite in years to come.

—RLB

SELF RELIANT INVESTING, by John Ellis, Henry Regnery Company, $5.95.

Without neglecting the accepted methods of investing, the author sets about his real objective: offering techniques that the serious individual can use to enlarge his portfolio and to increase his profits.

Ellis discusses growth stocks, concept stocks and undervalued stocks (where he says the investor should be putting his money).

The book is addressed to the person who takes investing seriously — enough to know that professional advisors, brokers, analysts, fund managers are only as good as their records.

And often no better and sometimes considerably worse than the records of the average intelligent investor. —RLB

ESTATE PLANNING FOR WIVES, by Merle Dowd, Henry Regnery Company, $5.95.

This volume is based on an essential consideration — marriage should be, among other things, a financial partnership, in which money matters are understood by both the husband and wife.

In most families, major money matters are handled by the husband alone.

Grim statistics indicate, however, that the husband is likely to precede his wife in dying, leaving her perhaps with small children and total financial responsibility, for which she is totally unprepared.

To live comfortably the wife should be ready to deal with wills, property ownership, inheritance taxes, trusts, gifts, insurance, investments, Social Security and other government benefits, and much besides.

She should know how to evaluate financial advice and how to act on it.

To avoid difficulties in the event of family tragedy, the wife should be included in family money matters while the husband is still alive — sharing decisions and responsibilities and learning to use money wisely.

The advice the author gives will be ignored by husbands at the risk of great hardship for their wives, I fear. —RLB

Iowa takes lead with new tests

Iowa has a head start on a new traffic safety program designed to provide identification and reinforcement of safe-driving attitudes and techniques. Called DrivoTEST, it is the nation's first automated drivers' license test.

The new examination, which scraps the traditional paper and pencil for automated audio-visual techniques, is being used in Des Moines, Iowa. DrivoTEST builds safe-driving attitudes by training as well as testing, because answers to the questions are explained.

An applicant enters one of the 20 separate booths and presses a button that starts a color movie shown on a personal TV set. The film dramatizes a series of traffic situations that call for knowledge of legal and safe-driving requirements.

The film stops at a planned moment in each situation and presents a multiple-choice question which the applicant answers with a push-button responder. His choices are transmitted electronically to a central console where they are instantly scored.

10,000-mile spark plug change suggested

Ever wonder why you should change the spark plugs in your car after every 10,000 miles of driving?

There's a good reason. The 10,000-mile plug change recommendation is not actually based on the fact that spark plugs are "worn out," in the strictest sense, after 10,000 miles.

This figure — selected after extensive spark plug life tests — merely represents a safety factor beyond which plugs are likely to misfire under the sudden demands of peak acceleration or extremely heavy load. It also represents the point at which gas economy begins to drop and starting becomes more difficult.

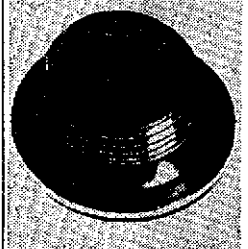

Champion Spark Plug Co. engineers consider a spark plug worn out when it reaches the point where it is likely to misfire — regardless of its appearance. And, contrary to popular opinion, misfiring doesn't necessarily mean the plug failed to create a spark. It simply means that the plug failed to ignite the gasoline properly, whether a spark was produced or not.

How can a spark be produced and the plug still misfire? Because "spark tracking" (or high-tension current leakage) through carbon deposits on the spark plug's firing end can result in a weak spark, which in turn causes incomplete burning of the fuel mixture, and results in a loss of both power and economy.

HIGH RESISTANCE, which develops as the spark plug electrodes become rough and uneven and the gap between the electrodes increases, also can result in the spark being too weak. Here, too, the gasoline isn't ignited properly and incomplete burning of the fuel charge can result.

A new spark plug with the correct gap setting needs about 5,000 volts to fire. However, as the plug remains in service, constant heat and chemical attack plus electrical erosion cause the gap to become wider, thus increasing the amount of voltage to fire the plug. Spark plug gap growth occurs at a rate of about .001 inch for each 1,000 miles of driving.

Consequently, a set of plugs that has been in service for 10,000 miles generally will have gaps that are about .010 inch wider than the original settings and higher voltage is needed to make them spark.

This is only for normal driving.

Operating the engine at very high speed can decrease the amount of coil voltage available to fire the spark plugs by 30 to 40 per cent. Accelerating to pass on a highway may practically double the voltage burden on the spark plug.

That's why misfiring is first noticed while accelerating because it's here that the plugs actually can require more voltage to produce a spark than the ignition system is capable of producing — especially if the plugs are badly worn.

Now, back to the 10,000 miles change recommendation.

MOST spark plug engineers agree that a safety factor is needed in the spark plug to ensure proper plug performance under every possible operating condition. Consequently, they try to keep the amount of voltage necessary to spark the plugs well below the amount of voltage that the coil is capable of producing.

And keep in mind, this safety factor must take into consideration that fact that as the ignition system becomes older, its potential high voltage output drops off.

A new ignition system, for example, may be able to produce over 30,000 volts of electricity. The same system after 20,000 or 30,000 miles without replacing any of the parts may only be able to produce 15 to 20,000 volts.

Winning this road rally means 'college driveway'

How would you like to drive into the winner's circle, only you don't know where it is, and you don't know how to get there, but you have to arrive exactly on time?

Such is the task for entrants in the Exploring Safe Driving Road Rally, a national program for Exploring-age boys and girls organized by the Exploring Division of the Boy Scouts of America.

With national sponsorship by Lincoln-Mercury Division of the Ford Motor Co., up to 36 rally teams compete in a fall final event for $7,000 in college scholarships and the use of a new car for a year.

Finalists are selected from local rally winners, organized by Exploring division in area Boy Scout Councils, often with the sponsorship of local industry. For example, the Toledo, Ohio, area council rally, which sent the only all-girl team to the 1970 finals in Detroit, is sponsored by Champion Spark Plug Co.

RALLYING, a favorite pastime for many in the "sports car" set, is not a speed event, but a competition involving driving and navigation skill, plus the ability to observe local traffic laws, against a clock.

Competitors run on a pre-selected course, encounter all types of driving conditions, and progress is established — against a time factor known to the rally master — via a number of checkpoints situated along the route.

MAP STRATEGY

Participants in the Exploring Grand National Safe Driving Road Rally map strategy before start of the six-hour, 125-mile ordeal. The final runoffs are sponsored by the Lincoln-Mercury Division, Ford Motor Co.

Cars are sent from the starting point at one minute intervals and the navigator — the passenger — is handed a detailed instruction and direction list which will guide the rally team to the finish point.

Points are scored for arriving at checkpoints and the finish too soon or too late, and the team with the least points is the winner.

Classes are also a factor. Since time is the enemy, cars with elaborate expensive timing equipment are considered the "equipped" class. Cars using standard equipment, and perhaps stop watches and a slide rule, fall into the "unequipped" class. THE TWO CLASSES normally do not compete against one another, but do run in the same event. The Exploring rallies are all "unequipped."

One important factor in rally success is the navigator. It's up to him — or her — to advise the driver where to go, how fast to proceed and for how long. In the Exploring events, an observer is also allowed in the car to aid the navigator.

The Exploring rally program is an example of the modern, creative activities available to young people.

Everybody's talking about pollution

but did you know you really can do something about it?

A recent tune-up clinic conducted with a large number of cars by engineering students at the University of Michigan found this: A tune-up did reduce exhaust pollution—a big 55% on the average. Of course, in some cars the reduction was less. But in others, exhaust pollutants were reduced even more.

Please. Won't you make it a point to take your car in for a tune-up? At least once a year or every 10,000 miles.

Toledo, Ohio 43601

Further clinic results are in the free factbook, WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT YOUR CAR'S EXHAUST POLLUTION. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Tune-Up Clinic Factbook, P. O. Box 910, Toledo, Ohio 43601

Be specific about this kind of car tuneup

Take your car to your service station and ask the attendant to give your car "Tune-Up No. 2" and he'll probably look at you and wonder. A tune-up he knows; a tune-up No. 2, probably not.

Yet, it's a needed service, one that's longer overdue in most cars.

Tune-Up No. 2 is simply a thorough inspection and check of all the components making up a car's cooling system, plus replacement of worn or malfunctioning parts.

Why is it important? Consider this. The cooling system of your car performs a vital function, that of keeping the operating temperature of the engine at a level at which it will perform at top efficiency.

The cooling system on the average modern engines must be able to withstand in excess of 17 pounds of pressure combined with underhood temperatures that range from 224 to 278 degrees F. These higher heats and pressures put a strain on all components of the cooling system: Hoses, V-belts, water pump, thermostat, radiator caps.

It takes only one defective or nonoperative part to cause the engine to overheat with costly internal engine damage the likely end result.

If you are driving a late model car and it's been over a year since you've had your cooling system checked, you're

Avoid problems

overdue for trouble. And you're ready for a cooling system tune-up, or Tune-Up No. 2.

THE COST is relatively small compared to the potential savings in forestalling expensive emergency service or repairs. A Tune-Up No. 2 normally takes only about an hour and a half and carries a nominal flat rate of $12.00 plus parts. And, if your station attendant or garage mechanic still doesn't know about Tune-Up No. 2, ask him to check his flat-rate manuals, or contact The Gates Rubber Co., 999 South Broadway, Denver, Colo. 80217.

Here's Tune-Up No. 2

1. A visual check of coolant level for indication of leaks or excessive oil content.
2. Check with pressure tester for internal and external leaks.
3. Visual check of oil for water content.
4. Test thermostat for proper opening, closing.
5. Check of heater valves.
6. Check heat gauge for accuracy.
7. Drain and back flush cooling system.
8. Clean radiator core of bugs and check for clogging.
9. Clean engine if heavily covered with grease, oil.
10. Test radiator pressure cap.
11. Check radiator neck cap seat for nicks or scratches that could release pressure.
12. Check water pump bearings.
13. Check fan blades and pulley for alignment and balance.
14. Inspect all hose and clamps for deterioration.
15. Check core plugs and drain cocks for leakage.
16. Refill system with

- coolant and check for airlocks.
17. Recheck entire system for leaks.
18. Check and adjust tension of V-belts.
19. Check and reset ignition timing to eliminate ping.
20. In cases where cooling system continues to over heat, check other possible causes.
21. Replace belts, hose, clamps, thermostat, cap, as necessary.

Vigilance required on pets, kids

Motorists are not the only ones who use the streets and highways.

Pedestrians often jaywalk, children hidden by parked cars dart into the street, cyclists sometimes ride as if they were in an empty field, and animals give little heed to traffic.

All such irresponsible behavior is aggravated during bad weather, when people become more impatient.

Keep your eyes moving to spot these potential emergencies. Don't depend on others to know the safety rules.

Balance vital to wheels

Have you ever noticed how different your favorite shoes feel with new soles and heels? Because the wear had accumulated so gradually, you had been quite comfortable in those shoes and had not Jody Carr realized how worn they were.

This is rather like the sudden improvement in our car when you install new tires. You may have become accustomed to the vibrations and noise of your old tires. Suddenly, with new ones, the car seems to glide.

You feel a dramatic change in the handling of your car, too. Especially with some of the newly developed tire designs.

Your new tires can be expected to last longer if they are properly balanced and aligned. But even the best of them may live a short life if either of these factors is ignored.

IT IS not unusual for misalignment to scrub off a third of a tire's tread. This can amount to several times the price of the wheel alignment job that could have prevented such waste and would have made your car a safer one.

How do you know if your car's wheels need aligning? Your first clue may come from erratic steering. The car may wander or pull from one side to the other.

'Car Care' seen keeping autos garage-proof

Not long ago we heard a prediction that the next few years would find the U.S. auto industry building cars that will be totally garage-proof — serving out their useful life from assembly line to junk heap without servicing.

The prediction made no mention of "Car-Care" — that essential responsibility of the owner, spelling the difference between risk of life and investment and the security of both during the life of the vehicle.

Most of us remember when a good garage mechanic could tell by the sound and feel — by the seat of his pants as the saying goes — what ailed the family car. Matter of fact, most of us kids could take down an engine and do our own valve and ring job if we had to.

But it isn't true anymore. Few would try it on a modern automobile. Few of us would relish the job of stripping air conditioning, power-assist systems and a dozen other modern extras — let alone try our do-it-yourself skills on those temperamental "horses" under the block.

Yet "Car-Care" — even if it's passed beyond the average owner's home-grown skills — is more important than ever. And predictions notwithstanding, it's going to be more and more important as the automobile takes on a degree of sophistication far beyond today's level.

First, many experts question what kind of power plant will be doing the job in "tomorrow's" autos.

We know that future energy conversions will answer to a series of computers; insuring fuel consumption without pollution to atmosphere, without waste, and with maximum response in power and maneuverability.

The future probably holds some form of radar brake control, guided highway lanes and a whole family of integrated, automatic safety devices.

The goal will be maximum crash-avoidance and maximum crash-survivability; and not the least of the ideas under serious consideration are devices capable of "sniffing" or screening out the irresponsible driver — the drunk or the addict — who becomes a killer, behind the wheel.

So vital will the role of professional "Car-Care" become, many experts believe, that the auto showrooms of tomorrow will feature both kinds of autos — the sophisticated "automatics" on one side, and the do-it-yourselfer's line on the other.

Make sure car heater works well

With winter on its way, better make sure your car heater is functioning properly.

Often passengers in the front seat are comfortable but those in the back seat are cold. You turn up the heat, but it doesn't seem to make it to the back. The hot get hotter and the cold stay cold.

One reason for this may be a clutter under-seat. Generally, the heat flow is designed to travel under the front seat to the rear compartment.

HERE'S WHAT you do if you are looking for a quality car paint job according to the DeVilbiss Co.: Pick a busy shop — a sign of customer satisfaction; check for cleanliness; ask for their best man to paint your car. It may cost a bit more, but you get what you pay for.

Tune-up saves

A tune-up improves gasoline mileage, and engine performance that turns savings in dollars over to you.

Harmful emissions

When your car's PCV valve is clogged, harmful emissions from the engine can increase by 200 per cent, according to Champion Spark Plug Co.

Dirty battery terminals can cause 'won't starts'

Ever wonder why sometimes during starting, your car's battery sounds like it's dying — then suddenly kicks off? A major source of the problem could be dirty battery terminals or loose connections.

Open the hood of your car. Are the battery terminals covered with what looks like a green moss? If not, are they loose? The green substance is acid build-up.

When it reaches a saturation point of covering the lead terminals, energy transmission is impaired and starting becomes a problem. In advance stages of acid build-up, not enough energy is transmitted to even turn the engine over once!

Corroded or loose battery terminals are easy for your local service station mechanic to fix.

The investment will be nominal and you'll be free all season long from this "won't start!" cause.

Double trouble

A 2 per cent incidence of spark plug misfire can more than double the rate of hydrocarbon emissions from a car's engine, according to Champion Spark Plug Co.

Correct V-belt faults

If the V-belt on our car is squealing or appears to be slipping, it's time to do something about it. But, the answer is not to apply belt dressing.

The maker of one major V belt line advises against belt dressing. For one good reason. All belt dressings contain an oil base penetrant which ultimately softens the belt and shortens belt life.

Their advice is to look for the cause. If a belt slips, forget the dressing and have the belt tensioned to manufacturer's specifications. The result will be longer lasting and the belt won't be damaged.

If the V-belt is noisy, belt dressing may provide some relief but it will be short-lived and belt damage can result.

Noise is usually caused by dirt, dust, rusty water and/or anti-freeze. The solution is as simple as thoroughly cleaning the belt and pulleys, or re-aligning pulleys and re-tensioning belt.

Don't use any dressings! Find the cause . . . and have your mechanic correct it.

Take a look

It's a good idea to check all around your car before starting.

Make sure that there are no glass or obstructions around your tires.

Protective locks deter joy riders, but not pros

By ROBERT W. IRVIN

One of every 100 cars and trucks in the United States was stolen last year. Or, to put it another way, almost one million vehicles were stolen in a year when new car sales totaled 8.3 million.

It seems like a contradiction, but these thefts — which are at a record high — come at a time when all new cars are being equipped with anti-theft devices to lock the steering column, transmission and ignition.

However, these devices have only been on cars for the last few years. There are probably still 90 million vehicles on the road without them.

So, it will likely be some years before it can be determined how much the new devices will cut thefts.

Nationwide, car thefts are still on the increase. In 1968, some 777,800 cars were stolen; in 1969, 871,900. The FBI has not yet released most recent figures, but they are expected to show another increase to well over 900,000, perhaps one million.

The anti-theft locks are not stopping the professional car thief, according to officials from industry and government. The pro knows how to defeat the lock — in some cases by physically removing it.

San Francisco police recently reported to the Automobile Manufacturers Association (AMA) that many professional car thieves operating in their city were towing the new cars away.

Instead of trying to break the lock on the street, they haul the car to a garage.

However, towing the new cars can be a problem for both thieves and police because the devices lock both the transmission and steering column. With the conventional rear-drive American car, you can't pick up the front wheels and tow it because the transmission keeps the back wheels locked.

You can pick up the rear end and tow the car, providing the front wheels are locked in a straight ahead position. But you can't tow it this way if the front wheels were turned when the column was locked.

The only recourse then, is to put dollies under the wheels to tow the car. Obviously, no juvenile is going to go to this trouble just for kicks.

But Robert J. Wilson, secretary of the AMA's vehicle security committee, said the device "definitely has an effect on the joy riding kids. The juveniles are stealing a lower percentage of new cars. And that was our main thrust with the device."

The only available statistics show that about 40 per cent of the cars stolen had the keys left in the ignition. This, of course, defeats the purpose of the triple-locking system.

To remind people to remove their keys, cars for the last couple of years have had a buzzer which sounds if the driver's door is opened with the key still in the ignition.

In an effort to make it easier for police to identify a stolen car and to make it tougher for thieves, Vehicle Identification Numbers (VIN) are now mounted permanently on the instrument panel.

New cars have had to have the triple lock since Jan. 1, 1970 under a federal safety regulation adopted because stolen cars are 200 times more likely to be involved in a traffic accident.

Thus, if you cut down the number of car thefts, you should cut down the number of accidents.

Recreational vehicles, trucks now valuable targets for theft

Officials also note a rising number of stolen trucks and recreational vehicles.

"The thieves are moving into this field as these vehicles become more popular," one auto spokesman said. "It's very tough to identify them too, because there are so many manufacturers."

About 84 per cent of stolen cars are now recovered, down from 92 per cent (of the 288,300 cars stolen) recovered in 1959.

Thus, as a larger percentage of the thefts are by pros, the percentage of cars recovered will probably continue to drop.

While the locks apparently won't stop a professional thief, the warning devices which are available as accessories may stall him.

One auto man said, "A warning system individually tailored to a car can be successful. But if the warning system is installed on a production line, then the thieves know how to beat it."

"They will go to junk yards and buy wrecked cars just to 'operate' on them — like a school for thieves."

NEW YORK City is called, among other things, the stolen car capital of the world. Chicago is running second. One auto executive theorizes, "I know there are a lot of organized groups in New York and Chicago who steal cars — make a business out of this."

"In my opinion, the most technologically sharp individuals come out of Chicago. The car thief there is like a frustrated engineer. He seems to know all the fine ways of doing things — a real sharp cookie, good with a hammer and a torch."

Why does your car need Tune-Up No. 2 now?

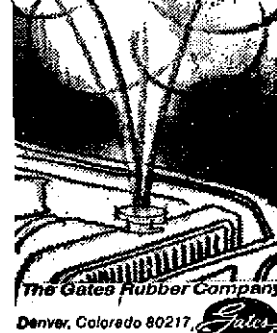

Engines generate heat. Lots of it. Only a properly operating cooling system can remove that excess heat, keep your engine at the proper temperature.

Drive with a worn V-belt, faulty radiator cap or thermostat, or a leaking hose and you're asking for trouble; overheating, inconvenience, road breakdowns, possible expensive repairs.

You can avoid trouble with a Tune-Up No. 2...a thorough check of the entire cooling system plus replacement of worn or defective parts.

CLEAN AIR CLINIC

A key ingredient of Champion Spark Plug Co.'s Cleaner Air Clinics is an exhaust analyzer which measures hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions produced by car engines.

Three vital adjustments cut pollution drastically

By DAVID L. WALKER
Director, Technical Services,
Champion Spark Plug Co.

Good things — or bad things — come in threes. Three is the number of key tune-up adjustments that can convert an average car from a polluter to a relatively pollution-free vehicle.

The basic steps in reducing air pollution involve correcting spark plug misfire, maintaining correct fuel/air mixture and making sure timing is set correctly.

Through a series of Cleaner Air Clinics, Champion Spark Plug Co. is instructing auto technicians throughout the nation in how to recognize and correct these flaws. The clinics will reach more than 60,000 technicians with the latest information on controlling air pollution from automobiles.

SPARK PLUG MISFIRE — A 2 per cent rate of misfire can more than double the amount of unburned hydrocarbons.

The 2 per cent misfire is critical since the average motorist cannot detect that his engine is acting up with that rate of malfunction. So he is not aware there's anything wrong, let alone the fact that his car is polluting excessively. Causes of spark plug misfire include worn out spark plugs, deficiencies in other ignition components, such as points, distributor caps rotors or cables.

OVERRICH FUEL SUPPLY — The function of the carburetor is to mix the gasoline with air and feed the mixture to the combustion chamber. An overrich mixture can result in 200 to 300 per cent increased unburned hydrocarbons.

Typical causes of an overrich fuel mixture include clogged air filters restricting the supply of air, improperly adjusted idle mixture and a carburetor in need of servicing.

TIMING — With the new anti-pollution devices on cars, some motorists complain about loss of power.

Some auto service technicians will try to compensate for this condition by advancing the timing settings beyond what car makers recommend. As a result the production of unburned hydrocarbons can increase from 10 to 30 per cent. In addition, the over-advanced timing can shorten spark plug life and damage the engine, thus increasing pollution even further.

Other incidents of neglected maintenance can increase air pollution. These include using spark plugs of incorrect heat range, use of improper fuel for the engine and failure to keep anti-pollution devices in good working condition.

Correct usage tips for coin car washes

Coin-operated car washes must be used correctly to protect paint surfaces from serious damage, according to E. J. Hartmann, president of Ziebart Process Corp. Hartmann said, "A number of people have complained to us recently that the paint on their automobiles is not retaining its brilliance and, in some cases, that it is actually pitting and deteriorating. On further investigation, we have found that these people are frequent users of coin-operated car washes.

"Questioning these complainants, we have found that they have the habit of trying to get in and out of the coin-operated washes as quickly as possible in order to save spending an extra coin for additional minutes of wash time.

"The result," said Hartmann, "is that they may have saved an additional quarter but they leave the wash without completing the job. Rather than spend the money needed to do the job right, they will try to squeeze a complete job in the metered wash time purchased with one or two coins.

"Often when they leave, their cars carry with them a layer of filmy soap. This remains on the cars and dries, only to liquefy later with rain.

"The soap solutions used in these car washes are fine to clean away road film, but they are not meant to be left on the paint surface. I would warn motorists that they should use the coin-operated washes correctly. Take several coins with you and spend what is needed to do the job right," Hartmann said.

No 'idle' rumor

According to a University of Michigan engineering school study, hydrocarbon emission from an automobile engine is reduced an average of 55 per cent at idle after a tune-up.

Follow advice, learn starting on 1909 car!

AUTOMOBILE DRIVING SELF-TAUGHT, by Thomas H. Russell and ENGELMAN'S AUTO-CRAFT by Roy A. Engelman, Chilton Book Company.

Do you expect starting trouble this winter?

Then try this procedure: Flood carburetor. Close air intake with cloth. Prime cylinders with a half teaspoon of gasoline. Advance spark little more than usual because of lag in ignition. Soak cloth with gasoline and put in air intake so gas can be drawn into cylinders. Keep throttle well open. Warm carburetor, being sure no water gets into air intake.

This advice, which should serve you well if you drive a 1909 model car, is contained in a fascinating volume, "Automobile Driving Self-Taught." Along with "Engelman's Autocraft," the book has been re-issued by Chilton Book Company as a contribution to the nostalgia craze which is sweeping the country.

Originally published in 1909, the Russell book predated the time of strict auto licensing and of reliable and universally available repair service. Each intrepid motorist was his own driving teacher and often his own mechanic.

The vagaries of the old-time car made the job of the novice driver difficult indeed. Russell advised that "the garage should have a large door at each end to save a lot of time and trouble reversing."

In addition, owners were plagued by constant tire trouble, the necessity of advancing or retarding the spark frequently and maneuvering the car along muddy or rutted roadways.

Yet some of the advice offered in the two volumes would benefit today's car owner.

Engelman writes, "Much of the satisfaction that an automobile gives depends on the driver. If he neglects his automobile, if he does not lubricate it, or if he tinkers with it too much, he is bound to receive unsatisfactory service."

He continues, "Your satisfaction will be greatly increased if you will learn the details of your automobile."

Since the motorist of earlier times was considered more of a sportsman than, say, a young mother shepherding the kids to the Brownie meeting, rules of the road were important.

ENGELMAN admonished, "Don't curse police officers. It is your duty as a citizen to understand the rules of street traffic, rules which the police help enforce."

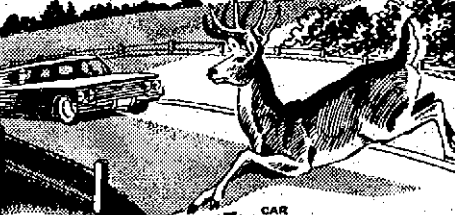

Of course, dealing with horses and "somnambulant" pedestrians also plagued the motorist of the early years. Warnings were issued that while city horses were becoming accustomed to automobiles, their rural counterparts were still car-shy. So caution was urged.

AUTO FACTS

BRAKES

AT 68 MPH YOU'LL GO 70 FEET FROM THE TIME YOU DISCOVER YOU HAVE TO STOP UNTIL YOUR FOOT HITS THE BRAKE PEDAL.

EVEN IF YOUR TIRES AND BRAKES ARE IN GOOD CONDITION YOU'LL GO ANOTHER 250 FEET BEFORE YOU STOP—A TOTAL DISTANCE LONGER THAN A FOOTBALL FIELD. BUT AS MANY AS 1/3 OF ALL CARS CHECKED IN INSPECTION STATIONS HAVE BEEN FOUND TO NEED BRAKE WORK.

OFTEN POTENTIAL BRAKE TROUBLE DOES NOT ANNOUNCE ITSELF BY THE FEEL OF THE PEDAL. DON'T TAKE CHANCES—BE SURE YOU MAKE A PANIC STOP IN TIME. THE CAR CARE COUNCIL RECOMMENDS HAVING A BRAKE CHECK-UP TWICE A YEAR.

Jumper cables, not rope can prove lifesavers...

Back in the good old days, whenever they were, the wise motorist always carried a rope in his car—especially if it was subject to fits of stubbornness.

More than one driver, cloaked in duster and goggles, has been seen tying the rope to his front bumper so he could haul the car out of the mire.

Later, man learned about pushing one car with another—mainly to get the faulty one started. But car makers recommend against pushing or towing by novices today.

In addition to the distinct danger of damaging your automatic transmission, it is altogether possible that your particular car cannot be started with a push.

So today's emergency measure, other than the nearest telephone, is jumper cables—long cables that permit you to transfer current from the strong battery in one car to a weakened one in another.

Freeways prove good investment for you

Freeways may not be free, technically, but they are among the best investments the average citizen makes with his money.

According to the Highway Users Federation for Safety and Mobility, for every dollar expended from the U.S. Highway Trust Fund on the Interstate system, about $2.90 is returned in direct users benefit.

Taxes raised from gasoline, tires and trucks are building the most efficient and safe highway system the U.S. has ever enjoyed.

This year the Highway Trust Fund is observing its 15th Anniversary.

Some of the highlights of the fund's benefits to the car owners are listed below:

- The Federal-Aid Primary system accounts for less than 10 per cent of all U.S. roads but carries about half of all motor vehicle travel.

- The 42,500-mile Interstate Highway system, to be completed by 1978, is nearly twice as safe as other roads and streets. In recent years the fatality record on the Interstate was 2.99 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles traveled vs. 5.62 miles for other roads. The Interstate system is saving 8,000 lives per year.
